Welfare Solo By Gaglardi Condemned

The B.C. Association of Social Workers today branded as illegal and a "retrograde step" Monday's motion by the provincial government to place B.C.'s welfare system under the "absolute discretion" of Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi.

A six-member delegation including its executive director, Dr. Glen Hamilton, descended on the legislature this morning to put their objections to opposition MLAs and "hopefully" to present a brief to Gaglardi.

Group spokesman Jack MacDonald, president of the association and assistant professor at UBC's school of social work, said the proposed amendment to the B.C. act that of allowing Gaglardi to set welfare rates — would be illegal under provisions of the federal Canada Assistance Act.

WELFARE 'CZAR'

He pointed out that the assistance act stipulates that social assistance "be in an amount that takes into account his (the welfare recipient's) basic requirements."

He added that by allowing Gaglardi to become "sort of a welfare Czar" in the setting of welfare rates the Bennett government contravenes the federal law which provides 50 per cent of welfare money to the province.

"Both the letter and the spirit of the (federal) act could justify the withholding of federal money to B.C."

MacDonald also contended that the government is reducing the power of welfare review boards — "taking away their power" — so that they can do nothing more than make recommendations to government.

"This makes a mockery of the concept of the appeal board," he said.

"There is good reason why review boards should have the power to make decisions as a safeguard against the arbitrary decisions of civil servants who already hold great discretionary powers over powerless people who are the victims of our society."

MacDonald also charged that the Bennett government was following more and more the tendency to delegate power to cabinet ministers exclusively and this was a "total abdication of legislative responsibility."

He contended that to give Gaglardi absolute discretion on welfare matters was a retrograde step "which goes in the face of the national trend" which is to vest more decision-making power in the social worker in the field.

The association's brief makes 11 recommendations covering a wide range of welfare problems.

Among them is a recommendation that social assistance rates be reviewed by a special commission and that they be sharply increased. The brief does not spell out what the amount of the increase should be.

It also points out that "contrary to the views of many citizens, 84 per cent of adults on welfare assistance are not capable of earning a living; 13 per cent are unemployed and 3 per cent are defined as working poor."

Another recommendation is that the minimum wage be raised to $2 per hour.

TERRORIST BOMB destroyed this building in Londonderry, Northern Ireland, where a policeman directs traffic around the debris. The building had housed a furniture store, ownd by a Protestant, on the ground floor. Buildings on both sides were also severely damaged.

Israel Hits Guerrillas

Syrians Respond With Bombers

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel launched air and artillery attacks on Palestinian Arab guerilla camps inside Syria today. Syria said it struck back with air strikes on the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights.

The Syrian claim said the planes struck Israeli paramilitary settlements in the Heights, seized by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war.

The Syrians said the aircraft caused heavy damage.

Israeli military spokesmen acknowledged that Syrian planes swept over the Heights on a bombing mission but said they inflicted no casualties and no damage.

Israeli planes tried to intercept the Syrian MiG-17 and anti-aircraft guns opened fire but there was no contact or hits from the ground, the Tel Aviv command said.

In Beirut, 20,000 pro-guerrilla demonstrators marched through the streets today shouting anti-American slogans and taunting President Suleiman Franjieh for not taking action against the Israeli incursions. They were escorted by 50 riot police and there was no violence.

But fighting broke out between guerrilla sympathizers and rightists at the American University of Beirut and a university spokesman said 11 students were injured in the 30-minute clash. He said: "A good number of windows, chairs and tables were smashed."

CLOSE AIRPORTS

Damascus radio said Syria's airspace and all of its airports were closed in late afternoon.

It was the fifth day in less than a week that the Israelis struck across their border for assaults on guerrilla outposts in Arab territory.

Lebanese guerrillas claimed Israeli planes also bombed two border villages today near the Arkoub region of southern Lebanon, scene of a four-day Israeli operation against Palestinian commandos that ended Monday.

Israel denied making attacks on Lebanon today.

A guerrilla spokesman claimed Israel lost three jet aircraft and 11 military vehicles in the four days of fighting. Israel reported no such losses.

The spokesman said 130 Israelis were killed or wounded and set guerrilla casualties at 47 killed and 64 wounded.

The Israelis report about 50 guerrillas were killed.

The Syrian army placed the Israeli assault 60 miles south of the capital Damascus, and said three guerrillas and two Syrians were killed.

The air and artillery assault was a reprisal attack against guerrillas based in Syria who had fired at Israeli positions in the occupied Golan Heights 13 times in the last four days, the Israelis said.

The Israeli military command said all planes returned safely, despite Arab claims of intensive anti-aircraft fire. Seven Arab guerrilla centres came under fire, a military spokesman said.

Israel accused the Syrian government of supporting and encouraging the guerrillas.

"The aim of today's Israeli defence force action is to bring home to the Syrians and, to the terrorists the fact that we do not intend to tolerate attacks . . . carried out by Syria or from her territory," a statement warned.

The attack into Syria — the first since Jan. 24 — came after four days of Israeli operations against Arab guerrillas in southeast Lebanon. Israel claimed about 50 terrorists were killed in the Lebanese operation, which ended Monday.

Today's raids appeared to have the same aim as the attacks into Lebanon — to break up guerrilla concentrations and to force the Arab governments to clamp down on guerrilla operations.

Israel argued that the guerrillas were harassing Israeli positions and settlements with bazookas, mortars and gunfire "with the full knowledge and approval of the Syrian authorities. . . . Terrorist activities from Syrian territory are strictly supervised by Damascus authorities."

The Syrian army was accused of handing over camps to the guerrillas, and training, arming and feeding them. Syrian President Hafez Assad was quoted as telling an Arab newspaper last year — when guerrillas hit Israel 39 times in two months — that "we are strengthening them and spurring them on."

An Israeli communique said the planes bombed guerrilla bases near the Syrian border villages of Sahem el-Golan, El Shagri and Tel Aram, north of Zera'a. Meanwhile, Israeli guns shelled guerrillas tent camps near Jamala, Abdin, Ma'ariya and Musratiya.

NO DOCTOR, SO NO SEX

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Farmers and their wives in the southern town of Quirihue are boycotting sexual relations to protest the lack of a doctor in the local hospital, the pro-government tabloid Clarin reported today.

Clarin said in a front-page story that local officials in the town of 10,000 had refused pleas from farmers to hire a physician for the hospital, which has been without a doctor for three months.

"We have stopped having sexual relations in order to demonstrate our problem to the whole world," Clarin quoted a farmer as saying. The newspaper said farmers planned to seize the hospital unless a doctor was appointed soon.

Latin Nation Idled

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A nationwide strike clamped a stranglehold on Argentina's industry and idled most of the nation for the second day in a row today.

Practically all of the nation's factories, shipping, land transportation and most private commerce were halted.

Called by the country's biggest labor union, the stoppage was said by union sources to be from 97 per cent effective in heavily-industrialized Cordoba to 44 per cent in subtropical Misiones in the north.

In Buenos Aires, the sources said the strike was 80 per cent effective.

Except for scattered minor incidents, no violent clashes between workers and police were reported.

The strike began at midnight Tuesday and was scheduled to end at midnight tonight.

IRA Assassin Squads Kill Two Militiamen

Times News Services

BELFAST (CP) — Terrorist assassination squads shot dead two part-time militiamen today as guerrilla bullets and bombs cut another swathe of terror across the face of Northern Ireland.

The slayings hoisted the death toll to 253 in 31 months and the continued violence left two other men — an army sergeant and a police officer — fighting for their lives after being hit in the head by terrorist bullets.

Amid the shootings, which security forces blamed on the Irish Republican Army, the British government was reported ready to order its troops here to cease intensive interrogation of terrorist suspects. The methods used have brought accusations of brutality.

The British government also was thought to be on the verge of unveiling its long-awaited political initiative aimed at bringing peace to Ulster.

British troops said they captured a top IRA bomb expert crouched in a tiny attic after a tip sent them to a home in Belfast's Andersonstown quarter, an IRA bomb-making centre.

Latest victim of terrorist assassins was Pte. T. J. Fletcher, who was shot down by four gunmen as he climbed into his car outside his home in Garrison, County Fermanagh, only a short distance from the Irish border.

Fletcher died almost immediately as six bullets ripped into his body.

Fletcher was a member of the Ulster Defence Regiment, the part-time militia.

The killing came only a few hours after terrorists murdered 55-year-old Harry Dixon, a sergeant in the militia.

Two hooded gunmen hammered on the door of his home at Lurgan, County Armagh, just before midnight Tuesday night. They burst inside and shot Dixon in his hallway.

The sergeant's 11-year-old daughter was hit in the leg. Police said she looked on as her father died from a head wound.

He is the third militiaman to be killed this year, and the eighth since the current wave of violence started in 1969.

The attacks — and a chain of explosions which wrecked shops and homes — were blamed on the IRA. Forty-six persons have been killed in the last two months.

ATTACKS LYNCH

In Belfast, Prime Minister Brian Faulkner made a bitter attack on his opposite number in the Irish Republic, Jack Lynch.

Faulkner accused the republic's prime minister of "monumental inaction" in dealing with the outlawed IRA.

Faulkner said that as soon as the IRA carried out a particularly horrible attack, Lynch took "a few timid steps" by arresting IRA men in Dublin.

"When the publicity coast is clear, he quietly releases those arrested, or prefers minor charges, and it is 'terrorism as you were' in the republic," Faulkner said.

Line Issue Largest Yet

TORONTO (CP) — Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. announced Wednesday, a new issue of shares totalling $125 million, believed to be the largest equity issue in Canadian history.

The company said it plans to sell 2.5 million $2.65 cumulative redeemable, convertible second preferred shares, series A, each with a par value of $50.

Worley Ignores Car Park Ban

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

City hall officials are furious over repeated refusals by Deputy Travel Industry Minister Ron Worley to have his staff obey city parking regulations.

Commissionaires were instructed to begin ticketing "Beautiful B.C." travel industry cars parking illegally around the Dogwood Building at Fort and Wharf.

Mayor Peter Pollen said today he is writing a letter today to Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan asking that Worley begin obeying the parking rules.

Officials are reluctant to be specific, but traffic engineer Dave Campbell told aldermen Tuesday that repeated attempts to get a change in attitude met with abrupt refusal from Worley, who used tough language.

Police officials refused to acknowledge they were ignored by Worley.

Campbell said provincial government cars have no special privileges for parking their cars in the city.

34 INCIDENTS

A survey during the week Feb. 7 to 11 showed that there were 34 illegally parked cars around the Dogwood Building by travel industry cars and fish and wildlife cars.

Of these, 23 parked illegally for an hour or less; six were parked illegally for between one and two hours, and five were parked illegally for more than four hours.

Campbell said the secretaries of the departments were informed today the ticketing would begin today.

Commissionaires have not been ticketing the cars for about one year because the tickets were simply ignored.

TECHNICIANS BACK ON JOB

By The Canadian Press

Electronic technicians at Toronto International Airport returned to work today following the lead of the rest of the country's technicians who went back Monday or Tuesday.

Technicians at Montreal International Airport returned Tuesday morning and in Halifax, technicians agreed to come back only on a work-to-rule basis. Airport officials said everything there was moving smoothly.

Trudeau Apologizes For Rough Language

TORONTO (UPI) — Prime Minister Trudeau apologized to a mother of five sons today for using blasphemous language in the House of Commons Monday.

The woman, caller to an open-line radio show Trudeau participated in here, asked the prime minister to examine his use of the expression "god damned" as a parent whose child had been baptised.

On Monday Trudeau used the phrase "that is your god damned question" in an exchange with Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

"Is this a good example to the children of the country?" asked the woman, who said her sons ranged in age from seven to 21.

"It's a bad example and I'm really sorry that I used the word," said Trudeau. "And I'm really sorry that so many repeated it on the front pages in headlines."

Trudeau, however, was not entirely apologetic about the matter.

He said there was "a lot of hypocrisy around," citing the use of the expression on the front pages of newspapers and Stanfield's objection that the word in question be deleted from Hansard.

"I agree that one shouldn't use profanity," Trudeau told the caller. "I don't think my grandmother would have liked it at all. But she would have thought a lot of people were hypocrites . . . (people) who pretend to be shocked and use the word themselves."

PROVIDENCE, R.R. (AP) — A forthcoming federal study indicates that persons who drive under the influence of marijuana are more cautious and less aggressive than drivers under the influence of alcohol, the director of the Injury Control Research Laboratory says. The study showed marijuana users had no more accidents, while under the influence of the drug than they had while not under its influence.

Medics Face State Probe

CHICAGO (UPI) — Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has ordered a review of the credentials of all doctors working for the state of Illinois after an investigation opened into the qualifications of a state hospital employee working as a physician in the geriatrics section of a mental hospital in suburban Elgin.

Ogilvie's action followed the suspension Tuesday of Dr. Ricardo Munoz-Velez, 48. Munoz was removed four months ago from all medical duties at Elgin state hospital.

Dr. Daniel Manelli, superintendent at Elgin, said about 200 deaths occurred during a period from 1969 to 1971 in the geriatric section where Munoz was assigned, but that Munoz had primary responsibility for medical care in only 26 of the cases. The Kane country prosecutor's office, in charge of the Elgin area, has announced it is investigating the 200 deaths.

Answers in Due Time—Bennett

By ROBERT OLVER
Times Staff

Premier Bennett, who in recent days has been called a variety of nasty names — "arrogant old man" and "dictator" among them, may simply be misunderstood.

At least that's the impression he gave Tuesday afternoon during a brief interview in the corridor outside the legislative chamber.

"I'm a reasonable man," said Bennett, his face exuding benevolent sweet reason, "but any political leader has to keep 'em guessing."

And if the current opposition is kept guessing a little more than they like, added Bennett, they have only themselves to blame.

"Twenty years ago," said Bennett, "the Liberal-Conservative government was getting some questions from the opposition, and they didn't like them. They asked for and got a ruling from the Speaker wiping out the question period. So that's why they haven't got one now."

PLENTY OF TIME

But, under questioning about his reasons for forcing a 16-hour and 33-minute record-breaking sitting on spending estimates for the attorney-general's department, Bennett indicated that he does try to rise above the loss of the question period.

"They are always complaining about not having enough time to ask questions," said Bennett. "Well, that's not true. We gave them plenty of time then and we are always willing to do it again.

"All I wanted them to approve was the salary for the attorney-general. It wasn't as if I was asking them to approve all the estimates."

And besides, added Bennett, "I always answer, sooner or later, all questions asked in the house. Always."

Then, Mr. Premier, he was asked, will you be telling the house how much is still left of the $273 million paid to B.C. and Ottawa by the United States under the Columbia River Treaty?

"Yes, I will," said Bennett.

When, Mr. Premier?

"In due course," he said. "All questions will be answered in due course."

"You do like to keep them guessing, don't you, Mr. Premier?" said a reporter.

Bennett did not reply. But he smiled and smiled and smiled as he walked away.

DID THEY CHICKEN OUT?

The B.C. Poultry Producers Association may have a little egg on its face today.

The reason: A delegation from the association failed to show today for scheduled presentation of a brief to the standing committee on agriculture under Chairman Donald A. Marshall (SC — South Peace River).

And if they had shown up, they might have had some difficulty getting a hearing from the commitee anyway.

Twenty minutes after the official starting time of 10 a.m., only four of the eight members were on hand. They were H. R. McDiarmid (SC — Alberni), W. L. Hartley (NDP — Yale-Lillooet), L. A. Williams (L — West Vancouver-Howe Sound) and D. E. Smith (SC — North Peace River).

This despite two searches of members' offices by Marshall in an attempt to round up absentees.

At 10:20, when it became evident the poultry delegation would not appear, Hartley moved adjournment.

"There's no point in meeting," he said.

"We don't have to adjourn," said Marshall, "we haven't even started."

The members, what there were of them, dispersed.

Police Misquoted Me—Woman

TORONTO (CP) — A woman who observed an anti-Soviet demonstration last October through binoculars from her apartment said Tuesday night that Toronto police misquoted her as saying she saw police horses jabbed with poles during the protest.

Edna Phillips told an inquiry into alleged police brutality during the visit to Canada of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin: "I didn't say that. There must be some mistake."

The discrepancy was in her affidavit taken by Toronto detectives.

The inquiry was in its 27th day Tuesday, and 2½-hour evenings sessions, to help clear evidence yet to be heard, began Tuesday night.

To date, about 1.8 million words of evidence have been heard about the demonstration outside the Ontario Science Centre Oct. 25, where Premier Kosygin was addressing the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

INQUIRY COST HIGH

Court officials said the inquiry has cost about $100,000 so far, or $6,000 more than the $94,000 bill that the Toronto police department sent to Metro Toronto council for additional protection during the Kosygin visit.

The inquiry, before Judge Anthony Vannini of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., is expected to run into the week of March 6.

Mrs. Phillips, a tenant in an apartment building opposite the science centre, said she watched through binoculars as mounted Toronto policemen moved into a crowd of demonstrators. She said she disapproved of nothing the police did.

Donald Hackenschmidt, building superintendent at Mrs. Phillip's apartment block, said crowds of demonstrators ignored requests to leave the lawns around the building. He said he had never seen a crowd in such an ugly mood.

'DID A GOOD JOB'

Roman Drowarsky, a demonstrator, agreed with a suggestion by Judge Vannini that blows he received when he was pushed forward into police lines might have resulted from policemen reaching to help him as he stumbled.

During the day session Tuesday, a newspaper photographer who covered the demonstration said that "the police did a good job."

Photographer Dick Loek, who covered the event for the defunct Toronto Telegram and now works for the Toronto Star, said the only incident which surprised him was one police officer who rode his horse into the crowd "like a madman, waving his stick."

"I didn't see him hit anyone. He looked like John Wayne the way he was riding. It didn't make sense to me."

In other testimony, a police photographer, Det.-Sgt. Harold Hall, accused television cameramen of inciting the crowd, which he said was peaceful until about dusk.

Telephone Lines Still Damaged

Power shortages in many parts of the Gulf Islands caused by Sunday and Tuesday's storms are expected to be restored by tonight and telephone lines repaired by this weekend.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said except for one area in North Galiano, work crews hoped to restore power in all areas in the Gulf Islands. Many residents have been without electricity since Sunday when gusts over the 70-mile-an-hour mark toppled power poles.

Repair of telephone facilities is slower due to heavy damage from trees which fell across the lines and knocked down many poles.

A B.C. Telephone official said the damage was extensive at Saturna, Galiano and Salt Spring Island.

The problem of repairing the lines was aggravated by Tuesday's storm, he said.

"It undid the repairs carried out on Monday after Sunday's violent gale," he said.

A work crew is on Saturna Island re-erecting several poles and carrying out repairs to lines, while two gangs are working on the damaged lines on Galiano Island, he said.

"We have four crews working on Salt Spring Island, particularly in the upper Ganges Road area where trees heavily damaged the telephone facilities."

He said many cable splices were broken by the trees and have to be replaced by additional pieces of cable.

"We expect most of the services restored by the end of the weekend," he said.

Site Parley Under Way

Superintendents responsible for the administration national historic sites in Western Canada are meeting in Victoria to discuss methods of interpreting Canada's history to the visiting public.

Harry Tatro, of Calgary, regional supervisor for the federal government's historic parks branch, estimated that in 1970 there were more than 750,000 visitors in the 10 major historic sites in Western Canada.

"Museums have historic objects, art galleries have pictures, but we are charged with the maintenance and development of the actual sites because this is where history really happened," he said.

During the seminars, delegates wil visit Fort Rodd Hill for a tour under the supervision of superintendent Jack Rippengale.

LIFEBELT FOUND BY FERRY

A lifebelt from the ill-fated ocean-going tug Haro Straits, that sank near Vancouver in Sunday's storm was picked up by the B.C. Ferries' Queen of Sidney on her 7 a.m. run from the mainland to Swartz Bay today.

A ferry spokesman said it was found "somewhere in the straits".

A two-man submersible is scheduled to probe the depths near Point Roberts where it is feared the tug lies at the bottom, still connected by a towline to the two barges it was towing.

Five men were aboard when she sank.

The submersible Nekton, owned by General Oceanographics of San Diego was to be shipped to Vancouver today.

Two employees of International Hydrodynamics Co Ltd. of North Vancouver, who built the craft, will man her when the probe begins Thursday.

Oil and flotsam that has risen to the surface in the vicinity confirm speculation that the tug is on the bottom.

A shoreline search continued Tuesday for the five men.

Pipeline Price? $5 Billion

WASHINGTON (CP) — A $5-billion price tag, almost double what was estimated five years ago, was placed Tuesday on a proposed pipeline to carry natural gas from northern Alaska and the Canadian northwest to markets in the south.

Wilber H. Mack, chairman of a Calgary-based consortium called the Northwest Project Study Group, blamed delays in start of construction, inflation and other cost escalations, and design changes for boosting the estimated price so far above the original $2.7 billion.

Two inevitable results, he said, would be substantial difficulties in raising the money needed to build a pipeline and steep costs for the gas consumer, perhaps twice as high as the present cost for piped gas and equal in cost to liquified or synthetic gas.

Giving Ride to Stranger Dangerous for Car Thief

BARI, Italy — The 16-year-old was proud of the car he was driving and to oblige hitchhiker Vittorio Meola he took him to the street address Meola gave him.

The address turned out to be that of a police station and Meola turned out to be the man from whom the youth stole the car. The young man was arrested.

EDMONTON — Bob Lipscombe, 82, acquired a bride Monday and as an added bonus picked up 14 stepchildren, 49 grandchildren and 30 great grandchildren.

He married Marcella Guerry, 80, who has been his good friend for 19 years. "We're old age pensioners and decided to get married for companionship," said Mr. Lipscombe. He may have difficulty remembering the names of all his new relations, but his wife shouldn't have much problem. Mr. Lipscombe has only one son.

FLEMINGTON, N.J.—Forty years ago today Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., the only son of the "Lone Eagle" and Anne Morrow Lindbergh, was kidnappped from the family estate at Hopewell, 35 miles from here.

On May 12 of that year a truck driver found the badly decomposed body of the 20-month-old boy in a thicket six miles from the home of aviator Charles Lindbergh. The kidnapping and slaying made headlines throughout the world but it took two years of investigation in this country and overseas before a German-born carpenter, Bruno Richard Hauptmann was arrested, tried for the crime and eventually electrocuted at Trenton State Prison.

SAN JOSE, Calif. — The odds on an adult in California never having heard of Angela Davis must be astronomical, but one turned up Tuesday during jury selection at the murder-kidnap trial of the black revolutionary.

Mrs. Peter Ruth, an attractive young housewife and mother of three who recently was divorced and remarried, told the court that when she learned she had been called for jury duty someone suggested she might serve in the Angela case. "I said, 'who's Angela Davis'," Mrs. Ruth said. "I know I'm not a very good citizen but we don't take a newspaper and I don't pay much attention to such things on television."

ROCHESTER, Mich. — Mrs. Patricia Cochran, a leap year baby 28 years ago, gave birth to a leap year daughter Tuesday.

Amanda Deanne Cochran was born at Crittenton Hospital, weighing eight pounds, eight ounces. Mrs. Cochran's doctor predicted the Feb. 29 due date seven months ago but Mrs. Cochran didn't believe it until midnight came and went Monday. "It's hard just trying to think of it — it's so far out," she said.

CLEVELAND — Oral polio vaccine developer Dr. Albert B. Sabin was in fair condition at the Cleveland Clinic today after undergoing open heart surgery.

Doctors took part of a blood vessel from the leg of the 65-year-old researcher and implanted it in his heart to bypass a blockage in a heart artery. The operation was performed Tuesday morning and took 90 minutes.

WATKINS
. . . to seek seat

TORONTO — University of Toronto economist Melville Watkins, 39, will run for the New Democratic Party in the next federal election in Toronto's Parkdale riding.

Mr. Watkins, a founder of the party's left-wing Waffle group and author of the Watkins report on foreign ownership in Canada, defeated Martin Milanovitch at a nomination meeting here Tuesday night.

WASHINGTON, Pa. — Attorneys began their defence today of Yablonski murder suspect Paul E. Gilly, portrayed during two days of prosecution testimony as an inept killer-for-hire who left dozens of clues at the scene of the Dec. 31, 1969, slaying.

The prosecution rested Tuesday after presenting 34 witnesses and 33 exhibits in its attempt to convict Gilly, a 38-year-old former house painter from Cleveland, as the mastermind behind the murder of United Mine Workers official Joseph A. ("Jock") Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

SAN BERNARDINO — Taxi driver Benjamin E. Gasperaitis pointed to police the first marker on the trail — a pair of shoes.

Gasperaitis said Tuesday two young men robbed him of $7 and fired a shot at him. One of the robbers ran right out of his shoes as he fled, the taxi driver said. About 100 yards from the shoes, police found a coat, and further on, a pistol — then several dollar bills, and then some identification, and then a shirt. Following the trail to its end, police found Roland Williams, 18, who was wearing only his pants and a layer of dirt as he tried to hide in a dirt pile at a construction project, officers said. He was charged with attempted murder and kidnapping.

Death Row Inmates Getting New Homes

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI) — With the death penalty abolished in California, San Quentin prison's death row inmates will be given a new home. For some it will be better and for others worse than their private cells located near the apple-green gas chamber.

Warden Louis Nelson said Tuesday that it would take authorities about a month to sort out the "career troublemakers" and "super-violent types" among the state's 107 formerly condemned convicts.

Most of the inmates will then be sent into the prisons "main-line" population or to other facilities, including minimum security forestry camps.

For some, life on death row was probably better than in the general prison population since they had private cells, a television set for every three men, better food and no work assignments.

Nelson said about a dozen of the death row inmates would "continue to live under conditions of extreme restraint."

"They will probably be joined by some of the super-violent types we now have in maximum custody in the downstairs unit and the whole (death row) building will become a full-time, full-space adjustment centre," Nelson said.

Now that the state supreme court had declared capital punishment illegal in California, about 30 of the inmates, whose terms have become life sentences, will become eligible for parole.

"Which is not to say they'll make it," the warden said.

Accused Cheered

CAIRO — (WP) — Four Palestinian youths who proudly proclaimed in court that they had shot and killed Jordanian Premier Wasfi Tel in the entrance to the Sheraton Hotel here last November were released Tuesday on bail of 1,000 Egyptian pounds (about $2,000) each.

Cries of joy resounded through the courtroom. The youths' relatives wept, and the four defendants shouted "long live justice, long live Egypt! When the presiding judge announced the decision.

Defence lawyers said bail would be paid by the Palestine Liberation Organization. No date has yet been set for the trial. One defence lawyer suggested that the four youths might even be allowed to leave the country to join the Palestine guerrillas fighting Israel while waiting for the case to open, but Egyptian lawyers thought this unlikely.

The decision, though expected, will almost certainly worsen the already severely strained relations between Egypt and the Jordanian regime of King Hussein. In a message of condolence immediately after the killing of the Jordanian premier, President Anwar Sadat had promised Hussein that the guilty would suffer "due punishment."

Pro Athletes 'Slaves'; Civil Rights Law Urged

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

Canada needs legislation protecting the civil rights of professional athletes, Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) told the legislature Tuesday.

Macdonald said the professional athlete is "exploited, bullied, owned and traded at the box office for commercial gain." He said he is saddened by the decline of public participation in athletics as commercial sport becomes more popular.

'CHATTEL SLAVES'

The NDP member told the house hockey players are "chattel slaves" to the club owners who demote them, trade them and promote them at will.

This characteristic of hockey as well as football, he said, causes a breakdown in the freedom of the athlete and leads to the control of sport by "international syndicates."

To fight this condition, he said, many athletes are organizing "jock-lib" movements to win control over their lives as professionals.

Macdonald was speaking during second reading debate of a bill to add $5 million to B.C.'s Physical Fitness and Amateur Sports Fund.

Interest from the fund, which is being enlarged to $15 million under the bill, is used in support of amateur athletics in the province. More than $1.6 million has been paid out since the fund was created in 1969.

Macdonald said he supported the bill but added it must now be followed by either federal or provincial legislation covering the civil rights of professional athletes.

OUT OF ORDER?

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said some people might argue Macdonald's remarks were entirely out of order.

He said the bill under debate has nothing to do with professional sport, but Macdonald interjected that it assists amateur sports which are "raided" by professional leagues.

Peterson said it is better to spend money on fitness and athletic programs for young people than to spend it on their rehabilitation later after they have fallen into trouble.

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer said his party would vote against the bill because it believes surplus funds which make these programs available should be spent on aid to the elderly and chronic care hospital programs.

He said B.C. could continue to make grants to amateur athletics without setting up a special fund.

'FAVOR' FUND

The physical fitness fund, he said, is a "quasi-political slush fund" which can lead to grants being disbursed as favors from the government.

Peterson said McGeer's remarks were an attack on everybody who administers the fund.

Herb. Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) said the government should make some of the fund's money available to capital costs of community sports arenas.

But Peterson said the government doesn't do this because one year's interest could entirely be spent on one ski hill.

Capozzi also said some of the interest should be used for lawn bowling facilities for the elderly.

He called for grants to help prepare Canada's athletes for the summer Olympic Games this year and the 1973 Canada Games in New Westminster.

MATCHING SUMS

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said B.C. should put up $25,000 to be matched by the other nine provinces to fund a training camp for a new national hockey team.

This would be helping amateur athletics, Barrett said, and would assist in restoring Canada's national pride in hockey.

"It wouldn't be enough to pay their salaries," said Capozzi.

Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) who had returned to the house after being suspended last Friday, said the government should upgrade services of the community recreation branch which has only seven counsellors for the entire province.

Herb Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) called for grants to community sports arenas so they could be made available for use by youngsters who are not good enough to play in league sports.

The bill received second reading on a voice vote.

Third reading was given to bills amending the provincial Home Acquisition Act and the Homeowner Grant Act.

Passengers Flying Home — Free

LONDON (CP) — About 100 Canadians were being flown back to Vancouver free of charge today after British authorities questioned the validity of their originally-planned charter flight to and from this country.

The Canadians, due to arrive in Vancouver this afternoon, landed in Britain last month on a plane chartered from Edmonton-based Wardair.

Alan Gaunt, director of European operations for Wardair, said today that on arrival the flight was checked by officials of the British department of trade and industry.

"They concluded that there were a substantial majority of the passengers, they believed were ineligible to travel on the flight," Gaunt said.

In view of this the charter group's flight back to Canada was cancelled and Wardair "promised to return the passengers home at our expense."

Eventually, British officials agreed to a Vancouver-bound Wardair flight provided the line refunded to passengers half of their over-all fare for the trip to this country and back.

"This is in fact what we are doing," said Gaunt shortly before a Wardair jetliner took off from Gatwick Airport near London for Vancouver.

Prior to takeoff, each of the passengers was given a letter from Wardair saying that on arrival in Vancouver they could go to the airline's office there for the refund.

Gaunt said the trade and industry department acted because it became convinced that the charter organization which arranged the flight was not in fact authentic for that purpose.

The operations director added that it looks as if Wardair will have to bear the expense as a result of this.

"We have no way of policing the charter organizers," he added.

FUNERALS START FOR FLOOD VICTIMS

MAN, W.Va. (AP) — Funerals begin today for some of the 71 known victims of a flood that ripped down 17-mile-long Buffalo Creek Saturday.

Crews continued to clean up the flood-torn valley in southern West Virginia and search for more bodies, as thousands of homeless persons lined up at the Man high school to apply for federal disaster aid programs.

State Health Director Dr. N. H. Dyer declared the area, filled with debris and mud, a public health and safety hazard to prevent the spread of disease.

Health officials have been giving typhoid shots to residents of the Buffalo Creek hollow.

"I think 99 per cent of the people want to go back," Mayor Rayman Herman said Tuesday as bulldozers plowed their way through the debris that once was 16 coal camps along the creek.

Where 5,000 persons once lived, National Guard troops estimated only about 1,000 remain. None has utilities and many are bunched together in hillside houses which escaped the floodwaters.

Some 200 persons are still unaccounted for, but the number fluctuates as refugees come down from the mountains, where they fled.

Two newspapers reported today the U.S. Geological Survey warned five years ago that 30 West Virginia dams constructed of coal mine wastes were unstable or could be breached by high water.

The Charleston Gazette and the Louisville Courier-Journal also reported that 100 federal coal mine safety inspectors started an investigation Monday of all coal waste dams in the eastern Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia.

WAC Error Ends Night Sitting

The man who prides himself on his mastery of the legislature lost control briefly Tuesday and accidentally sent MLAs home early for a change.

Normally the house would sit on Tuesday night, but at 6 p.m. Premier Bennett moved adjournment until 2 p.m. today.

Before Speaker William Murray or anybody else fully realized what had happened, Bennett's motion was approved. Surprised at his own error, the premier quickly moved to rescind the vote.

DENIES 'ERROR'

After some moments, Murray ruled the motion could be withdrawn only by unanimous leave of the house. Leave was asked, but the New Democrats yelled "No."

"I think that shows a very narrow attitude," Bennett said. Then he moved the house "do no adjourn."

The NDP, remembering how Bennett refused to prevent the marathon all-night sitting last week, smiled across the floor.

Outside the house, a smiling Bennett denied all suggestions he'd made a simple mental error. He said he had been considering whether to hold a night sitting on Wednesday rather than on Tuesday.

Bennett promised the house would sit tonight. Observers began making bets as to how long this sitting will be.

SECRETARY WANTS 'HANGWOMAN' JOB

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI) — Anita Chuan, a leggy, 19-year-old secretary, has applied for the job of hangman — or hangwoman — in the neighboring island republic of Singapore.

Miss Chuan, a Malaysian girl of Chinese origin, said today she believed she could do the job which for centuries has been a male preserve.

"Why not?" she said. "I believe that you only have to pull a lever to do the job."

Although her working experience up to now has been as a secretary in Kuala Lumpur, she said "I have always wanted to see the rest of the country. I could be part-time executioner in Singapore and get a secretarial post in nearby Johore Bahru across in Malaysia.

"Besides," she added, "executions are only carried out in the mornings."

The advertisement for a part-time executioner for the prison department appeared in local newspapers.

Jail Breaks Nearer

Minor offenders sentenced to jail would be allowed to serve their time on weekends, through the provisions of a bill approved in principle by the legislature Tuesday.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, introducing the measure to the house, said the purpose of it will be to allow family breadwinners to remain "productively employed" while paying their debt to society.

Opposition leader Dave Barrett praised the government for introducing the bill, and claimed credit for first proposing such reforms to the house.

But he said they should be extended even further, providing for prisoners to be charged room and board while in jail, and making criminals fully responsible to their victims for recompense.

Peterson replied that the government already has made some provision in this direction. For example, he said, prisoners in provincial jails who at present work outside the institutions are charged for their accommodation.

The bill also provides a mandatory 30-day licence suspension on first conviction for drinking drivers, and a mandatory six-month suspension for second offenders.

Still Split On 'Rock'

MADRID (UPI) — Spain and Britain agreed today they still have their differences, real and difficult, over the status of Gibraltar.

In a joint communique released today, British foreign secretary Sir Alex Douglas-Home and his Spanish counterpart, Gregorio Lopez Bravo, agreed to further talks on Gibraltar "in a constructive and realistic spirit."

The British minister ended two days of talks with Lopez Bravo Tuesday under a 1967 U.N. resolution calling for Anglo-Spanish talks on resolving their claims to the 2.5-mile square "rock" at Spain's southern tip.

Gibraltar's population of 26,000 have declared their support for British rule of the enclave ceded to Britain in the early 18th century.

TAX TIPS FOR YOU

Tips for filing your 1971 income tax are provided Times readers in co-operation with the department of national revenue.

Q. My wife and I have a joint bank account. The payments into the bank account are made by me since my wife has no private income of her own. The T3 slips are made out in our joint names. Should I still report the interest income on my tax return, including it with my income?

A. All of the bank interest must be reported as your income since your wife's share of the money on deposit came from you.

* * *

Q. I have reached the age of 70 and have been paying into the Canada Pension Plan and therefore I should be able to draw money from the pension plan. Am I allowed to claim my pension even though I am self-employed?

A. Yes, you are now entitled to draw money from the Canada Pension Plan. The fact you are self-employed and have other income does not affect your eligibility to claim your pension. In order to make your claim you should get in touch with your nearest Canada Pension Plan office of the department of national health and welfare.

Q. Our son has hearing trouble and we have to take him each week to a speech clinic where he has to have special treatment from a speech therapist. It costs us between $4 and $5 a week travelling back and forth to the clinic. Can we claim a tax exemption for the cost of transporting our boy to the clinic and back every week?

A. No, you may not claim for the cost of transporting your son to and from the clinic each week. The only amount you may claim is the monies paid to either the doctor or to the clinic for the actual treatment your son receives, providing these services are not covered by government hospital and/or medical insurance plans.

'Downhill All the Way'

If the provincial government's purpose in amending the Social Assistance Act is to stabilize the welfare system and inspire public confidence it could not have chosen a worse way to do it.

One effect of the amendments is to put administration of the system under the "absolute discretion" of the Minister, who at present is Mr. P. Gaglardi. Long years of Mr. Gaglardi's political career in British Columbia have convinced the public that Mr. Gaglardi's discretion, if any, is certainly more comparative than absolute.

His autocratic replies and actions since he became Rehabilitation Minister — to say nothing of his earlier record in other cabinet posts — are strong in the public mind, and a shudder must have gone through the welfare-dependent part of British Columbia's population at the news of the latest government step.

One effect of the proposed legislation will apparently be to emphasize that no effective resort may be made to the courts in appealing a government decision in respect of welfare. The cabinet will set the regulations, Mr. Gaglardi will decide who is eligible and for how much. As Mr. Gaglardi has been wont to say on occasion: "It's downhill all the way."

While the Minister may disclaim the powers of a dictator, there is no other way to describe the effect of the legislation as it will stand if the bill carries. Vast power over finances in a humanitarian field has been given to a man who does not arouse much confidence even among his colleagues. The Social Credit government is increasingly displaying the picture of an administration sliding toward a brink. The cabinet is in an obvious flap on many matters — as witness, for example, Attorney-General Peterson's incredible handling of the tobacco advertising ban — and we may expect further tension and internecine competition in the days to come.

One sorry casualty of the welfare amendments — if they confirm Mr. Gaglardi in his portfolio as they appear to do — may be the plan for regionalization of all welfare and related services in the Greater Victoria area. This program was approved by the Capital Regional Board and the municipalities after long preparation, and promised a much needed streamlining of services to end duplication and lack of co-ordination. The project has lain on Mr. Gaglardi's desk for months, despite favorable views by many persons in his department, awaiting his absolute discretion.

A Short Line for Trolling

The possibility that Vancouver Island's West Coast trollers may be required to fish only within the 12-mile limit, with salmon hauls on the high seas forbidden, has brought a natural reaction from the men in the industry. Their spokesman, Tom Barnett, the NDP federal member for Comox-Alberni, sees the proposal as likely to cause wholesale disruption in the lives of the people of Port Alberni, Bamfield, Ucluelet, Tofino, Kyuquot and Winter Harbor. He adds that restriction to waters within the 12-mile limit would deny to West Coast trollers about 75 per cent of their most productive coho troll fishing and about 40 per cent of the spring troll fishery.

Theoretically, there appears to be some logic to the suggested 12-mile limit and prohibition of high seas fishing for salmon. Surviving salmon will eventually come within the 12-mile area on their way to natal streams to spawn. Within that ribbon they would be Canadian fish, exempt from harvest by outsiders other than Americans, for whom special provisions are proposed. But the merits of the plan are apparently not convincing to the trollers. They evidently believe they can enjoy a longer, more productive season if they are allowed to fish farther afield.

The scheme revives arguments in favor of extending exclusive fisheries limits for Canadians to the outer edge of the continental shelf, which reaches in significant areas far beyond the 12-mile limit. Continental shelf jurisdiction is a principle to which a number of South American coastal states adhere, claiming control over waters 200 miles from their respective coasts.

The present concern of the British Columbia trollers reminds us of the social and political background to the fishing industry on this coast. Science is making advances toward establishment of the salmon industry on a fish-farm basis. Within a few years it may be possible to hatch, rear and harvest B.C.-spawned fish in enclosed waters, never allowing them in regions accessible to foreign fishing fleets. Provided sufficient clean water can be impounded or fenced off for this purpose and a source of inexpensive feed can be found, the development is conceivable.

But, a major question arises: What will happen to the fishermen of today? Will they, like old soldiers, merely fade away? The concern expressed on the West Coast in respect of the proposed limits for trollers indicates that the fading, if any, will not be a quiet process, or one divorced from important political considerations. A way of life is at stake.

". . . oh, haven't you heard? . . . Phil got promoted . . ."

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Unendurable Vacuum in Policy

OTTAWA — According to the ablest Liberal politician of my acquaintance, this year's election in Canada will turn on bread-and-butter questions — the grand, unsolved enigma of inflation and unemployment. Such abstract issues as constitutional reform, bilingualism, foreign policy, the Just Society and the nation's so-called "life style" of the future will be played down, or not played at all if they can be avoided. Or, as my informant puts it, "only the gut issues will count."

No doubt this is true, but it raises a more interesting question: Will the gut issues be fought by gutless politicians? Apparently they will. For the most obvious fact in all the pre-election tumult is that no political party has yet dared to face the real bread-and-butter problem. But a moment of truth will come soon after the election, by the year's end at latest.

It would be charitable, far too charitable, to say that the government and the opposition do not understand what is happening to the nation's economy, its bread and butter. Being literate, and able to read simple figures, they can see that an explosion of costs is sure to produce an explosion of prices and yet fail to cure unemployment.

Wages Boosting Prices

They can see also, because the figures are set down in the government's own budget papers and the Bank of Canada's reports, that wage increases over the last several years are responsible for about 75 per cent of the price increase.

But neither government nor opposition is prepared to recognize this plain arithmetic, explain it to the people or even mention the figures until the election is safely past. All parties are terrified of the labor union vote, forgetting that most of the workers, active or in the poverty of retirement, are unorganized and helpless under the inflationary juggernaut. Nevertheless, they have enough votes to swing any election.

Why the government's deflationary measures failed in 1969-70 and were reversed in panic; why the whole Keynesian theory of stable prices and full employment has collapsed in action; why all the Western nations are in a bind unforeseen by their experts; and why the industralized world confronts a brand new and unique dilemma — this is too long a story for telling here.

In Canadian politics, as distinguished from economics, the story is almost absurdly simple — our politicians realize that a big crunch is coming but hope that it will not come before the polls close. Meanwhile there is no plan, in any party, to meet the crunch.

How serious will it be? Nobody knows, of course, because the wage-price equation has yet to feel the fallout of President Nixon's Phase Two, and also the unforeseeable consequences of the new worldwide currency and trading arrangements. It is certain, at all events, that Canadian retail prices will rise fast this year, probably as fast as the staggering 1971 rate of five per cent.

Dr. Andre Raynauld, the new chairman of the Economic Council, hopefully expects a rise of four to five per cent. Other economists, equally competent, assume a rate of six per cent or more. The argument of exact statistics, however, is unimportant when even the lowest inflationary rate now in sight must be intolerable. It leads, as Prime Minister Trudeau used to say before he faced a dubious election, straight to "disaster." And in official Ottawa everyone knows it.

Possibly the facts can be hidden for a while yet in electoral rhetoric and vague promises of future remedies. Given a little bit of luck, the price index may be temporarily curbed. But by autumn, lacking any policy to deal with the post-Keynesian riddle, Mr. Trudeau's foreseen disaster will be clear to the most ignorant citizen, as it is surely clear to him now.

Like President Nixon (whose adventures in economic controls will be reported here later), Mr. Trudeau finds himself caught in a monstrous paradox.

Worse Than U.S.

With one hand the president is inflating the American economy by budgeting for huge deficits and printing money to pay them. With the other, he struggles to hold down prices. He has lighted a fire, to heat up economic growth, and tries to contain it under a thin blanket of inflammable plastic. The Canadian government has not enforced even the president's mild curbs and the results, as calculated in prices, have been worse in Canada than in the United States. Not long from now, incidentally, those results will begin to damage Canada's vital foreign trade.

So the fire burns, without consuming the sodden mass of unemployment. That is the main, though not the only, reason why the government plans an early election before the heat passes the point of public endurance. Then the fire department will be summoned in one form or another — perhaps direct price-wage-profit controls, more likely a final appeal to business managers and labor unions for restraint, with the threat of controls if they refuse.

Such is the present strategy, and a pretty cynical one on all sides of politics. But it could be changed by uncontrollable events in advance of the poll. The government may take fright and postpone the election until fall. Or if the price index keeps rising at recent rates the government may be forced to level with the public, admit the truth, earn the nation's confidence and frame a policy which the opposition, having none of its own, will doubtless attack as unworkable. So it may be, but in the meantime the vacuum of policy is becoming unendurable.

China: The Philosophy Gap

WASHINGTON — It will be surprising if President Nixon or anybody else in his official or unofficial party came back from China unaffected by their experience in that country. For China has a way of making its visitors think about the organization and purposes of life, and comparisons, while odious, are unavoidable.

Much that one sees in China is obviously troubling and even hateful in American eyes. Here, one feels, is what Walter Lippmann calls "the ancient order of things when the whole of men's existence, their consciences, their science, their arts, their labor, and their integrity as individuals are at the disposition of the rulers of the state." And yet not quite.

Mao Tse-tung's four rules of discipline are rigid:

"1. The individual is subordinate to the organization; 2. the minority is subordinate to the majority; 3. the lower level is subordinate to the higher level; and 4. the entire membership is subordinate to the Central Committee."

The China system of "democratic centralism," again defined by Chairman Mao, is more flexible, and sounds not unlike Spiro Agnew's lectures to the American press or Nixon's advice to the anti-Vietnam Democratic Presidential candidates.

Freedom and Discipline

Freedom and democracy, Chairman Mao says, are the two opposites of a single entity, contradictory as well as united, and both essential. "Within the ranks of the people, we cannot do without freedom nor can we do without discipline; we cannot do without democracy nor can we do without centralism. This unity of democracy and centralism, of freedom and discipline, constitutes our democratic centralism . . ."

Nobody in the President's party will have time to test these Communist guidelines, but despite its authoritarian system China obviously has a manner, a purpose and an ideal that touches something deep in the American spirit.

On the surface at least, both discipline and freedom are evident in China. It is no accident that Lin Piao, Chairman Mao's chosen constitutional successor, didn't show up for the talks, or that there were no crowds to greet Nixon at the Peking Airport. Yet subordinate officials do talk up freely in China and the general atmosphere is certainly not one of a resentful or intimidated people.

The official Chinese manner toward Americans, unlike the contentious attitudes of the Korean talks, is correct, calm, and patient. Chou En-lai, with his cool straight eyes, talks not only about China and the United States, but about centuries and civilizations and the future of the human family.

MAO TSE-TUNG
. . . four rigid rules

The Chinese purpose is plain enough. Chou En-lai didn't invite Nixon to Peking to conduct a class in moral philosophy.

He is concerned about the unity of his country (with Soviet troops on his northern border and the American troops in Southeast Asia); the future of his country in relation to the rising power of Japan.

It is said that opposites attract, and this is undoubtedly true of Americans in China, if not the other way around. The Chinese are so plain that they make us feel fancy, and even self-indulgent. There is no ostentation, even in the Great Hall of the People. Their noisy propaganda is even more irritating than our singing commercials, but there are no cosmetics, no conspicuous waste, no elaborate trash, and very little glint or glitter.

No doubt some of the Americans in Peking will find this too uniform and even drab in comparison to the rush and hurry and color of the spectacular American costume party, but to others the austerity of China must seem a relief. Certainly China does not fit our stereotypes of the flamboyant and inscrutable Orient, or Chairman Mao's warrior propaganda about all power coming out of the barrel of a gun.

All this sounded very ominous from far off, but once in China, it must be hard for Americans to think of any people with more preoccupying problems at home or of any soldiers who look less like invading conquerors than the Chinese.

Virtue Ignored

It is odd that our young "Maoists" in the United States concentrate on the violence and ignore the virtue in the Mao cult. It is, to be sure, virtue by compulsion, and it is a revolutionary creed, but it is only in China that one realizes why they emphasize that they are seeking a "cultural" revolution — a philosophical ideal that will destroy the acquisitive materialism of the West.

The Chinese do not deny that there is a great confrontation in the world between the United States and China, but they see it, not as a confrontation of armies and military power, but as a "confrontation of societies," of ways of life, and they believe that their system of democratic centralism will in the end prevail.

For they do not believe in the natural goodness of man, they do not believe that the free societies of the West can combine freedom and discipline without compulsion, and sometimes we wonder ourselves. Accordingly it will be odd if Nixon and his party don't come back thinking a little more about this new "confrontation of societies," which is probably the oldest confrontation in the history of human conflict.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Sour Dream

I read with great interest the article by Anthony Lewis "He turned the dream sour".

I think that Mr. Wilson has been a great tragedy for the Labour Party in Britain and in spite of his undoubted brilliance he has brought the Labour Party into disarray and disrepute by his lack of basic principles. Sincere men like Attlee, Cripps, Gaitskell etc. must turn in their graves to see Mr. Wilson destroy a party which gave great hopes of a happier Britain as stated by your writer.

I was in Britain during the summer of 1971 and I found in my many talks with people in all parts of Britain the distrust and dislike of Mr. Wilson and it is only to be hoped that he will be replaced before he destroys the party altogether.

I can only disagree with Mr. Lewis on one point and that is his contention that Mr. Wilson erred in not using force against Rhodesia. Such a step would not have been acceptable to the average Briton and the same would apply here in Canada in case Quebec elected democratically to secede from Canada. I do not believe that the average Canadian would be prepared to use force against Quebec and I am quite sure that no Government in Britain — Conservative or Labor — would have dared to take such action.

A moderate Labor Party, as envisaged by men like Attlee, Cripps, Gaitskell, etc. would have remained in power in spite of the great economic pressures which would have been and were exerted by the financial world interests against any left-wing government however moderate. The great tragedy of course was the early death of Hugh Gaitskell. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 1680 Poplar Ave.

Use Your Vote

So it appears there is a good possibility of a provincial election this year.

As a working family man, and one of the majority that is the unknown quantity at the polls, I predict that the Social Credit government will lose 10 seats at least, three being from Vancouver Island.

May I urge everyone in B.C. to make sure they are on the voters' list as soon as possible; and this letter is especially directed to all young people (from unemployed to university students) who can be a great influence in utilizing their vote after 19 years of age. This also goes for the elderly, sick, and those in nursing homes who could lose their franchise.

All apartment residents, who do not receive the homeowner grant, but just $4 per month, should also register — in fact all people should accept this great privilege of registering, and especially vote when the time comes.

May I, as an ordinary voter, suggest voting for the most dedicated candidate in your riding of any of the three parties other than our present government.

As we needed Social Credit to clear the political mess of 1951-52, now we need another broom to bring in fresh air and a recognition that B.C. citizens, along with our future descendants, should have health, employment and virgin parklands, instead of being relegated to a very poor cousin of uncontrolled big industry. There is room for both people and industry under new government. Please vote.—Garnet L. Young, 1431 Richardson St.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of March 1, 1912:

Although the herring season which closed yesterday cannot be said to have been as successful as the preceding years, the packers at Nanaimo shipped some 12,000 tons. Owing to the fact that herring did not commence running until late in the season the fishermen were hopeful that the closing date might be set at about the middle of March instead of the end of February, but packers are surprised that the season was not closed earlier as the fish have been spawning for the past two weeks.

Another Dust-Up Ruffles Feathers in Snarlingtown

By PETER DESBARATS

BROCKVILLE — This prosperous Ontario community of 20,000 souls on the banks of the St. Lawrence River, midway between Toronto and Montreal, was such a political battleground in the nineteenth century that it was popularly referred to as "Snarlingtown."

The latest skirmish snarled to a close last month in the high school auditorium at Gananoque, 30 miles up-river, when the Liberal association of the federal riding of Leeds elected a new executive. The election climaxed several years of bitter antagonism between supporters and opponents of Prime Minister Trudeau within the association.

* * *

Internecine snarling broke into the open last Jan. 15 with the public resignations of about half of the 28 members of the association's executive. The dissidents were led by Tom Cossitt, a wealthy 43-year-old insurance agent who was president of the association and had managed seven federal campaigns in Leeds for the Liberals, and 70-year-old George Fulford, heir to a patent medicine fortune (built up partly on phenomenal sales in the early years of this century of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People) and three-term member of Parliament for Leeds until he was defeated in 1957.

It was a classic "revolution of the generals" on a small scale with Cossitt and Fulford claiming to speak for the common man of Leeds against the rank-and-file of their own association. The dissidents were in retreat after the association mustered almost 500 people for its election of a new executive in Gananoque, but the dispute will make it difficult for Liberals to gain the seat that they lost by only four votes in 1968.

The implications for the government are much broader than that, which was one of the reasons for the presence of Finance Minister John Turner at the meeting in Gananoque.

George Fulford is a vigorous man cast from a mold that happens to be unfashionable at this time. He talks like Teddy Roosevelt. If he is asked whether anyone still buys Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, he replies that export sales are particularly strong in Switzerland and (guffaw) the Republic of South Africa. There is a sign on the outer door of Fulford's office: "Ici on parle Anglais."

* * *

The Union Jack flies over the headquarters of the oldest Orange lodge in Canada on Brockville's courthouse square.

The political sentiment that has crystalized in Leeds in the past few weeks is far from being quaint or irrelevant. The strength of this sentiment in other constituencies across Canada could be a prime determinant of the government's future in the next election.

The sentiment has many components. The most obvious and most frequently discussed in my conversations with Cossit, Fulford and other Leeds constituents, was an intense, personal dislike of Prime Minister Trudeau. Two principal explanations for this dislike are usually offered: that Trudeau is arrogant and dictatorial, and that he is anti-American and sympathetic to communism. Often the subject of bilingualism is not mentioned at all unless there is a specific question on this point. Once it comes into the conversation, there is always an immediate claim that people in this part of Canada are not "anti-French" and that anti-French feeling has nothing to do with anti-Trudeau sentiment.

But the federal cabinet ministers who are singled out for criticism, in addition to Trudeau, are invariably and exclusively those from Quebec.

Although everyone denies it vehemently, at least in the presence of an outside observer, there is an element of racism in the current political mix in Leeds. It is rooted in the history of the region and, there is every indication, if the "revolution" within the Liberal association means anything at all, that it will play a more important role in the coming federal campaign than it did in 1968.

The anti-Quebec element of the forth-coming election campaign that no one wants to talk about — the element that is present in every Canadian election in varying degrees — has materialized this year in Leeds somewhat ahead of schedule.

It has many people wondering what it means for the country.

* * *

What is the relationship between the anti-Trudeau sentiment in this part of Ontario and the political concerns expressed by "the bigot who happens to run the government" in British Columbia? The prime minister's unfortunate remark in Ottawa was being widely quoted by his opponents in Leeds.

At the Gananoque meeting,

FULFORD
. . . only pills are pink

Finance Minister Turner tried out a few Liberal responses.

While he maintained that "it is in the interests of national unity that the language percentage of the public service more nearly reflects the population of the country," he promised "more flexible definitions of bilingualism" in the public service.

He also tried to reassure his audience with statistics showing that the "invasion" of French-speaking Canadians into the public service is very slight — an interpretation not often heard in 1968.

* * *

Turner also indicated that the Liberals intend to meet accusations of "arrogance" head-on. He referred directly to the FLQ crisis of October 1970 to illustrate the "deep physical and moral courage" of the prime minister.

"He's a man of forthrightness," said Turner, "Sometimes maybe too forthright.

"He's a man of frankness — but he's made politics more relevant to more people in this country than any man has ever done before him."

After the noisy quarrel with the Liberal association here last month, this was a statement that no one in Leeds would have disputed.

Getting The Word In China

By TILLMAN DURDIN

Billboard readers of People's Daily in Peking

HONG KONG — As a recorder of what is considered to be news outside China, Jenmin Jih Pao (People's Daily) would win no laurels.

This prestigious chief organ of the Peking Government makes no attempt to report daily events either at home or abroad.

Jetliners crash, heads of state are assassinated, uprisings break out, Governments are overthrown, top officials in China are purged, but get no mention in Jenmin Jih Pao.

The paper has not yet reported that Pakistani troops surrendered to India in Dacca last December, that Parliament has voted Britain into the Common Market, that a man has walked on the moon or even that China's own deputy national leader, Lin Piao, has been purged from office.

But as a barometer of what the people of China are doing and what their Government wants them to think, the paper is indispensable and vastly revealing.

The purpose of Jenmin Jih Pao is, in fact, propaganda, aimed at inducing the Chinese people to work hard, live right and fulfill the aims and aspirations that the Government has for China.

Produced in Peking but circulated through the country, Jenmin Jih Pao's six pages every day are filled mostly with articles about exemplary work performances on farms and in factories, successful but incessant campaigns against cunning class enemies and the evil revisionist tendencies of "political charlatans" like former Chief of State Liu Shao-chi. It also reports on progress in educational reform in a commune in Szechwan, about the need for mutual respect between the Army and the people, and the necessity for cadres to consult with and work among the masses.

Big official public events get coverage in the form of textual reports of speeches, a meticulous recording listed according to rank of who was present and of what well-disciplined mass turnouts did, sang or shouted.

Foreign reportage, usually on inside pages and taking much less space than domestic items, deals with such things as continuing victories by the Communist side in Vietnam, the deteriorating economy in the Soviet Union, a labor strike in Britain, the burgeoning gains of Communist-led movements abroad and the evil plunderings of American capitalism in Latin America or the Philippines.

Occasionally there are editorials, the most important written by a high official and signed "Commentator," laying down the Government's domestic policies and attitudes toward developments abroad.

If the government is emphasizing some particular campaign or program at a given time, much of the paper can be given over to articles and reports in connection with it.

Just how Jenmin Jih Pao is produced and operated is not general knowledge. The editor is thought to be a man named Lu Ying, but this is not certain, and no information on his background is available.

The paper is known to operate under the close guidance of the propaganda section of the Communist party, but just who runs this operation since it was disrupted during the Cultural Revolution is not public knowledge.

The circulation is understood to be about two million daily, but the paper's readership is many times that number. It is kept and read by groups and is used in classrooms, political indoctrination session, and is posted on public billboards.

Jenmin Jih Pao is one of four dailies in Peking. The others are Kwang Ming Jih Pao (Bright Light Daily), which tends to concentrate on cultural topics; Chieh Fang Chun Pao (Liberation Army Daily), which is almost as authoritative as Jenmin Jih Pao but carries more material about the armed forces; and Peking Jih Pao (Peking Daily), a paper specializing in topics mainly about Peking.

Musings of an Ex-Candidate

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — Recently I shared an experience that has come to several men who cover Ottawa politics. A party riding association asked if I would like to be a candidate in the coming federal election.

It came just as some of us were teasing Peter Reilly, the ex-Seven Days, ex-W5 commentator, about his candidacy for the Tories in Ottawa West and about the roguish, sharp-tongued attack on Mr. Trudeau he delivered for Bob Stanfield on the CBC's the Nation's Business. We were foretelling for Reilly all the slogging a candidate faces, and then, if he should win, the burdens of office.

Peter Reilly thinks the burdens of office are likely to be a lot easier than the trials of the campaign. In any case, my memory can recast the experience of both campaigns and holding a seat.

No matter how much I let nostalgia gild the past, the invitation to compete was not hard to turn down. At least it wasn't after I met two present MPs and each had shown me the constituency problem then engaging him.

The following excerpt from a letter clearly states a question. "I am writing you concerning my problem here. I am a widow with four children. I have no water in my home, have an indoor pail toilet which along with other slops must be emptied every day. I have a toilet at the back of my lot which is getting to the point where it's over-full now.

"My problem is where can I empty this. Only thing I can think of is in the alley. I am on welfare and on this a person can only exist, not live. Would you please give this matter your immediate attention, as things are getting to the stage where I am at a loss. I can't dig a new hole as I have a heart condition and no extra money to hire someone. Would appreciate hearing from you regarding same for sanitary and convenience of all. Water and indoor toilets are a must."

How would you handle that problem? The MP is going to arrange for the hole to be dug.

The other MP has been asked for his views on a pamphlet published by the Federal Health Department. The minister is John Munro. The pamphlet is titled: "Sex: what should I tell my child?" It seems to be one in a series on child training distributed for parents.

There are a number of points in this leaflet where I could see persons of both old-fashioned and modern opinions bridling but the passage which was brought to the MPs attention was this:

"Masturbation is a very common problem in the adolescent of 12 to 20. Feelings of inferiority and frustration are often the cause, and parents should discourage the habit by adding more affection and more satisfying activities to the child's world. The more satisfaction he gets from the outside world, the less he will seek them in himself. Make sure, also, there is no physical reason, such as defective circumcision or unclean sex organs. Wholly false stories of insanity and blindness resulting from masturbation may worry him to the point of much mental suffering. Often, relieving him of the worry will lead to the reduction in the habit itself."

Is that good advice? Is it the kind of advice the government should be spending skills and money on?

The MP suggested that it was John Munro's problem more than his.

I'd sooner it be his or Munro's rather than mine.

Sing a Song of Chopsticks

RUSSELL BAKER

After the country had seen President Nixon eating dinner with chopsticks in Peking the other night, John Mitchell, formerly the Attorney General, now Secretary for Re-election, placed a long-distance telephone call. The President lifted the phone. The conversation went as follows:

"Hello. This is the President speaking."

"Mr. President, John Mitchell here."

"Chun Mit Chow? Do I know you, Chun? You're not one of my interpreters by any chance?"

Not Chun, Mr. President. John."

* * *

"You will have to be patient with me, Chun. I'm still having some trouble with your Chinese names. Are you on Chairman Mao's staff?"

"It's John, Mr. President . . . John! . . . John Mitchell!"

"Martha's husband?"

"Yes, Mr. President."

"Oh. Well, John, I'm always glad to talk about my re-election, of course, but couldn't it wait until I get back? I'm right in the middle of a mah jongg lesson now. You never know, of course, but I want to be prepared in case Chairman Mao asks me if I'd like a little game of mah jongg when we get together down in Hungchow. Hard work at preparation pays off, John. Take chopsticks. They laughed the other night when I sat down at the chopsticks, but you should have seen their faces when —."

"That's what I wanted to talk about, Mr. President."

"Chopsticks?"

"Could you see your way clear to forgetting the chopsticks from here on in and going back to the good old American knife and fork, Mr. President?"

"I don't understand, John. Pat and I spent a lot of time mastering those chopsticks. A lot of time, John. Just as I am spending a lot of time right now mastering mah jongg. Hard work has always been my way, John, as you know, from the days when I was a poor but honest law student at Duke burning the midnight oil and —."

"That's wonderful, Mr. President, but I wonder if we shouldn't also ask ourselves a question. Would George Wallace use chopsticks? And if he did, would he still be able to carry Alabama and Mississippi?"

* * *

"Between us, John, I think the answer to both questions is negative, but I cannot spend my entire Presidency trying to carry Alabama and Mississippi. I think that once in awhile — just once in a rare while, John — I'm entitled, as President of the United States, to go off to China and use chopsticks without worrying whether it's going to cost me Mississippi in the next election."

"I can understand your feelings about this, Mr. President, but —."

"Listen, John, it's not easy to use chopsticks, are you aware of that? It takes practice and hard work, and when you master it, John, it makes you feel like a better American because you have demonstrated your faith in the work ethic."

"Mr. President, I'm not saying anything against the work ethic. All I'm saying is—."

"Do you know what a feeling of satisfaction it can give you, John, to be able to show the whole world that you can eat shark's fin with chopsticks?"

"I can't get you to go easy on the chopsticks then?"

"John, there is more to being President of the United States than carrying Alabama and Mississippi."

* * *

"Could I persuade you, if Chairman Mao asks you to play mah jongg, to come right back at him and say, 'How about a little game of poker, Mr. Chairman?'?"

"John, will you leave the statesmanship to me?"

"Could I put out a rumor, Mr. President, to the effect that you will never appoint a Supreme Court Justice who uses chopsticks?"

"John, why don't you relax? Take a week off and unwind a little. Go down to Mississippi and lie in a swamp. Soak up some grits. And while you're down there, John, start thinking of the next surprise we can pull on the Democrats."

"I've got an idea on that, Mr. President. It's a whole new approach to the busing issue. First off, we legalize slavery. Then—."

"John," called a woman's voice at the Washington end of the line, "are you going to gab all night? Hang up and let me use the phone."

"Ciao, Mr. President," Mitchell said.

"Pung, John," said the President and went back to his mah jongg tiles.

Fines, Jail Proposed For Refusing Empties

Merchants who refuse refunds on soft drink empties will be liable to fines and imprisonment under amendments to the Litter Act introduced in the legislature Tuesday.

A bill to amend the act, introduced by Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan, provides a maximum prison term of six months or a $500 fine or both upon summary conviction.

$100 PER DAY

If the offence continues, the bill says, the fine may go as high as $100 a day for each continuing day.

The bill also removes loopholes from the original Litter Act of 1970 which allowed retail outlets to refuse refunds on the grounds that recycling depots would accept the containers.

The amendments require a merchant to make refunds at his store but also continue to permit the depot system to operate.

Kiernan indicated last fall these amendments would be made after a court case involving a Canada Safeway Ltd. store was dismissed in Victoria provincial court on the grounds that the act did not specify a retailer's liability and provided no penalties.

Kiernan said outside the house the bill makes it clear that a store selling a certain brand of soft drink must give a two cent per item refund if the empites are brought back to the store.

Stores may refuse to make refunds on brands they do not sell, he said. Merchants may refund as many containers a day per customer as they wish, he said, but must accept up to 18 empites per day from a customer.

PLASTIC TOO

Kiernan said cabinet regulations will likely be passed later this year increasing the limit to two dozen containers per day from one customer.

The bill also permits the cabinet to make regulations changing the amount of money which must be refunded. It covers plastic as well as glass and metal containers.

"The industry actually is playing around with plastic right now, so if the plastic containers come in tomorrow we are ready for them" Kiernan said.

Some stores have been making refunds on brands they don't sell for less than the two cent per item price, Kiernan said.

Under the amended act, they must give refunds at two cents per item if they are to make the refunds at all.

CAN REFUSE

The bill says merchants don't have to refund smashed, rusted or dirty containers, but damage necessary to open the container is not to be considered sufficient to refuse a refund, Kiernan said.

He said he is recommending to retailers that they buy machines to crush containers so they will occupy less space and "so that there will be no question they have been refunded."

He said there is some evidence that people were collecting containers from garbage dumps and trying to recycle them a second time.

The act does not require government liquor stores to refund empty liquor bottles. These outlets now refund beer bottles under the act.

Kiernan said the government is still studying whether to make liquor bottles refundable. He said only about 30 million bottles annually are involved, compared with between 350 million and 400 million soft drink and beer containers.

HEARING AID BILL

The government Tuesday introduced a bill to the legislature which will ensure that hearing aid dealers comply with the Hearing Aid Regulation Act.

Minister Without Portfolio Isabel Dawson, who introduced the bill, said outside the house it will amend the act to ensure that dealers complete necessary forms, pay the required fees and measure up to education standards called for by law.

The government was criticized earlier this session for issuing hearing aid licences to dealers without being able to ensure they met standards set by the act.

Ad Sparks Replies, Not Lighters

LONDON (WP) — "I guess England needs all the lamplighters she's got," Gordon Thorpe, an official of the city of Seattle, Wash., mused over the transatlantic phone. "Especially right now. But we only want one lamplighter, and we only need him for about five days. Surely that is not going to make your power crisis worse?"

Thorpe spent a recent week placing advertisements in newspapers around the world, looking for a lamplighter to "do just 20 minutes work" at the top of the Space Needle, a 620-foot-tower in downtown Seattle left over from the 1962 World's Fair.

"We have had replies from grandmamas in Scotland, sewer workers in Amsterdam, curates in Stockholm, deep sea divers in Canada — but no lamplighters," he said.

All the applicant has to do is to light 10 gas-fed candles, each 16 feet high, at the top of the needle on April 21. That is the tenth anniversary of the needle's official opening by President Kennedy.

Seattle's advertisement states that the job "is not dangerous, but does require a head for heights." Thorpe said the man selected would be flown across, given "excellent expenses — he might even be able to bring his wife," feted an an official reception, "interviewed by the press" and paid about $300.

"We know there are lamplighters in London and elsewhere in England, and we just cannot understand why we haven't heard from anyone.

Mrs. Mary Macrae, who described herself as "a Glasgow grandmother afraid of nothing," was one of the first to enter the lists. Thorpe said Mrs. Macrae "would go out and get lessons in lamplighting from an old friend of hers and be across on the first jet.

From Amsterdam, a group of sewer workers who — for some as yet unexplained reason — read that city's Lamplighter Gazette ("just for the retired lampman and his family", wrote back saying they would felcome the chance to "prove we are just as good a long way above the ground — and the clean air would be nice.

From Norway, two curates offered their services. "Close to God and we have had much experience in mending weathercocks on top of church steeples."

"But not one lamplighter — and we do so much want a real English one, with the whole gas lamp image," Thorpe said, sounding a little sad.

WHAT, ME WORRY

COVENTRY, England (AP) — A summons threatening court action for overdue payments on a car never worried Fred Burrows. Fred can't drive. He doesn't even own a car.

And he couldn't read the summons anyway. Fred is only four years old.

Besides, he is a law-abiding Burmese cat.

His owner, Dorothy Burrows, said letters have been coming for three months demanding that Fred Burrows clear up a debt for a car purchased on the instalment plan. Finally, a summons arrived.

"The debt has nothing to do with me or my husband, John," Mrs. Burrows explained. "It certainly has nothing to do with Fred."

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 16-year-old juvenile was given a suspended sentence and placed on two years' probation in provincial court Tuesday on two counts of breaking, entering and theft.

The boy pleaded guilty to stealing a shotgun, tape recorder and $5 cash from two homes on Fernwood Dec. 31.

Judge William Ostler reminded the accused that the probation was on adult terms, meaning he could be brought back to court and charged with a separate offence if probation were breached — "not just the slap on the wrist you might get" from juvenile court.

★ ★ ★

David Alexander Hogg, 21, of no fixed address, asked for an adjournment to seek legal aid when he appeared on eight charges of uttering forged cheques worth a total of $215 in January and February.

But when his father refused to act as surety for Hogg's release on bail and he was remanded in custody to March 7, the accused changed his mind, reappeared before Ostler and pleaded guilty to all eight counts.

Hogg told the judge he "used to have" a problem with drugs which had led to the offences. He was remanded to March 14 — in custody — for pre-sentence report and sentence.

★ ★ ★

Lynda Podligorny, 19, of 1605 Rebecca, pleaded guilty to forging the name of the owner and cashing a $98 welfare cheque after she stole it from a mailbox Feb. 2.

Ostler remanded her to March 14 for pre-sentence report and sentence.

★ ★ ★

Gordon Allen McLaughlin, 53, of 1355 Lyall, was committed to B.C. Supreme Court for jury trial on a charge of arson following a preliminary hearing.

★ ★ ★

Karen Pankhurst, 17, of 1474 Derby, pleaded guilty to possession of stolen property Feb. 18 — a $70 stereo tape deck which she had bought for $30. She was remanded to March 15 for pre-sentence report and sentence.

★ ★ ★

In Judge E. E. N. Robinson's traffic court, Dr. Lloyd B. MacLaren, 53, of 2915 Gilbert, was fined $350 and given a partial three-month driving ban for driving while impaired Jan. 22 on Sooke Road.

★ ★ ★

A collision on Hillside, Feb. 5, in which damage to the auto was $700, led to a driving conviction of Violet Evans, 39, of 2263 Musgrave. She was fined $300 and given a partial three-month driving ban for driving with a blood-alcohol content of more than .08.

★ ★ ★

John Raymond Parris, 19, pleaded guilty to failing to remain at the scene after his car was involved in two accidents on and near a hotel parking lot in which damage totalled $400. He was fined $150 and prohibited from driving for two months except for work purposes.

MPs End Throne Speech Debate With Snarls

OTTAWA (CP) — At a peak of partisanship, the Commons ended its eight-day throne speech debate Tuesday with MPs on both sides of the House lunging at opposing throats.

The political heat had mounted steadily throughout the debate, following the ritual speech that sets out government plans for the new parliamentary session that began Feb. 17.

The session is expected to be the prelude to a federal election this year.

Before the debate closed with an informal voice vote, party leaders, nine ministers and scores of MPs ran through issues ranging from local, parish-pump problems to federal language policy and the future of the economy.

In the closing hours Tuesday, Transport Minister Don Jamieson called the whole thing anachronistic, then launched an attack on the Opposition that earned the biggest Liberal applause of the session so far.

Mr. Jamieson accused Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield of kissing off the issues with "casual and offhanded" generalizations and cliches.

He said New Democrat Leader David Lewis had been sanctimonious and appealed to prejudice by noting that Prime Minister Trudeau had never had to "scramble for the rent."

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker earlier added his own verse to the political performance, accusing Mr. Trudeau of riding through Montreal on a motodcycle during the Second World War wearing a Nazi helmet "to tease the RCMP."

As prime minister, he was denigrating the RCMP along with the monarchy.

NOTES MARCHAND'S JOBS

He also was exhibiting dastardly behavior toward Washington, Canada's bastion against communism, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

His attack ranged over an array of government acts, including Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand's dual job of collecting funds for the Liberal party and handing out money to industries.

The twin roles were endangering Parliament itself and could not be condoned.

Firms getting funds from the government were being put in debt to the Liberal campaign chest.

Mr. Diefenbaker's charges followed a partisan, well-heckled speech by Mr. Marchand, in which he accused the opposition of filing blanket charges about the regional expansion program without citing specific failures.

"I have," retorted New Democrat Ed Broadbent (Oshawa-Whitby). "Read the damn questions in the record."

David MacDonald (PC—Egmont) called Mr. Marchand's speech a cheap political performance.

U.S. Deserters Backed by Vet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The war veteran father of a deserter who fled to Canada says failure to grant amnesty to deserters and draft evaders who refused to fight in Vietnam will double the number of men the Indochina war has cost the United States.

And other friends of those now in Canada or in jail told a Senate judiciary subcommittee Tuesday that draft resisters want an apology for unjust punishment, not forgiveness for crimes they don't believe they committed.

Rev. Alexander Wilson, a Presbyterian minister from Burgettstown, Pa., testified that when he volunteered for the army in the Second World War "deserter was the dirtiest word I knew." But "I learned another definition from my son," he said in relating the young man's decision to become a "conscientious" deserter and flee the country.

"We have lost to Canada about as many men as we have lost killed in Vietnam," Wilson said.

Mike Hendricks, a representative of the American Refugee Service and the Montreal Council to Aid War Resisters, said a bill sponsored by Senator Robert Taft (Rep. Ohio), offering amnesty conditioned on the acceptance of alternative civilian service is no answer.

"It is designed to pacify the American people, to rid them of their guilt for this brutal war and to erase Indochina from the American conscience," he said.

Timothy Maloney, a former exile in Canada whose indictment for refusal to accept induction has been dropped on a technicality, said American exiles in Canada want "a completely non-punitive restoration of their civil liberties."

Brothers Blast Mountain Snow

REVELSTOKE (CP) — Weather data, intuition and 105-millimetre howitzers are the weapons two Austrian-born brothers use to keep nearby Rogers Pass safe for winter travellers.

Both the Trans-Canada Highway and the Canadian Pacific Railway follow the 27-mile pass between Revelstoke and Golden, B.C. Steep mountainsides, rising above the highway and railway make any winter passage a hazardous one.

The culprit, of course, is snow, and Fred Schleiss, senior avalanche forecaster for the federal parks branch, and his brother Walter are on duty 24 hours a day, seven days a week through the winter months to prevent disastrous snow slides.

They gained their avalanche experience in the Austrian Alps before coming to British Columbia in 1958.

Using his 60-40 principle — "60 per cent facts, 40 per cent intuition" — Fred Schleiss decides when and where a dangerous build-up of snow in the mountains could threaten motorists and rail users.

The facts come from a weather centre at the 6,300-foot level on Fidelity Mountain and from a series of unmanned stations throughout the pass. The type and amount of snow, the direction and speed of wind and the temperature are monitored.

Once the decision to shoot down a build-up of snow is taken, a team of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery gunners is sent into action.

Almost every day throughout winter, the gunners fire their big howitzers, at $63 a shot, into the high mountains of the pass. Last year more than $147,000 was spent on shells.

Target positions are pre-determined and the gunners shoot at targets they cannot see.

Not only does the shelling bring down snow which would eventually cause a major avalanche, Fred Schleiss explains, it also packs loosely-settled snow.

There are other lines of defence in Rogers Pass as well.

Huge concrete snowsheds, covering a total of a mile of highway, are situated at points where the most serious avalanches occur. Avalanches simply roar over the snowsheds and into the valley below.

Big mounds of earth have been dumped above the highway to slow avalanches, and trenches dug near the highway are designed to alter their course.

FIRST FLORIDA FARM PACT SET

MIAMI, Fla., (AP) — Cesar Chavez announced Tuesday that his United Farm Workers union has reached a precedent-breaking three-year contract with the Coca Cola Co.

The contract covers both full-time and seasonally-employed workers at Coca Cola's foods division, Chavez said.

He said the pay for a full-time worker would be increased to $2.35 an hour from a minimum of $1.80 while top scales would go to $3.70 from $2.25 an hour.

Chavez said the agreement affects 1,200 agricultural workers in Florida.

"This is the first farm workers contract in Florida and we are proud of this contract," Chavez said. "The Coca Cola people were very enlightened about a union idea and negotiations were honest and fair."

Refinery Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — A $6,471,300 contract for construction of a tanker wharf for Golden Eagle Canada Ltd.'s refinery at Come By Chance, Nfld., was announced today by the federal public works department.

A consortium of firms was awarded the contract: Ne-Namara Corp. of Newfoundland Ltd., J. P. Porter Company Ltd. of Montreal and T. H. C. Gorman (Nova Scotia) Ltd. are to build the dock and trestle structure under the direction of the public works department office in St. John's, Nfld.

Total cost of the oil terminal is not expected to exceed $20 million.

Construction under the contract is scheduled for completion by July 15, 1973.

Federal contracts awarded for the terminal construction now total $8,680,841.

Holland Closes Ontario Office

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Securities Commission hearing into the operations of the Montreal-based brokerage firm of Holland, Andrews, Perrier and Co. and several of its employees ended quickly today when the firm announced it is closing its operations in Ontario.

The firm's lawyer said the decision was made because of the financial drain on its resources by expensive and complicated litigation in Quebec.

He stressed that the firm was not in financial difficulty and that the decision to close the Ontario operations was made voluntarily. He said the firm likely would reapply for registration in Ontario after completion of the various actions in Quebec.

Real Estate Group Launches New Weekly Featuring Homes

A new weekly paper serving the Victoria real estate industry will appear Thursday for free distribution to 50,000 homes.

Victoria's Pictorial of Homes is the title chosen by the Victoria Society of Real Estate Salesmen for their tabloid-size, 12-page publication which they hope will keep their advertising costs down and make direct contact with the home-buying public.

The publishers are a recently-formed society who have representation on Victoria Real Estate Board.

Spokesman Giff Calvert said the pictorial is not intended to compete as a commercial journal. It will carry largely photographs and descriptions of houses for sale, no classified ads and a limited amount of editorial content.

* * *

Similar papers are published in other parts of the country, noted editorial committee chairman John Barton. But these are usually put out by real estate boards, he said.

By publishing their own paper, salesmen will attain a direct contact with prospective buyers, exercising their own control over advertising, the spokesmen explained.

There also will be a lower cost of production for a given amount of advertising outlay, and although it is a non-profit undertaking, any money realized will be spent on professional education programs for members of the society.

* * *

Barton said there would be no advertising from outsiders, other than firms and institutions associated with real estate, such as insurance companies, banks, mortgage and trust companies.

Editorial material will consist of financial and statistical items like borrowing rates, how the B.C. second mortgage plan works, how to obtain a propety mortgage and similar subjects.

The society is doing its own page composition and engaging others to do the printing and circulation.

Union

Union Oil Co. of Canada Ltd. earned $9.8 million ($2.04 a share) during 1971 compared with $6.1 million ($1.28) in 1970.

Gross revenue rose 17 per cent to $47.8 million.

Villacentres

Villacentres Ltd., which operates nursing homes across Canada, had a net income of $523,221 (52 cents a share) during 1971.

The year before, the firm earned $381,946 (38 cents).

Gross revenue in 1971 was $3.6 million, up 43 per cent.

Vic. Mortgage

An 8 per cent bonus on expiring debenture issues of Victoria Mortgage Corp. Ltd. will be continued for at least three more quarters, reports president Douglas Hawkes.

The company this year began the system of bonuses to provide for an undiminished flow of income for debenture holders faced with reduced interest as short term commercial rates declined.

Rates paid for new funds are 8 per cent for five years and 7¾ per cent for periods under five years.

The company's surplus fell back from $33,969 to $27,818 in the last quarter.

BNS

A 48.5 per cent rise in net profit from 35 cents a share to 52 cents is reported by Bank of Nova Scotia for the quarter to Jan. 31.

Actual balance of profit was $8.7 million compared with $5.9 million, while balance of revenue was $29.77 million ($20.16 million).

Assets reached a record $7.3 billion, up $897 million from a year earlier.

Appropriations for losses and income taxes, deducted from balance of revenue, were not detailed.

Holiday Inns

Record revenues and earnings for 1971 are reported by Holiday Inns, Inc.

L. M. Clymer, executive vice-president, said earnings before extraordinary items for the year ended Dec. 31 were $140 million, up 10.5 per cent from $36.34 million.

Share earnings were $1.36, an increase of 5.4 per cent from $1.29.

Extraordinary income totalled $1.5 million, compared with $540,189 in 1970, and revenues were $707.87 million, an increase of 17.1 per cent from $604.55 million.

Corp. Foods

Toronto-based Corporate Foods of Canada has sold its interest in United Biscuits (Canada) Ltd. to United Biscuit Holdings Ltd. of Scotland.

The company imported products from Scotland and operated a bakery in Toronto.

Niagara

Net income of $1.07 a share rose to $1.38 after an extraordinary gain due to income tax reduction in three quarters of 1971, reports Niagara Wire Weaving Co. Ltd.

Sales were off 7 per cent, a reflection of a depressed pulp and paper industry, but net income was $659,978 compared with $366,150 (76 cents) after an extraordinary loss of $64,000 in 1970.

Neonex

A 63 per cent rise in operating earnings gave Neonex International Ltd. $3 million in net profit last year, equal to 88 cents a share against $1.84 million (27 cents) in 1970.

Sales amounted to $146 million, up 14 per cent from $128 million the previous year.

Not counted was a net extraordinary loss of $188,000 (three cents) from liquidation of assets, compared with an extraordinary loss of $8.1 million in 1970.

Evans

Evans Products Co. last year increased net earnings by 62 per cent for a total $18.99 million ($1.78 a share fully diluted), compared with $11.7 million (85 cents).

Revenues totalled $726 million, up from $591.4 million, a 23 per cent improvement. Cash flow also rose, from $25.22 million to $33.2 million, and working capital from $100 million to $149.8 million.

The company looks for increased activity in all it's market areas during 1972.

'WE CAN LIVE WITH NEW RULES'

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — The Alyeska Pipeline Co. says it "can live with" the U.S. interior department's proposed stipulations for the Trans-Alaska pipeline and plans "to abide by them."

The reaction came after study of a revised version of the stipulations the interior department says it intends to impose on the pipeline planned to move crude oil from Alska's North Slope to its southern coast at Valdez.

An Alyeska spokesman said changes in the proposed stipulations make them "probably the most stringent stipulations that ever have been placed on any project."

FINED PACKERS

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada Packers Ltd. was fined the maximum $1,000 Tuesday in provincial judge's court when it pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to report the marketing of a regulated product under Alberta legislation.

Provincial Judge Carl Rolf, the senior provincial judge, in setting the fine, said he was assessing the maximum because of the size of the offence.

Evidence produced by the crown showed the firm raised, processed and marketed 17,000 broiler chickens without having the required quota or permit from the Alberta Broiler Growers Marketing Board.

Judge Rolf was told that in bypassing the provincial legislation, the firm failed to pay the required fee of 1-5-of-a-cent-a-pound for each bird raised on its farm at Crossfield, Alta. during 1971.

BANK SUED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Northlode Explorations Ltd. launched a $451,085 suit against the Bank of Montreal in British Columbia Supreme Court alleging the money was withdrawn from its account without proper authority.

The mining company alleges breach of contract between June and October, 1969.

LONDON 'GOLD'

VANCOUVER (CP) — An arbitration board has awarded London Drugs $359,279 for the expropriation of its store on Main Street to make way for the new Georgia Viaduct.

The board awarded the drug firm $350,000 compensation for the unexpired term of its lease on the property, which had four years to go, and $9,279 for "disturbance."

The expropriation took place in July, 1969.

London Drugs owner Sam Bass originally claimed $2.6 million and the city offered $11,416.

EXTEND CREDIT

TOKYO (AP) — The cabinet authorized the government-sponsored Japanese Export-Import Bank to extend credits to finance exports of equipment to China.

The cabinet's action, after months of delay, apparently was due to Japanese businessmen's fears of United States competition as a result of President Nixon's trip to mainland China.

Indians Use Rare Rule To Claim Pipe Land

OTTAWA (CP) — Through a rarely-used parliamentary device, the Old Crow Indians, of the Yukon Tuesday claimed as their own some 66,000 square miles of the territory.

Their petition of claim, signed by Chief Charlie Abel and band councillors, was handed to the clerk of the Commons by Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon).

Nielsen, a keen student of parliamentary procedure, said in an interview the government has only three courses to follow. It could either acknowledge the claim, call the chief and his band council to the Commons to uphold it, or send it to a committee.

The Whitehorse lawyer said the Indians filed the claim because of recent statements from several cabinet ministers that pipeline studies now going on in the Canadian North will determine not whether they will be built but how they will be built.

One of the proposed routes goes through the so-called Old Crow flats, part of the land claimed in the petition.

Nielsen said the petition should make the government realize that it must settle land claims in the North before going ahead with pipelines.

Mr. Nixon Swings It: Watch for the Encore

Being some unplanned political notes gathered under a lemon tree beside a California swimming pool:

★ ★ ★

An engrossing time to be in these United States since it's a period that history may recall as the re-making of a president.

Whether it was mainly a political move in an election year or not, President Nixon's days in China are generally viewed as a personal triumph and a sure-fire guarantee that come November, he'll return to the White House in a breeze.

There's simply no better way to get a fast sampling of public opinion than to spend a few days in a resort motel. In this particular one, in California's Palm Desert, our neighbors were from seven different states, about equally divided in their adherence to the Republican and Democratic parties and incredibly open in telling a stranger their views.

A Canadian is left with the deep impression that, above all else, the average American admires a winner and at this moment in time Nixon is all but conquering hero.

"I've never liked or trusted the man," an insurance salesman from Illinois confessed characteristically, "but you can't take this away from him. He pulled it off."

★ ★ ★

Talking with these Americans, in the relaxed atomosphere that invited a free exchange of ideas, may have the effect of reassurance for a Canadian often alarmed or bewildered by the state of affairs in the U.S.A.

At this face-to face level you find a genuine desire to be fair-minded and a willingness to make new judgments on fresh evidence.

There could be no better demonstration of it than in the massive public re-assessment that's gone on since Nixon's China adventure.

These are people who, for better than 20 years, have been saturated through the mass media by a hostile, one-sided coverage of China as an enemy state in which Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai were cast as satanic villains. While Britons or Canadians were exposed occasionally—all too occasionally, I fear — to more realistic reportage, it seems clear that the average American simply was denied any continuing chance to make an informed, individual assessment.

Now, in the space of less than a week, press, radio and television abruptly hurled a whole new concept at the American public. Here were the old China hands of the state department in living color on millions of television screens freely volunteering that the isolation of China was a bone-headed blunder in policy-making by the United States. Here was the news, fairly reported, of the solid achievements in the years of China's revolution. Here — most startling of all — were Mao and Chou in the poses of engaging elder statesmen amiably breaking bread with the most opportunistic capitalist of the western world.

What seemed both astonishing and gratifying to us in that California motel that I began to see as a microcosm of America was that our neighbors were so willing to absorb and weigh this new information.

There was, curiously, no rancor expressed against the various media for their failure to provide that information before Nixon's initiative. Only a recognition that, like the first astronaut's landing on the moon, Nixon's landing on China soil had opened a new world to be understood.

★ ★ ★

And if Nixon, like the Illinois insurance salesman, has never liked or trusted Nixon, I left California with a grudging new respect for him and a conviction that, if only for pragmatic political reasons, he will soon speed up the American disengagement from Vietnam.

I base this speculation entirely on that sampling of opinion around a California swimming hole.

If Nixon anticipated the overwhelming approval he's earned for the China visit he is truly something of a genius in assessing the reaction of the American voter, a talent that most political pundits say is uniquely his.

If that's true, then he must know, better than any man in the U.S.A., that there's a tremendous hunger in America, far more than you'll find mirrored in the newspapers, to end every form of involvement in Southeast Asia.

This goes much deeper than I would have thought. Those Americans who gave us their frank views have gone far beyond any qualifications of pride or dignity or face-saving in getting out. They are, in various degrees, wearied and ashamed of what they now consider a hopelessly lost cause, if it ever was a cause. When the subject of American draft-dodgers in Canada came up it was astonishing to find respectable middle-of-the-road Americans saying: "I don't blame them a bit. That's where I'd be."

That feeling is surely registering now on the president's supersensitive political barometer with an election just nine months away. The China success is going to carry him back anyway. But a meaningful response to that longing to pull out from Vietnam will make him one of the great winners of all time and he is just the boy to know it.

Hopes Dashed for B.C. Money

Letter From Campbell Disappoints City

Victoria can expect little provincial money for Inner Harbor greenbelt acquisition, or underground wiring, according to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

Campbell's statement was contained in a letter to city hall answering a Feb. 16 request for information about the fund from Acting Mayor Percy Frampton.

Despite the fact that the provincial government gave second reading to the bill providing greenbelt funds for municipalities in the legislature Tuesday, Campbell says the government has established no plans for administering the aid to cities for greenbelts and underground wiring.

Premier Bennett announced in his February budget that $25 million was being made available from surplus funds for greenbelt acquisition. Another $10 million was to be made available for underground hydro wiring.

Victoria's request for underground wiring aid is tied in with council's plans to improve Wharf Street urban renewal area.

Frampton's letter to Campbell said, B.C. Hydro estimated the Wharf Street underground wiring project could cost about $3 million.

Campbell's return letter also stated that the funds' "Terms of reference have not been established," adding that no provincial cabinet minister has been appointed to administer the fund.

The city is more likely to receive aid, according to Campbell, through the power line beautification fund.

Meanwhile in the legislation, opposition MLAs flayed the $25 million greenbelt fund, calling it too little and too late.

The comments came when Resources Minister Ray Williston introduced the legislation in the house for second reading.

(The bill establishes authority for such a fund but does not spell out its use.)

Williston said the government will not expropriate land for the purpose of establishing greenbelts.

Some people, he said, have already offered land to the government for preservation.

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer attacked the fund as a possible tool for the use of the province's crown corporations, which he said are the "biggest despoilers of land" in B.C.

He said his party will oppose the bill because it is in favor of the greenbelt concept.

Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) called it a "vague and piecemeal approach" to the principle and suggested it represents "a palliative thrown in" to appease the conservationists of the province.

"I support these few struggling steps by this government along a path they should have long pursued," he said.

Debate on the bill was adjourned without second reading approval.

PO Harry Holm, 43, of HMCS Rainbow, downs rum ration.

Her Majesty's 'Groggy' Navy Totters Into Sober Present

By PAT DUFOUR

A naval tradition that had its beginnings in Nelson's day goes down the hatch March 31.

That is the day that Canadian sailors will draw their final tot of demon rum.

From then on it will be bar service in various messes aboard ships just as in their counterparts ashore.

★ ★ ★

How did it all begin?

Was the daily rum tot a way of injecting fighting spirit into fighting men?

Was it a way of rewarding services rendered?

Such reasons could boggle the imagination but the truth must be told.

It was simply a matter of expediency.

In Nelson's day water aboard ships, even in casks, wouldn't keep.

So Her Majesty's Navy fought their battles on a diet of wine or beer, usually at the rate of a pint per man per day.

Sir Martin Frobisher, who made his mark in the North-west Passage wasn't indulging in humor when he said:

"We'll sail as long as the beer lasts!"

What other alternative was there, except to gamble on ample rations of rainwater or melted snow?

Warships in those days, like their modern sisters, were always short of stowage space so the Royal Navy looked around for a substitute.

They tried brandy.

In the late 1600s Jamaica toppled and the island's most famous export was pressed into service by the RN.

★ ★ ★

Seamen were issued a pint a day, split between lunch and supper. Boy seamen had to be content on half this amount.

For obvious reasons Admiral Vernon in 1740 ordered the skippers and surgeons in his West Indies squadrons to make recommendations on the way in which the rum was to be issued.

The result — a watered down tot — two parts water to one part rum.

It was the admiral who wanted less fight in his fighting men that gave the name to the new mixture — grog.

★ ★ ★

Vernon was known to those below decks as "Old Grog" because of his penchant for wearing clothes made of grogram, a rough silk resembling mohair.

The name stuck.

The suppertime ration went by the board in 1824 when tea became a staple aboard ships.

In 1850 the ration was reduced to the present half-fill or tot. Officers lost their daily issue in 1881.

In 1971, "splicing the main-brace" became a thing of the past in the RN.

Soon, too, the centuries-old tradition will die here—buried with "round rigs" and other ghosts of the past.

Builder Refuses Highrise Chop

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

An "inflexible and uncompromising" developer has poured cold water on city hall's attempt to scale down the View-Quadra apartment complex.

Following an afternoon meeting with developer George Mulek on Tuesday, Mayor Peter Pollen said city hall is unable to persuade Mulek to alter his original plans.

Mulek's plan is to build a companion tower to the 19-storey apartment building at View and Quadra, and a floor level commercial area containing a food supermarket and other shops.

Mulek tower, completed last year, has been greeted with almost unanimous dismay at city hall because of its drab appearance.

The development is also too concentrated and dense for the size of its site, city hall contends.

"Mr. Mulek has been entirely inflexible and uncompromising," Pollen said today.

"Council looks on the development with a great deal of concern and dismay, but we haven't been able to reach any modification of the project."

Pollen said he called for a review of the project last month because of the "incredible density" of the development.

INSISTING

"Mr. Mulek has insisted upon the project as originally conceived," Pollen said.

The second tower was to be for "sophisticated residential" apartment living, although now Mulek is planning condominium units and hotel space.

Mulek has argued that the second tower is crucial to making the project economically viable.

The first tower was built as a limited dividend project with federal mortgage aid and profits are not expected to be made until the project is completed.

Pollen said Mulek "insists that (the second phase) has always been merely the completion of one building."

"I am strongly opposed to it, as are a majority of the members of council — because of its inordinate size, and because of the present building's lack of esthetic quality."

BUT HOW?

"But we are at somewhat of a loss as to how to get Mr. Mulek to compromise and scale it down."

Members of council met in committee of the whole Tuesday afternoon and evening to discuss the upcoming bylaw which will restrict further downtown building in size and height.

Pollen said some fears expressed over the impending bylaw are unfounded because council will retain the right to allow certain building to exceed the limits under the special development legislation in 702A of the B.C. Municipal Act.

The use of 702A must be agreed to by both parties in a development, and the developer must tie specific plans to the title on the land in use.

CHRETIEN COMING FOR FORUM

Jean Chretien, minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, will be a key speaker at a public information forum on parks and land-use at the Newcombe auditorium next Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Chretien, in charge of national parks, will speak on the national parks system, including plans for developing the new Pacific Rim National Park.

Sponsored by the Victoria Sierra Club, a conservation organization, the forum will discuss the Nitinat Triangle controversy.

The issue involves Tsusiat, Hobitan and Squalicum Lakes which conservationists want included into the national park. The proposal is opposed by the B.C. logging industry.

Rick Careless, chairman of the Victoria Sierra Club, and other speakers have been invited to attend. Slides and colored movies will be shown.

"We hope that all people interested in preserving the last three wilderness lakes on Vancouver Island will attend the forum," he said.

DRIVER PULLED OUT OF CAR IN RIVER

Quick action by a member of the Cowichan Indian Band saved a Duncan man, from drowning early this morning after his car crashed off Tzouhalem Road into the Koksilah River.

RCMP said Lorne Ketch, 32, of 2574 Lewis St., Duncan, was rescued by Colin Jimmy, who lives near Klem Klem Alutz Bridge on Tzouhalem Road.

Jimmy heard the crash about 2:20 a.m., rushed to the riverside for his boat and rowed 300 yards downstream where Ketch's car had come to rest on a gravel bar.

He pulled Ketch from the partly submerged car.

Ketch is in Cowichan District Hospital suffering from shock.

10-Day Drive For Schools

Some 25 parents, representing about half the schools in Greater Victoria, Tuesday night hammered out a 10-day plan of action to promote the school board's March 11 $412,000 spending referendum.

Dr. George Stocker, who held the meeting at his house, said the group will attempt to hold information meetings at every school in the district between now and the referendum.

He said the group, which decided to call itself School District 61 Parents Association, will also set up tables at the open houses scheduled by schools during Education Week next week in efforts to inform parents of the costs involved in the referendum.

To get every school involved, letters will go out to every principal to name a parent delegate to the new association.

The referendum follows provincial government reduction by 2 per cent of allowable spending by school boards. If the referendum fails to gain 60 per cent approval, $412,000 will have to be cut from the 1972 budget.

Stocker, who is association president, said that "we support every move towards lower costs, but we do not support government moves of starting to fight inflation with the education of children."

He said that since the cost of the referendum would be less than $10 a year for a taxpayer, which will be more than taken care of by the increase this year in the homeowner grant, from $170 to $185.

Pollution Countdown: 1,100 . . . 800 . . . 600

There's a belief prevalent these days that young persons are hot on anti-pollution, but this was shakened Tuesday when Oak Bay Senior Secondary held a day-long environment teach-in for its 1,100 students.

When Ecologue '72 started off with a general assembly in the morning about 800 students were present, and as the day wore on with a variety of panels, the attendance diminished to about 600, estimated Marshall McCall, one of the main organizers of the student-sponsored event.

"We're sort of disappointed," he said. "We expected a lot more students to come."

Attendance, as on any ordinary school day, was compulsory.

Principal D. A. Voth declined to discuss how he was going to deal with the mass truancy but said "those who were here were the winners — those who weren't were the losers."

Ecologue '72 was planned and organized by Students for Environmental Rescue (SFERE), and because of this it was "a success before it ever started," Voth said.

The program put on by the students was ambitious, and the turnout percentage of speakers and panelists — some 93 of them — was much better than that of the students. Most notably absent were Social Credit government members, Mines Minister Frank Richter and Esquimalt MLA Herb Bruch, NDP Opposition Leader Dave Barrett, Liberal Leader Pat McGeer, and Mayor Frances Elford of Oak Bay.

Teachers, engineers, architects, environmentalists, community leaders, representative from industry and many levels of government talked on a wide variety of panels.

Some of the topics included air pollution, pesticides and wildlife, politics and pollution, transportation, urban and suburban planning, and waste disposal and litter.

One student participant suggested that the student turnout would have been worse if the program hadn't been so good.

"Everybody thought it was going to be boring, and were going to take off, but they ended up staying here," said Minoca Fiederer, 17.

Bob Botterell, 15, a moderator on one panel, said "students didn't have enough to say" but "didn't get bored."

For himself he gained "a better awareness of the problems inherent in getting things done" in regard to pollution.

TWO HURT IN BLAST

Two men were hurt today when an explosion wrecked a basement heater in the Dogwood Building at Fort and Wharf.

A plumber and his assistant were treated for minor burns and released from hospital. They had been working on a gas water heater when the blast occurred. Damage was slight.

Stars Step Two Up On Talent Raiders

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota North Stars have gone two up on Minnesota Fighting Saints in the hockey war to sign players.

The North Stars, of the established National Hockey League, announced the signings Tuesday of star right winger Bill Goldsworthy and U.S. Olympian Jim McElmury.

Both players had been drafted by the Fighting Saints from St. Paul of the new World Hockey Association.

Goldsworthy, heading for his third straight 30-goal season, has been pursued for two months by the Saints, who said Tuesday they were withdrawing from the bidding.

"I can't understand why they would try to make me look bad by saying they had withdrawn their offer last week," said Goldsworthy.

"They offered me more money but I always felt my first obligation was to the North Stars."

He signed for three years.

McElmury, a defenceman who helped the U.S. team win a silver medal in the Winter Olympic Games at Japan, signed a contract for this season and the next two years.

Jim Adams, president of the Saints, said the team's executive council had voted to withdraw from the bidding last Thursday but did not make the announcement until Tuesday "to leave Goldy in a good bargaining position with the Stars."

Wings Drub Canucks

By The Canadian Press

Condition, which Detroit coach Johnny Wilson has stressed since taking over the National Hockey League club several weeks into the season, reared its head early Tuesday night and wasn't really a factor.

The Red Wings scored early and often in an 8-2 rout of Vancouver Canucks to move along into fourth place in the East with 65 points, two ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs. Both teams now have played 64 games in the 78-game schedule.

The Leafs, who appear to have shed their recent tailspin with two successive wins under interim coach Frank (King) Clancy, are in action tonight at St. Louis against the Blues.

Elsewhere, Buffalo Sabres visit Montreal Canadiens, California Golden Seals are in New York against the Rangers and Los Angeles Kings entertain Chicago Black Hawks.

Mickey Redmond's 26th of the year at Detroit broke a scoreless deadlock with about six minutes left in the opening period. Within three minutes, Guy Charron and Nick Libett made it 3-0.

Rosaire Paiment scored Vancouver's first goal in the final minute of the peiod, but Charron, Libett and rookie Marcel Dionne with two goals in the second period put the game out of reach.

LEAFS LOSE GROUND

Wilson's conditioning program began to take effect late in November and was particularly evident on the weekend of Nov. 27-28 when New York and Montreal, locked in first place in the East, arrived for back-to-back games at the Olympia.

In both games, the Red Wings came on strong in the third period to knock off the division leaders. Since then, they've turned around a number of games with their third-period offence, which, to date, has made Wilson somewhat of a prophet in the mould of Punch Imlach, the ailing Buffalo mentor.

When Wilson took over the Wings he said: "If you've got teams of equal ability, over the long haul the one that's in the best condition will win."

Imlach, when he first came up to the NHL with Toronto Maple Leafs in the late 1950s, found himself in a similar position and many of his quotes appeared to have a significant reaction—depending on which side of the ice one stood.

The 'Hangman' Chilled; 'Strangler' Was Real

Wrestling always sells, even if for some of the wrong reasons. Because if a man can't win the title on a disqualification, at least there will be a rematch next week.

And if the mat fans love their shows, why not? It's a form of entertainment. Maybe that's why the note appeared in the post. Rudy Dusek had died. He was 70. Rudy who?

No further explanation needed, Rudy was a wrestler. Further, he was one of the "Dirty Dukeks." there were four brothers. And if people showed interest in them, it was the trend of the times. Besides, the title "Dirty Dukeks" was a catchy phrase.

But then, so was "Hangman" Howard Cantonwine. "Hangman!" Imagine the terror that name struck into the heart of a small boy. Wasn't this his stock and trade in a southern prison before he had taken up wrestling? Gee!

It was my old grandpappy who introduced me to the sport. It was something for him to do to keep a young grandson happy. Besides, he was a fearsome individual in his own right. He was well over six feet tall, sported an eight-inch handlebar mustache, chawed tobacco incessantly, and could ring a spittoon, almost unerringly, from six feet or less.

And some of the tales he told about the gold-rush days, too! Any lad would be impressed.

Jumping Joe and Gorgeous George

If Cantonwine was one of the original rascals of the northwest he invited hate, and the public willingly obliged. Especially when he was matched against Charlie Hansen. Here was a good guy, and master of the hammerlock. He could break a man's arm if he wished. But that was his trouble. He didn't have the "killer" instinct. Not even when Cantonwine hit him over the head with a chair, just two seats away from us one night. (Wait until I tell the other kids about that!)

Ed "Strangler" Lewis was a champ, a real one, and he got his name honestly. He would simply apply a headlock and keep it on his opponent all night, if necessary. And Lewis wrestled well into his 50s. But that was scientific stuff, and only the best prospered. Some changes would have to be made.

Jumping Joe Savoldi was a Notre Dame football star. Gus Sonnenberg played for Dartmouth. All-American football players would put a new show on the road. The others could adjust. And there was this dropkick, see—football style. They would kick their opponents right in the stomach, with both feet, and then jump on them.

It wasn't that they were dirty. They had a job to do, that's all. And if they were exciting, their fakery was above reproach. There were many. There still are.

The late "Gorgeous George (George Wagner in less-prosperous days) was the first mod athlete of his era. He was ahead of his time. His flowing locks inspired many things, but the perfume he used was rancid. Besides, he had a hateful habit. He spat on the floor.

Car Was Built Around Calhoun

Sky Hi Lee was far more interesting. Here was a giant of a man, powerfully built, who was taking a few years out. He played hard, worked only when duty called, was a prodigious eater, and a lover of wine. He enjoyed the frolic. And that's how he trained—daily.

"I'll lose tonight," he once said. He did.

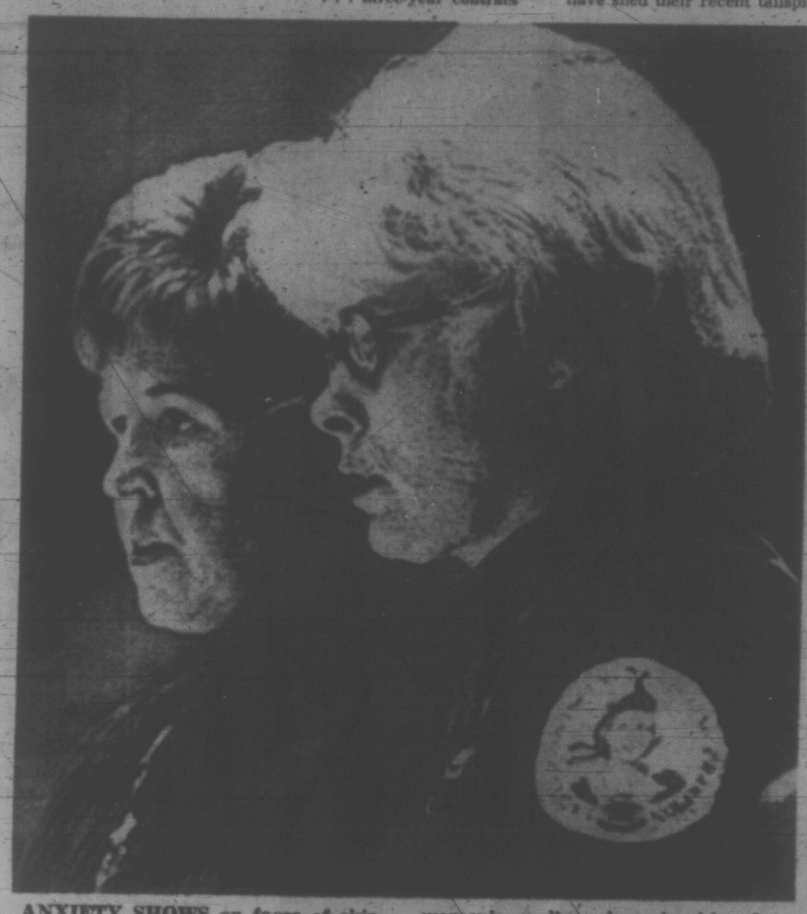
One of the big men was "Haystacks" Calhoun. He was so huge he had an automobile built to fit around him, he paid a fare and a half on airplanes, and he smothered his opponents with a belly flop.

And who can forget the Masked Marvel — not always the darling of the little old ladies in the front pews, and not always the same. It often depended in which town the show was scheduled. One "Marvel" was a college divinity student earning money during his vacation period. It was field training. Another might have been Gorgeous George. It often was.

If professional wrestling has been "some kind of sport" through the years, promoters never have argued otherwise, or attempted to explain what it really was. In testimony in the U.S. a few years ago, it was said: "wrestling and honesty cannot maintain a profitable co-existence."

Which sounds fair enough. Because sometimes even the results are simulated.

Take the case of the publicity man who, with other duties to attend to, once called a newspaper and gave the editor the results of the night's wrestling matches. This was while the feature match was still in progress. A little later, he called back. The "winner" had suffered a broken leg, and couldn't continue.



ANXIETY SHOWS on faces of skip Audrey Williamson and third Mabel Mitchell of Brandon during Manitoba rink's tight battle with lightly-regarded Newfoundland in Canadian women's curling championship play at Saskatoon. Extra-End Win Keeps Brandon Rink on Top SASKATON (CP) — Manitoba sweeping action shook up skip Audrey Williamson after her final shot in the fourth round of the Canadian women's curling championship Tuesday night.

"I thought at first my sweepers had swept it through," said the undefeated Brandon curler who leads the 10-rink round-robin competition with a 4-0 record after a 6-5 extra-end win over Newfoundland.

Saskatchewan, Quebec, Alberta and P.E.I. shared second place after four rounds with 3-1 records.

The Newfoundland-Manitoba game attracted the most attention from more than 1,000 fans with the majority pulling for Mrs. Bartlett's rink, which, if it won, would have put six rinks into a tie for first place.

Mrs. Bartlett and her rink from Labrador City forced the extra end when the Newfondland skip made a fine takeout and stayed with her last rock.

On the extra end, Newfoundland was lying two when Mrs. Williamson drew into an open house. Her shot was six inches closer than Newfoundland's counting rock.

"I was throwing heavy one way all night and that was the way I had to throw my final stone. I thought the girls swept too much at first, but once the stone got over the hog line, I knew it was good."

Miss Beaton's Alberta rink gave P.T.I. its first defeat by stealing a point on the second and third ends, then picking up three on the fifth.

"That third end was our big break," said Miss Beaton, an accountant at Medicine Hat radio and television station CHAT.

Oil Kings Come On After Shaw Leaves

Maybe Edmonton Oil Kings wanted to show they didn't need a coach or maybe they were just angry.

However, they scored seven unanswered goals in the thidd period to wallop Victoria Cougars 12-2 in a Western Canada Hockey League game Tuesday night.

Coach Brian Shaw had been ejected from the game at 19:33 of the second period for disputing a penalty to Brian Ogilvie by throwing the Oil Kings' sticks on the ice.

Trainer Ron Walters handled the team in the third pediod.

In other WCHL games Tuesday night, Regina Pats shut out New Westminster Bruins 4-0 and Brandon Wheat Kings defeated Saskatoon Blades 5-3.

One game is scheduled tonight —Victoria at Calgary Centennials.

NOW SECOND BY FAN

The lopsided win for the Oil Kings at home consolidated the club's hold on second place of the western division of the 12-team league, seven points behind leading Calgary and four points ahead of third-place New Westminster.

Cougars, who lost their last chance to reach the playoffs when defeated by the Oil Kings Monday night, are in fifth place, 28 points behind Medicine Hat Tigers.

A crowd of 4,627 at Edmonton saw four Oil kings—Henry Van Drunen, Don Kozak, Marcel Comeau and Terry Smith —score two goals each. Ogilvie, Darcy Rota, Dave Inkpen and Phil Russell added the other Edmonton goals.

Don Morrison and Gary Donaldson scored for Victoria.

SOBCHUK NETS 2

Before 2,503 fans at Regina, goalie Bernie Germaine got the shutout for the Pats as New Westminster missed a chance to go into a tie with Edmonton.

Dennis Sobchuk scored two goals and Scott Smith and Glen Burdon one each as Regina stretched its lead in the eastern division to three points over Saskatoon.

It was the first shutout of the season for Germaine and Sobchuk's two goals boosted him to 101 points, the league's highest-scoring rookie.

The win for Brandon narrowed the club's margin behind second-place Saskatoon to nine points.

Grant Thomson, Frank Taylor, Bob Murdoch, Robbie Neale and Glen Mikkelson scored for the Wheat Kings before a crowd of 1,054.

Kapp Accepts Invitation To Attend Sports Dinner

Organizers of the Victoria Sports Celebrity Dinner have accomplished what the National Football League officials couldn't.

Which is another way of announcing that Joe Kapp, former star with B.C. Lions of the Canadian League and Minnesota Vikings of the NFL, has accepted an invitation to be a head-table guest at the fifth annual dinner, Monday, March 13, at the Empress Hotel.

The colorful and controversial quarterback completes the list of speakers who include golfing great Byron Nelson; Bud Poile, general manager of the Vancouver Canucks; Jim Duncan, coach of the Grey Cup champion Calgary Stampeders; Ken Sugarman, all-star lineman with B.C. Lions, and MLA Herb Capozzi, former general manager of the Lions.

Kapp sat out last season rather than sign a standard NFL contract with Boston Patriots. Before going to the Patriots in a trade, Kapp led the Vikings to the Super Bowl after taking the Lions to their only Grey Cup.

Now involved in motion pictures as an actor, Kapp may have some interesting comments on football and films.

However, football or movie buffs who have not yet tickets to the dinner will probably be disappointed since the affair is already a sell-out.

Among highlights at the event that is co-sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Saanich and the Greater Victoria Sports Council will be presentation of awards to the area's "sportsman of the year," and to the male and female athletes voted to have accomplished the most during the past year.

Soviet Students Edge Canada 3-2

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union went into today's competition at the World University Winter Games with five gold medals and 10 over-all after a near-perfect record of victories Thursday in which they dominated the cross-country skiing and hockey.

The strong Russian hockey team faced its toughest challenge Thursday night, but held off a hard-checking Canadian collegiate team to take a 3-2 victory in the closest of the four games played so far in the three-country triple round-robin tournament. The Russians, now with a 3-0 record, continued their drive to what is expected to be another gold medal.

Russia won three gold medals during the day, sweeping the field in the men's and women's Nordic cross-country events and taking a first in the Nordic combined. Japan and Czechoslovakia were the only two other countries to win medals during the day, with a silver and a bronze in the combined, respectively.

The Russians took the first four places in both the men's and women's cross-country races.

The gold medal in the Nordic combined went to Russian Vladimir Tousinov, who finished second in Tuesday's 15-kilometre run, combining that with a previous second in the 70-metre jump.

Whipper Billy Starts Long Comeback Haul

TORONTO (CP) — Whipper Billy Watson, a 31-year wrestling career seemingly ended last year when both his legs were crushed by a skidding car, leaves York County Memorial Hospital in nearby Newmarket later this week.

The 55-year-old wrestler has undergone several operations and skin grafts to repair a damaged right leg and bone chips in his left leg. The right leg was so badly mangled, it was feared it might have to be amputated.

Watson will spend some time convalescing in Miami, Fla., before returning to his farm at Keswick, 30 miles north of here, to complete the recovery.

The former British Empire wrestling champion was struck down last Nov. 30 while loading the trunk of his car on a downtown Toronto street.

Invictus Pursues Indoor Track Plan

Invictus, the city's newest track and field organization, is continuing pursuit of plans to obtain an indoor track to step up development of Greater Victoria athletes.

Officials of Invictus, an organizing group that now has 39 working members, said at their February meeting that they expect to have cost estimates and fund-raising methods roughed out in "the next two or three weeks."

Also announced at the meeting was the formation of a "junior development" program for elementary schools, an application for a federal "opportunities for youth" grant that would enable student athletes to improve jogging and cross-country facilities in the area, and plans to hold public clinics for training meet officials and judges.

Invictus has been awarded the 1973 Canadian cross-country championship meet and appears almost certain to stage the Western Hemisphere cross-country championships next December.

Hoshal All-Star Choice

Gord Hoshal joined the finest university players in Canada and was selected to the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball all-star team.

Hoshal, who played forward for the University of Victoria Vikings this season finished second in league scoring, and Marty Lyons of Alberta Golden Bears were named at the two forward positions.

Ron Thorsen of UBC Thunderbirds and Bob Morris of Alberta were named the starting guards and Mike Frisby of Alberta and Danny Quance of Calgary Dinosaurs tied for starting centre.

The WCIAA basketball season concludes this weekend in Vancouver as UBC represents the West in the Canadian final.

WCIAA hockey statistics were also released this week and they show Bob McAneeley of UBC won the scoring title for the second straight year on the strength of 29 goals and 22 assists for 51 points. He beat George Watson of Manitoba Bisons by two points.

Alberta's goaltending duo of Jim Coombes and Barry Richardson had the best goals against average of 2.22 per game. Alberta meets Calgary in the West and Manitoba and Brandon meet in the East in playoffs. The winners meet for a berth in the Canadian final.

IRISH PROBLEMS WORRYING TRIPLE CROWN OPPONENTS

LONDON (CP) — A top prize in international rugby, the Triple Crown, may go into mothballs for this season as the result of Scotland and Wales refusing to play scheduled games against the All-Ireland team in Dublin.

The trip championship is part of an international league that includes France, England, Scotland, Wales and the combined north-south Ireland team. Winning three annual championships in five years gives a team the crown.

Wales and Ireland have not won the Triple Crown since 1948.

An Irish-Welsh game scheduled for March 11 in Dublin was cancelled Sunday by the Welsh Rugby Union on grounds that the current troubles in Northern Ireland may endanger players and supporters from Wales. A similar decision was taken by Scottish rugby authorities earlier in the season. Representatives from Scotland, Ireland and Wales will meet later this week to try to agree on other venues for the games.

DERBY, ARSENAL TIE; FANS HURT IN CRUSH

LONDON (AP) — Reigning champion Arsenal fought to a scoreless draw with Derby and Manchester United defeated Second Division Middlesbrough 3-0 in English Football Association Cup fifth-round replays Tuesday.

A second replay between Arsenal and Derby will decide which team meets Orient of the Second Division in the quarter-finals.

Fifty people, mostly children, were injured when a crush barrier collapsed at Arsenal's stadium shortly after the game started.

As ambulance attendants struggled to reach the injured, there were scenes reminiscent of last year's soccer crowd disaster when 66 people died at Ibrox Park in Glasgow, Scotland, in a crush on a huge exit ramp.

Angry fans among the capacity crowd of 63,000 complained Tuesday night about overcrowding on the exit terraces, where fans can sit during games. Only two spectators — both children — were sent to hospital. One had a broken ankle; the other had chest injuries.

The games was stopped while the crowd swarmed on to the field to make way for police and medical attendants to reach the injured.

Willie Morgan put the Manchester side into an 11th-minute lead with a penalty after Denis Law was brought down. George Best added a second after 51 minutes, and 14 minutes later captain Bobby Charlton scored the third goal.

In the only English League match played Tuesday, Sheffield United beat West Ham 3-0.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Back for second successive season as winner in Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition is Barb Carter, who has topped women's tenpin division during 19th week of 26-week contest. Barb earned weekly award by rolling 213-200-150—563 series in Wednesday Matinee League at Mayfair Lanes.

Main Thing for Hank Is to Stay Healthy

ATLANTA (AP) — Hank Aaron, estimating "it will probably take three years" to equal Babe Ruth's career record home run aggregate, signed a three-year contract Tuesday with Atlanta Braves. Speculation placed the figure at a major league high of $200,000 annually.

"My contract does represent a lot of money," said the 38-year-old Aaron. "But I feel like I've been compared with other players as equal or better than they are, only the salaries didn't match up.

"Now I'm on an equal basis there, too."

The slugging outfielder heads into his 19th spring training camp with 639 homers behind him, 47 of them last year. Seventy-five more will tie him with Ruth's 714 career homers.

"If everything works out right," said Aaron—and "everything" is mainly his ailing knee — "it will take probably three years" to catch Ruth.

Aaron agreed that the nervous pressure will increase as he narrows the home run gap. But the main thing, he said, "is staying healthy for the next three years."

Aaron said his ailing knee felt good and he was anxious to get to the Braves' Florida training camp.

Belmont Rise Abetted By 'Total Involvement'

By JACK KEATING
Times Staff

Belmont Braves are favored by many to finish on top in the 22nd annual Vancouver Island senior high school boys' basketball tournament, an eight-team struggle that starts Thursday at the University of Victoria.

That kind of attention hasn't always been Belmont's basketball fate.

In fact, it took the 27-year-old school in the Colwood area 20 years to even reach the Island hoop tourney.

DISMAL SEASONS

Many of those years were dismal seasons in the Victoria league and sometimes the outlook was so bleak the school didn't even compete.

Then in 1970 a minor miracle took place. Belmont made its inaugural appearance in the Island tourney and joined the city powerhouses of Victoria High and Oak Bay and established up-Island teams.

The Braves were knocked out of the tourney that year, but returned last year as Victoria champions. A red-hot Oak Bay team upset them for the Island title but Belmont qualified for its first-ever trip to the provincial tournament in Vancouver.

IMPRESSIVE RECORD

Last Sunday afternoon, Braves won the Victoria crown for the second year running, and their impressive, 25-5 record this season has earned them fifth place in the latest B.C. high school rankings.

And why have the Braves attained the kind of success monopolozide for so many years by Victoria High and Oak Bay?

"It's the coaching, there's no doubt it's the reason," pointed out Oak Bay coach Don Horwood, whose team may probably give the Braves the stiffest competition over the three-day tourney, from which three representatives will go to the B.C. final, March 15-18, in Vancouver.

PURSUIT OF EXCELLENCE

"He's completely dedicated to the game and his attitude catches on with the players," Horwood added.

Wally Russell is the coach and that kind of praise and his past record suggest it's no coincidence that Belmont's success began when Russell took over the team three years ago.

Any particular philosophy?

"It's the pursuit of excellence for the lack of a better term," Russell says.

"It's total dedication and the kids give their hearts and souls to the game."

PART OF IMAGE

He points out that the players all have much shorter hair than the other teams and it's all part of the image they're trying to create.

"It's sort of total involvement," says Russell, who became principal of Belmont this year after two years as vice-principal at Elizabeth Fisher.

Russell used the same philosophy when he coached for six years at Delbrook High School on the North Shore, where he guided the Hilltoppers to four straight league crowns and their first four trips to the B.C. tournament.

"I really enjoy the game," Russell says but he points out that his interests aren't limited to basketball and that he's striving to bring interest in all aspects of school life.

"Support of the students and the community has been rewarding."

Russell, who won his 200th high school game when Belmont clinched the league crown Sunday, says his position as principal involves considerable extra work and believes this will be his final year of coaching.

NOTE OF CAUTION

Of course Russell would like to go out with a B.C. championship and it's possible.

"Two of his players, Lee Edmondson and Jim Kupiak, rank with the best at their positions. Russell says the dedication is there and admits that this team can match any of his Delbrook teams, one of which finished third in the B.C. tournament.

However, he cautions, that they must get through the Island tournament first. First step is against Nanaimo at 9 Thursday night at the University of Victoria Gymnasium.

Big Price Tag on Success

By The Associated Press

Are the kids crying? Are the bills piling up? Is the boss on your back? Well, quit complaining. If you think you have troubles, consider the problems of Frank Cashen, executive vice-president of Baltimore Orioles.

Today is March 1, the date generally accepted as the official opening of baseball spring training. If a player isn't signed by today, he's considered a holdout.

Baltimore Orioles have 10 played—most of them important ones—who fall into that category.

Cashen, who succeeded Harry Dalton and inherited the signing headache, enrolled shortstop Mark Belanger and rookie outfielder Don Baylor Tuesday, but his situation is easily the most critical in the signing derby.

Still unhappy with terms are infielders Dave Johnson, Boog Powell, Brooks Robinson, and outfielders Don Buford, Paul Blair and Merv Rettenmund, all regular performers for the Birds.

CUELLAR UNSIGNED

Also unsigned are lefthander Mike Cuellar, one of Baltimore's four 20-game winners, rookie flash Bobby Grich and infielders Rich Coggins and Jerry Davanon.

The dissatisfaction is the price Baltimore is paying for three straight American League pennants and, apparently, the gap is quite wide in some of the cases at least.

Cuellar, for example, is still in San Juan, Puerto Rico, demanding a $25,000 raise to $90,000. That's about $18,000 more than Cashen has offered. But Cuellar is not budging.

"I'm not going to make the same mistake I made last year," said Cuellar. "I'm going to stay here in Puerto Rico until I come to terms with Cashen."

Only six clubs—San Francisco Giants, Boston Red Sox, Minnesota Twins, Pittsburgh Pirates, Cleveland Indians and Chicago Cubs—have complete roster signed.

New York Mets, lack only utility outfielder Don Hahn, and their crosstown rivals, the Yankees, are missing only infielder Jerry Kenney. Los Angeles Dodgers are without only minor league pitcher Mike Strahler and Detroit Tigers, who got Mickey Loljch to agree to an $85,000 contract Tuesday, have only utility infielder Cesar Gutierrez unsigned.

Atlanta scraped together a reported $600,000 to satisfy Hank Aaron for the next three years. But now the Braves will have to dig down for some more cash to satisfy Orlando Cepeda, Ralph Garr, Rico Carty, Cecil Upshaw and rookie-of-the-year Earl Williams.

Joe Torre, the National League's Most Valuable Player and Vida Blue, MVP and Cy Young Award winner in the American League, are major holdout headaches for St. Louis Cardinals and Oakland Athletics.

Hotelmen Again Check In As Class of Senior Loop

Hotel Douglas swept up the league and playoff crown for the second straight year in the Victoria Senior "B" Basketball League Tuesday night at Highrock Junior High School.

The Hotelmen trimmed Independents 84-70 in the final game of the two-game total-point final to win the series by 14 points. The teams fought to a 84-84 stalemate in the first game Monday.

Independents, who finished a close second in league standings, never led in the final game and fell behind by 12 points at one point in the first half, before narrowing the gap to five, 39-34, at the half.

Bill Carlson dropped in 20 points and four of his clubmates hit double figures to pace the Hotelmen. Carlson scored 12 of his points in the second half and Mike Taaffe potted 13 of his 16 in the final half.

Chris Hall and Don Burrows scored 22 points apiece for Independents.

HOTEL DOUGLAS (84) — Mike Taaffe 16, Corky Jossul 9, Bob DeCosta, Dave Wirtanen 13, Bruce Vallor, John Lauvaas 14, Bill Carlson 20, Tom Hatcher 10, John McKaschie.
INDEPENDENTS (70) — Mark Pratt 4, Mike Morrill 2, Don Horwood 4, Mike Chornoby, Ed Kowalyk, Chris Hall 22, Glen Moffatt 10, Olli Mollanen 5, Don Burrows 22.

PRICE AND SMITH (101) — Brian Craig 24, John Hart 11, Alex Brayden 14, Al Lorimer 7, Barry Burch 16, Court Brousson 12, Glen Lorimer 4, Bill Spotswood 12, Bill Nelson.

Totes Earn Spot In Island Event

Victoria High Totems capped a late-season spurt by grabbing the final playoff spot in the Vancouver Island senior high school boys' basketball tournament as they tripped Mt. Douglas Rams 48-41 in a special playoff game Monday night at Reynolds High School.

Totems who were struggling to win games in the first half of the season, finished with a flurry to share the fourth and final playoff spot available to Victoria-area teams with Mount View Hornets and the Rams.

Rams ousted the Hornets Monday in the first round of a fourth-place playoff.

TACKLE TOWHEES

Vic High meets Courtenay Towhees at 7:30 in the opening round of the Island Tourney at University of Victoria Gymnasium.

U.K. OVERTIME LAW WEIRD

LONDON (CP) — The weird workings of overtime rates in Britain have left a television production assistant richer by more than $8,500 for 15 whirlwind days on the job.

"I was working in a haze of fatigue and only had a couple of hours sleep each night," said TV assistant Sandra Howard. "Money was the last thing I was thinking about."

But for her employer, Associated Television, the main concern is to make sure the bizarre incident is not repeated.

Producers are thus being told to keep a strict watch on the cumulative effects of overtime payments for employees who don't take their full rest breaks.

That's how Miss Howard, 23, who ordinarily earns £30 ($75) a week, piled up her small fortune, since reduced somewhat by tax payments.

It all started when she came to London from her normal work centre in Birmingham to help with an ice-show program here.

Her normal work day was 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. But because she was unable to have at least a 10-hour break before beginning her first round of duties on a Saturday her normal hourly rate of 75 new pence was doubled.

RATE DOUBLES

Each time she missed a lunch break or worked after midnight, Miss Howard went on to double or treble the hourly rate of her previous shift.

As she was never able to take her full 10 hours' rest break over the 15 days, she started each day at the overtime rate on which she had finished the previous night.

By Tuesday of the first week, she was earning 9½ times her usual rate and by the end of that week this earning rate become 19 times the usual level.

The following Sunday and Monday should have been rest days but she worked through them.

By Tuesday of the second week, the cumulative buildup of overtime rates and other additions for late working and interruptions with her lunch periods had increased the earning rate to 27 times the ordinary level — a matter of more than £20 ($50) an hour.

By the end of the hectic 15 days, this had risen to more than £24 an hour.

DECLINES TO PAY

At first ATV declined to pay the resulting sum of £3,470 which Miss Howard applied for after a mathematical expert from her union had totted up the complicated work bill.

But ATV subsequently found she was fully entitled to the claim, which tax payments finally left at £2,500 ($6,250).

The company and other commercial TV firms in Britain have union contracts providing for what are termed progressive overtime rates until a 10-hour break is taken by the employee. Then, the employee returns to normal time rates

Girls Shrug Off Dangers

WESTPORT, Conn. (Reuter) — It is late at night on a lonely, unlighted country highway. Suddenly, looming ahead to an approaching motorist, is the figure of a young girl, standing alongside the road, thumbing a ride.

The girl, about 16, with long blonde hair streaming down to her tight-fitting jeans, is part of a new and alarming American phenomenon: female hitch-hikers.

In recent months, particularly in the northeast U.S., such a sight has become common on turnpikes, parkways and other highways as a growing number of young girls compete with their male counterparts for free rides.

Efforts by police to curb what they regard as an extremely dangerous trend have, for the most part, been unavailing.

Generally, the girl hitch-hikers travel in pairs. But as their success in hitching rides increases, so does their daring — or foolhardiness — as they take to the open road alone, by day and by night.

DRIVER, RIDER FINED

Here in Connecticut, where the phenomenon is widespread, state and local police have launched a concerted crackdown on all hitch-hikers. Schools have been urged to warn young people, particularly girls, about the pitfalls of hitch-hiking. Picking up a hitch-hiker can result in a $100 fine for both the driver and the rider.

Considering the inherent dangers, why do they do it?

"I don't see anything wrong in it," said a pretty blonde 18-year-old after she was given a lift along heavily-travelled Route 7. "I'm not doing anyone any harm and neither are the rest of the kids who thumb rides.

"I'm not afraid of the drivers. I'm only afraid of getting picked up by a cop and having to pay the fine."

Laing 'Lame Duck'

Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson admitted Tuesday that he called Arthur Laing a "lame duck," but said in using the term he was not implying any direct criticism of the federal veterans affairs minister.

Anderson was referring to a speech he gave Monday to the West Point Grey Liberal Association, in which he said Laing should be replaced by Environment Minister Jack Davis as leader of British Columbia MPs.

"We British Columbians must not be short-changed on every deal in Ottawa," Anderson told the Liberal meeting. He said Laing was not a strong leader, adding "maybe it is because he is not going to run for re-election."

Clarifying his remarks in Victoria today, Anderson said he had meant to show that Laing became a "lame duck" the moment he announced his retirement from the political scene.

Just the same thing could have been said of former U.S. president Lyndon Johnson, he added.

"I like and respect Art. It's not a question of incompetence. It's just that, like the Americans knew about Johnson, we know he is going to be replaced."

Rather than a criticism of Laing, Anderson explained, his comments could be construed as a criticism of Prime Minister Trudeau for his failure to deal with the problem.

JOBS FOR SURPLUS ROCKETS SOUGHT

By HOWARK BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The United States space agency is considering several missions for nearly $1 billion worth of rockets and spaceships which will be in mothballs when the Apollo moon-landing program ends this year.

One flight that officials hope will materialize is the linkup of Soviet and American manned space vehicles. Perhaps two or more such flights may be conducted.

Another possibility is a series of earth orbit missions on which astronauts would use sensors to scout the earth's resources.

EQUIPMENT MOTHBALLED

When the moon program ends with Apollo 17 next December, there will be leftover hardware from three lunar-landing trips which a budget-conscious Congress forced the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to cancel.

Most of the equipment already is mothballed in air-conditioned comfort in hangars.

It includes:

—Two Saturn 5 rockets, each valued at $185 million.

—Six small Saturn 1B rockets, each worth $45 million.

—Four Apollo command and service modules with a total price tag of $260 million.

—One lunar module worth $40 million.

The four command and service modules, including a back-up, were far along in development when the three Apollo flights were cancelled. So NASA decided to complete them on the good chance that missions could be found for them in earth orbit.

Work had been finished on only one of the lunar modules and, with no prospect of going back to the moon soon, building stopped on three others which were just starting on the assembly line.

ONLY ONE NEEDED

Several Saturn 1B rockets were built because officials originally felt this smaller rocket might have to be used for a number of earth orbit tests before man was committed to the moon. But only one, Apollo 7, was needed.

Storing all this hardware is costly, so NASA would like to use it as soon as possible. The yearly price for keeping the two Saturn 5s in reserve is $600,000, and for the four command-service modules it is $100,000.

U.S. and Soviet space specialists have held a series of promising meetings on the possibility of linking an Apollo with a Soviet Salyut space station. If arrangements can be worked out, the flight probably will occure in late 1974 and 1975. There would be a brief exhange of crews.

A second joint flight also is possible a few months later, with astronauts and cosmonauts working side by side in space for several weeks.

Guerrilla Slain

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — The bullet-riddled body of a young man was found Monday bearing a card saying he had been slain by the Command of Tupamaro Hunters. The organization is an extreme rightwing group organized to battle the leftist Tupamaro guerrillas. A police report said the card on the body read: "Bullet for bullet, death for death. You also asked for mercy."

Policeman Demoted For Gastown Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — One officer has been demoted and five others cleared following police commission hearings into police actions in the Gastown riot last August, Mayor Tom Campbell said Monday.

The mayor said the commission has demoted the officer to constable second class from constable first class despite a recommendation by Chief Constable John Fisk the man, identified by his lawyer as John G. Whitelaw, be dismissed.

Mayor Campbell added the officer was not demoted for any action he took during the riot, but because he did not note in a report that a young man's leg was broken.

"We know he (the policeman) was at the scene of the incident and didn't file the appropriate report," the mayor said.

It was felt Chief Fisk overreacted, said Mayor Campbell, who heads the police commission. "A demotion of this kind is a serious action — the man has had five or six years' service."

A week after the Gastown riot, a damage suit was filed in British Columbia Supreme Court on behalf of Rob Elliott, 16, of Thunder Bay, Ont.

'Productivity Must Increase'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Japan Trade Council has called for a major increase in Canadian industrial productivity to capitalize on Canadian government efforts to expand exports to Japan.

The council notes in its February news letter that while productivity rose in Canada faster than in the U.S. during the last five years of the 1960s, Canada lagged behind all other major trading countries.

The association of businessmen involved in trade with Japan says much of the success of the mission taken to Japan recently by Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin will depend on individual initiative and enterprise, rather than government promotion.

"Such trade promotion activity is only one aspect of the problem of selling Canadian products abroad," the council says.

"There is other vital factors involved in meeting this challenge. The fundamental ones are our ability to produce what can be sold abroad competitively, and our ability to get the goods to market reliably."

IMPORTANT FACTOR

Productivity is "perhaps the chief consideration" in producing Canadian goods competitively. It is "the amount of output per man-hour obtained from Canadian labor, management, materials, processes and equipment.

"Some Canadians have praised our average rate of increase in productivity over recent years as being better than that of the U.S.," the council says.

"While this is true, it obscures the fact that Canada ranked second lowest of 11 leading nations on the international productivity chart, surpassing only the U.S."

During the period 1965-70, the U.S. had an annual increase of less than two per cent in its productivity. Canada averaged 3.5 per cent. Other rates quoted by the council are Britain 3.6; Italy 5.1; West Germany 5.3; Switzerland 6.2; France 6.6; Belgium 6.8; Sweden 7.9; Netherlands 8.5; and Japan 14.2 per cent.

There is no simple answer to the problem of increasing productivity, but "whatever the answer may be, an answer is urgently needed in Canada today if we are to have any hope of keeping up with, let alone excelling, our competitors in the world market," the trade council says.

ACUPUNCTURE CENTRE OPENS

VANCOUVER (CP)— The North American College of Acupuncture, denied permission last September to open a treatment clinic in Vancouver, said Tuesday it now plans to establish a research centre here.

Its announcement that the research will be conducted on people suffering from rheumatism and arthritis brought a warning that the medical profession will be watching for any violation of the Medical Act.

The College of Acupuncture asked Health Minister Loffmark last fall for permission to offer the needle-puncture treatment free.

Loffmark said at the time that the college would first have to convince the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society of the effectiveness of acupuncture. But correspondence with C.A.R.S indicated that C.A.R.S. was not convinced.

Acupuncture is used in China, other parts of Asia and Europe, but is rare in North America. Only registered medical practitioners are allowed to use the method in B.C.

Neither Roger Langrick nor Leung Kok Yuen, founders of the acupuncture college, are registreed with the College of Physicians.

Langrick said the research centre will accept 20 people who can produce a letter from their doctor stating that they are suffering from arthritis or rheumatism.

He said treatment would be done by Leung, who used the method for many years in China, and himself. He said the project would provide statistical evidence of the effectiveness of the treatment.

Saanich Hydro Needs to Soar

Power demands in the Central Saanich and North Saanich areas are expected to quadruple in the next eight years, rising from 20,000 to about 84,000 kilowatts, B.C. Hydro officials said Tuesday.

Meeting with Central Saanich council to discuss future transmission line plans in that area, C. W. Nash, manager of B.C. Hydro's corporate services division, described the expected growth as an "enormous challenge."

Nash said new transmission lines and substations will be needed to meet the expected power needs. He added Hydro and municipalities must work together to ensure that the needs are met with a minimum of inconvenience to the public.

At the same time, Nash said, Hydro customers expected that the costs of supplying the extra power and rates reflecting those costs would not be allowed "to escalate to an unreasonable degree."

Nash said the problems of the Saanich area were the same facing those in other areas serviced by B.C. Hydro.

He said meetings, such as Tuesday's, would result in "satisfactory compromises that give adequate weight to ecological considerations."

But, Nash warned, the modern way of life depends on an adequate supply of power. This cannot be supplied without transmission lines and substations.

Nash said it was estimated that a high voltage transmission supply would be necessary in Central and North Saanich by 1980.

Power supply to the Sidney substation will be augmented by building a 60,000-volt transmission line on an existing right-of-way between Brentwood and Sidney.

The line will later be reinforced by a high-voltage transmission line to operate at 138,000 or 230,000 volts to meet future load growth.

Nash said it would be several years before the route and type of line to be used will be determined. He said every effort would be made to avoid built-up areas.

Routing, he said, would also be influenced by government policy on cost-sharing.

A high-voltage line between Pike Lake and Sidney is due to be completed by 1980 and a new substation will be needed in the Keating area."

Farm Loss Laid to Dockers

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — American farmers lost $1 billion because Longshoremen's union leader Harry Bridges spoiled a grain sale deal with Russia, secretary of agriculture Earl Butz said Tuesday.

"More than $1 billion in farm income has been lost because of an arrogant and callous labor leader who says 'I don't care if you get your product on the dock or not'," Butz told the annual meeting of the National Rural Electric Co-operative Association.

The Soviet minister of agriculture approached him with a plan to increase by a large amount the meat in the Russian diet, Butz said. The plan needed a vast supply of soybeans and feed grain to support the increased livestock production, and the Russian official wanted to know if the United States could provide it.

"I told him we could give him all he wanted," Butz said. "We have vacant lands, we need the grain markets."

Then the deal fell through because Bridges pulled out dockworkers on the Pacific Coast, Butz said. The dockworkers strike, longest and costliest in U.S. history, was only recently ended, but there have been reports the federal pay board will reject the settlement. Bridges has said that if that happens, the strike will resume.

Island N-Power Predicted by '74

B.C. Hydro Chairman Gordon Shrum has a one-track mind when it comes to nuclear power for Vancouver Island.

He wants it.

Addressing Malaspina College students Thursday, he predicted that Vancouver Island cities will be competing for nuclear power plants in their area within two years.

Recognizing provincial government opposition to thermo-nuclear power, Shrum said, "It is not my job to oppose government policy . . . it is my job to educate the public."

Shrum said Vancouver Island is more likely to get a nuclear power plant within 10 years than the Lower Mainland because power or power fuel must be transported to the island.

GREAT FOR NANAIMO

"It could be the greatest thing that ever happened to Nanaimo," he said, adding a plant would cost about $300 million. He said federal financial aid is available for nuclear plant construction.

In early 1970, Premier Bennett said the province was planning to ask Ottawa about this aid for a plant on Vancouver Island.

However, he later began pouring cold water on the idea, saying Vancouver Island was more suited to quiet living and tourism than to heavy industry of the kind a nuclear power plant might be associated with.

Shrum said he has just returned from inspecting the Pickering nuclear plant in Ontario.

He said the Pickering power is not as cheap as hydro but "Ontario has run out of hydro."

He said the water used in the Pickering plant is 18 degrees warmer than regular Lake Ontario water it is dumped into, but much purer.

The water takes a mile of circulation to cool. However, the cold tidal waters of the B.C. coast would probably be less affected, Shrum said. would be exposed Shrum told his audience: "We really haven't decided yet what to do on Vancouver Island but by 1974 additional energy will be required.

"There is no other solution to meeting our power needs than nuclear power. The increased load can't be met by fossil fuels which are expendable.

Shrum said it is unfortunate that scare stories about radiation problems from nuclear power plants are so readily accepted.

The kind of radiation people would be exposed to from a nuclear power plant would be one twentieth of what people are normally exposed to in the American city of Denver.

Ford Recall

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — A possible defect that coulde cause a steering wheel to come off the steering column has resulted in the recall of 2,281 of Ford Motor Co.'s 1972 standard model Fords.

Ford announced the recall Tuesday but said there have been no reports of failures or accidents due to the condition.

Clean Harbors Sidney's Aim

Sidney council is taking determined steps to clean up harbors in the area.

Aldermen this week gave three readings to a bylaw governing sanitary operations at marinas.

And they decided to study an "invitation" from the department of transport that the municipality lease the federal wharves at Sidney.

The transport department proposal was prompted by the growing interest by the town of Sidney in existing wharf conditions.

Last fall water pollution in Tsehum Harbor, site of the crowded Fishermen's Wharf, caused a municipal and public health outcry.

Although two cases of hepatitis had been reported among houseboat dwellers in Tsehum Harbor public health officials declared the federal wharf its jurisdiction.

A DOT spokesman said that no provisions for health regulations existed in the federal Harbors and Piers Act, and there was no legal grounds for actions against such offensive practices as flushing toilets and emptying bilges into the harbor.

Two months ago, Ald. Fred Robinson spearheaded a plea for municipal control of the wharves.

The transport department Monday offered the wharves at a lease of $1 each per year plus 15 per cent of the gross revenue.

The new marine sahitations bylaw will forbid dumping of sewage and garbage in tidal waters.

First-time violators will pay a $100 fine with a $50 penalty per day for ensuing violations.

The bylaw stipulates that on-shore toilet facilities must be provided. Also round-the-clock portable water, except in freezing weather.

A public hearing will be held March 13 to discuss deletion of present marine regulations contained in Sidney's zoning bylaws and to obtain public reaction to the proposed legislation.

Mayor Stan Dear said later that although enforcement will pose a problem he is hopeful that the waters of Tsehum Harbor will be clear by this summer.

Pilots Set Seminar

A panel of ministry of transport officials and other experts will be on hand March 11 and 12 for a pilots seminar in the Red Lion Motor Inn.

The seminar is being jointly sponsored by the B.C. Aviation Council and the Victoria Flying Club.

The programs will deal with air regulations, air traffic control, accident investigation, accident adjusting, aviation careers, rescue co-ordination, airworthiness, telecommunications, weather, flying training, helicopters, search and rescue and survival.

The seminar starts at 9 a.m. on both days, ending at 5 p.m. each day.

Home Recipe Plan Takes Off Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Musical Magic Gone for Beatles

NEW YORK (AP) — Once it was the Beatles. Now it is John-and-Yoko, Paul-and-Linda, George, and Ringo.

Artistically, although there have been some good songs, nothing the four have recorded individually in 1970 and 1971 has had the musical magic that convinced everybody from hysterical teenyboppers to Leonard Bernstein that the Beatles were great.

In the market place, however, each is doing well. In six years, the Beatles made 20 gold singles starting with I Want to Hold Your Hand in January, 1964, and released 17 LPs, all of them gold.

"Gold" means a million or more 45-rpm recordings sold and $1 or more in manufacturers' sales for an LP.

In the last two years — on their own — John Lennon and Paul McCartney each has had four gold records, George Harrison has had three and Ringo Starr has had one.

In their heyday as a group, the Beatles songs, the heart of the Liverpool quartet, usually had melodies by Paul McCartney and lyrics by John Lennon.

Then came marriage — Lennon to Japanese artist Yoko Ono and the path of the avant-garde, bed-ins for peace and "happenings"; McCartney to Linda Eastman, daughter of a New York lawyer, and middle-class respectability, a farm in Western Scotland, children.

In his own recordings Lennon's songs are highly confessional, perhaps loosed by his psychoanalysis. McCartney's are mostly about domestic contentment.

But each sometimes attacks the other in lyrics — a legacy of the bitterness remaining from McCartney's court action to split the Beatles legally. The group is tied contractually for six more years.

In one song, How Do You Sleep? Lennon says "Those freaks was right when they said you was dead . . . the sound you make is Muzak to my ears."

RINGO LIKES MOVIES

At one time several years ago, rumors spread through the teen-age world that the babyface McCartney was dead.

McCartney's new album, Wild Life, contains more subtle attacks on Lennon. The title song has a line "taking a walk through an African park one day." The LP ends with the song, "Dear Friend," about a friendship gone sour.

In many respects, George Harrison is coming on the strongest on his own.

Drummer Ringo Starr, the fourth Beatle, has been making movies, which he is said to enjoy more than recording. But he has cut two albums in his post-Beatles days. His gold record is a single, It Don't Come Easy.

McCARTNEY
. . . four golds

For one thing, he is in the best position to be "discovered." Held to authorship of about one track per album before, he let himself go on his second post-Beatles album, All Things Must Pass.

Harrison also is the only former Beatle nominated for important Grammy Awards, given for the best recordings of last year. He is one of five up for record of the year — the top Grammy — for My Sweet Lord, and one of five nominees for album of the year for All Things Must Pass.

Culture Palace to Go Bare

WARSAW (Reuter) — Wanted: Attractive girls under 22 to report for a strip-tease competition at Warsaw's Palace of Culture.

Poles reacted with disbelief. The bold advertisement was placed in Poland's biggest newspaper, Zycie Warszawy, by the state entertainment agency Estrada.

And the competition was held in the Palace of Culture and Science — a personal gift from Stalin and the site of Communist party congresses.

"The naked truth," said the newspaper, had finally come out. "For many years the problem of strip-tease in Poland has been concealed behind a velveteen and fustian screen of silence."

BAR SPECTATORS

The advertisement, an entertainment landmark in post-war Poland, brought dozens of girls to the massive palace built in Soviet social-realism style and often referred to contemptuously by local people as the "wedding cake." It also houses the Academy of Science.

Hundreds of would-be spectators, attracted by the advertisement, waited for hours in the cold on the palace steps. But they were ushered away by doormen as the girls paraded around a marble fountain in the restaurant inside, watched by selected guests.

The selected guests were also disappointed. "No piece of clothing fell to the floor. There was harassment on the selection panel's faces. They expected something else."

One press report said the undressing was to start in earnest in the final round some time later when only three girls would be chosen.

The mini-skirted girls, said the report, were mainly students, typists and sales girls who left much to be desired in style, looks and charm. Some were downright fat.

Nader Honored

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Princeton University has given consumer advocate Ralph Nader its Woodrow Wilson Award, the highest honor the school confers on an alumnus. The 1965 graduate of Princeton's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs is the youngest person ever to receive the $1,500 award. He is 38.

SPACE PROGRAM 'MADNESS'

TORONTO (CP) — Novelist Hugh MacLennan criticized American space flights Tuesday night, calling the expenditure of $80 billion to send man to the moon the height of technological madness.

In a Town Hall lecture, Mr. MacLennan said it was mad to spend that much money "to enable a pair of heroic lunatics, backed by the most marvellous nexus of technology ever seen, not only to strike the moon back but actually to dance on it."

He said that in previous ages, literature worked in harmony with the sciences for the human good.

When science lost sight of its real purpose—human betterment—it was attacked in the literature of the day, he said, as Charles Dickens used his novels to expose miseries of the poverty-stricken.

But Mr. MacLennan said he has a feeling of hope for the future of mankind because "moral and moral instincts are being aided by science to harness technology for the good of all.

The most hopeful sign was a growing concern about pollution: The new life sciences were being used by conservationists to stop rampant technological development that has caused environmental damage.

Marijuana Legal In Florida

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — A circuit judge ruled Tuesday that the sale and possession of marijuana is not illegal in Florida because the state legislature "goofed" by omitting sanctions against pot from the new drug abuse law.

Judge Clyde Kissinger granted a defence motion to dismiss marijuana possession and sale charges against four Pinellas County residents. Kissinger agreed with the defence that the new drug abuse law does not provide penalties specifically for marijuana.

"I am sure the legislature's action — or lack of it — was inadvertent," said Kissinger. "They just goofed, that's all."

As to whether his ruling would affect other marijuana possession cases in the state, Kissinger said, "God only knows how many cases are involved."

They Swam Down Avalanche

ALTA, Utah (UPI) — It may not have been the easiest way to get down the mountain, but at least they made it without hurting themselves.

Two young skiers who were on a cross-country ski tour suddenly found themselves caught in an avalanche. They literally swam their way out of the cascading snow, which carried them 500 feet down a mountainside.

"They were able to get free of the skis when the snow fractured, and then they used swimming motions to keep on top of the snow as they rode it down," said tour director Ron Webber.

The two skiers, Wayne Slagle and Marge Yerbury, both of Salt Lake City, survived the plunge down the mountain without injury.

MARCH 1-7
The more you know about food shopping the more likely you are to shop Woodward's.

Woodward's Buttermilk Pancake and Waffle Mix makes great pancakes. You can just add water, if you like, and you get a good pancake at very little cost and not too much calorie count. Or, if you prefer, you can use milk, add an egg, a bit of cooking oil, and you've got great deluxe pancakes.

Our pancake syrup tastes good too, and is just the right thickness (easy to pour, but not too runny). Popular maple flavour and reasonable price make it a good value. Come and get 'em both this week at Woodward's.

Origami Art Their Hobby

Jan Luton adjusts fish mobile made by boys for local store.

Mothers dread winter months when children have to play indoors. And the majority of children kept in by bad weather show a remarkable lack of imagination in their use of leisure time.

Most spend the time whining about having nothing to do, fighting, teasing anything that moves or bouncing tennis balls off the ceiling.

Mrs. Joe Hinskens doesn't have this problem. Her sons, Nico, 10, and Hubert, 7, are experts at the Japanese art of origami (paper sculpture).

On rainy days, the boys settle down with a pile of brightly colored papers, scissors and their library of origami books. It takes Hubert about five minutes to create a reindeer, mountain goat or swan by folding and cutting the paper. Fish are so easy he can make one in "half a second."

The manager of a toy store in the Hillside plaza asked the boys to make a mobile to advertise origami books and paper. They produced a school of brightly colored fish in less than half an hour.

The boys discovered their hobby when an aunt sent an origami bird from The Netherlands. Mrs. Hinskens had learned origami "years ago in Holland" and she remembered enough to get her sons started.

"When they first learned they kept at it for months," Mrs. Hinskens said.

Considerable patience is needed to figure out the complicated instructions. At first Jubert thought the deer "was too hard", and didn't attempt to make it. He now has a whole herd of stags in different primary colors.

At first Mrs. Hinskens kept all her sons' creations, but they produced so many she finally had to burn a "huge box" full of their early efforts.

Mrs. Hinskens pointed out that origami isn't an expensive hobby, and $1 worth of paper means hours of peace and quiet for her.

The boys' hobby is also a boon to other mothers. They are teaching their friends this quiet, creative art.

CYC 'Revolution' Turns to Reform

OTTAWA (CP) — The times have changed, and so has the Company of Young Canadians.

The late 1960s, marked by confrontation, demonstrations and rhetoric designed to bring about social change, seemed to find the CYC always in the middle of the unrest. Politicians raged until the government cracked down on the organization in late 1969.

The early 1970s have been more notable for a new style of social activism, often distinguished by community groups more interested in having a voice in reform than bringing on a revolution.

The company has apparently moved in the same direction by basing its behavior more on the wishes of these community groups and less on the ideology of its own volunteers.

Dal Brodhead, 30-year-old executive director of the CYC, says this does not mean that the company has rejected radicalism or confrontation with authority.

But he does not define being radical in terms of tearing down the system and rebuilding it. He says he thinks that most people are rather attached to some aspects of their community, and don't want it destroyed.

Community Emphasis

And the new CYC, says Mr. Brodhead, is based on the will of the community groups it is serving and predominantly manned by volunteers from the communities they are working in.

Since the CYC was formed in 1966 with a mandate to involve itself in social change, most volunteers have been parachuted into projects from other areas of the country, with direction coming from the Ottawa or regional offices.

When Mr. Brodhead took over in late 1970, the emphasis shifted to the local level.

He says at least 80 per cent of volunteers now come from the area they work in.

Some of the local groups utilizing volunteers include those dealing with native peoples, consumer rights, legal aid, community communications, the elderly, alternate culture experiments and community education.

One result is that the company has been more protected from attack, he says.

"That's probably because we're much closer to the people in the community and the politician has to think twice about burning us. He knows that he's not dealing with damned CYC outsiders — he's dealing with Joe Citizen who votes for him."

Another reason the company has been under less fire, he says, is that its financial procedure — much maligned in the early days — now is better and tighter than that of many government departments.

Protesting Letters

But the community attachment is the main thing. When a government task force on youth called for the abolition of the CYC last summer, several community organizations sent protesting letters to the government.

The new philosophy took more than a year to get into full swing.

The CYC was down to 82 volunteers when the new, soft-spoken director took charge. It now is up to about 215, near its peak of two years ago.

Mr. Brodhead expects to have a minimum of 300 volunteers in the field by the end of 1972.

The CYC's annual budget has been frozen at $1.9 million for four years. But its spending next year will be about $2.7 million because it has a surplus left over from two years ago when the agency slowed down to reorganize.

In early 1973, Mr. Brodhead expects to ask the government for a budget jump to approximately $3 million.

Whether he gets it will probably depend to some extent on how controversial the company has been.

"We'll get burned again," he says. "Our long-term role is probably to go into areas where other people won't go.

"We scared the pants off a lot of people, especially in Quebec. Perhaps it's a pity we didn't scare the pants off more."

Length of Hair Now Classified

TORONTO (CP) — Employers will get no help from the University of Toronto student placement centre in weeding out long-haired job applicants, the centre's director said recently.

David Currey said the centre refused to answer a question from the Atomic Energy Commission of Canada last week about the hair length and general appearance of a student who applied for a summer job.

Prices Rise

PARIS (AP) — Most French newspapers have announced that news-stand prices will go up March 1.

Mme. Vanier Teams Up With Son

MONTREAL (CP) — Pauline Vanier, 73-year-old widow of former Governor-General Georges Vanier, turned her back on a well-ordered life of comfort Tuesday to join her son Jean in work at a community for the mentally retarded outside Paris.

"I may return, I may not," she told reporters prior to her departure.

Books and documents belonging to her husband have been sold at several auctions in the last few months in apparent preparation for her move, but Mme. Vanier said she hoped to leave Canada without publicity.

"There is no great dramatic story," she said. "All I'm doing is getting rid of some luxuries that I don't need, with the permission of my children, and using the money to help the poor in general and my son's work in France, England, India and Canada.

"I am not selling my house or furniture."

Three of Mme. Vanier's five children are overseas. Jean and Bernard and his family live in France. Her daughter Therese is a doctor in England.

Friends say she has been greatly influenced by the pioneer work of Jean, and Mme. Vanier herself has been quoted as saying "it i sa heavy responsibility to be the mother of Jean Vanier."

Representative of his philosophy is criticism of what he calls "velvet-cushion Christianity."

"The days of welfare committees organizing fairs and sales for the poor are over," he wrote in Eruption of Hope. "The gift of oneself to others can no longer be simply on the level of giving spare time during leisure hours or on a professional level. It must be on a deeper, more personal level."

Mme. Vanier is patron of the Vanier Institute of the Family, which she helped found, and is in her second term as chancellor of the University of Ottawa. She said she intends to retain these posts until she makes a final decision concerning her future.

Family Planning Progress Slow Delegates Say

OTTAWA (CP) — About 300 delegates sat down here Tuesday to examine the state of family planning in Canada and the initial consensus was that there is a lot of catching up to do.

"The progress is painfully slow," said Mary Bishop, president of the Family Planning Association of British Columbia.

With today's narrow approach toward the issue, said Bernard Daly, director of the family life bureau of the Canadian Catholic Conference, pregnant women are regarded as patients and if they are not pregnant they are regarded as consumers — of contraceptives.

Dr. Lise Fortier, gynecologist in charge of the family planning clinic at Montreal's Notre Dame Hospital, said abortion laws in Canada are a "monstrosity."

D. L. Pool, associate professor of sociology at Carleton University, Ottawa, said that neither birth control pills nor intra-uterine devices have altered birth trends in the country — "they have merely improved the efficiency of family planning."

And Mary Jane Whipple, a Saint John, N.B., social worker, wondered why she was talking to 300 converts, all of whom believe in family planning. The real issue, she said, is how to reach those large rural families, some of whom don't even receive family allowances because they don't know how to apply.

The idea of this first conference on family planning, sponsored by the federal health department, is "to exchange information with concerned individuals and organizations on the nature and extent of family planning service, training, information and research needs."

At Tuesday's opening plenary session, five people, from different backgrounds and different regions, took a look at "the nature and role" of family planning in the country.

While Mrs. Bishop called for a crash information program on family planning, through doctors, hospitals and health units, Dr. Fortier said many physicians are poorly informed on contraception. Out of 900 hospitals in Canada only 23 had up-to-date family planning units.

She said that those who believe in contraception, yet flatly refuse to consider abortions, are not taking a realistic look at the problem.

Florence Bird (left), Dr. A. R. Kaufman and Dr. Elizabeth Bagshaw at conference.

'Time Has Now Come for Action'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada would be a richer and more sexually-satisfying place if there were more action and less talk about family planning, according to Florence Bird.

Mrs. Bird, chairman of the royal commission on the status of women which brought down its report last year, told the national conference on family planning:

"I can't help feeling that enough has been said about the need and the value for family planning and the obligations of parents in a responsible society.

"I think the time has now come for action."

Before family planning became known, she said, a carefree sex life was often impossible so that many women became frigid, or tensions over sexual intercourse led to marriage break-ups, because of fear of an unwanted child.

But many Canadians still didn't know about family planning, and many of those that knew didn't have adequate services available to them.

Now most people believed that children not only had the right to food, shelter, clothing and education but to recreation, and more important, to be wanted, cherished and loved.

Couples were realizing that closely-spaced pregnancies are bad for health, that late children are less likely to be healthy than those born when the mother was younger and that some people are not fit for parenthood.

It was a pity that the need for family planning had not been given the same attention as the issue of abortion.

The status of women report recommended that the Criminal Code be amended to allow a woman to have an abortion during the first 12 weeks of pregnancy.

Munro Promises More Money For Studies

OTTAWA (CP) — Getting family planning information into the hands of those who need it is shaping up as a vast undertaking, but the federal government is going to pour out more cash to try.

Health Minister John Munro announced the increased grants Tuesday as some 300 delegates from across Canada met here for the first national conference on family planning. The idea is to assess existing family planning facilities and suggest improvements.

From everyone's point of view, it seems, there is a long way to go.

One of the troubles, said Bernard Daly, an Ottawa sociologist, is that policies on such matters tend to be influenced by the "elite" of communities who get together and become experts on social policies. The process doesn't include those most concerned — the uneducated who most need family planning help.

High Priority

Mr. Munro told the conference tuesday that he is looking for positive recommendations because "I have placed a high priority upon the determiniation of the family planning needs of these of our fellow citizens, and upon making the necessary services easily available to them."

He said that in the 1972-73 fiscal year, his department will have more than $1 million available in grants to support family planning projects. He also announced that, from the current year's budget, a $385,000 grant is going to the Family Planning Federation of Canada and $40,000 to Serena Inc., of nearby Hull which is involved with family planning information and counselling services.

Two Grants

These two grants bring the federal total to $550,000 for the current year.

Mr. Munro and his department, which is sponsoring this four-day conference, had wanted to separate the family planning and abortion issues, but they had little success Tuesday. Dr. Lise Fortier, a Montreal gynecologist who heads the family planning Montreal gynecologist who heads the family planning clinic at Notre Dame Hospital, said that persons who advocate family planning while flatly refusing to consider abortions are not being realistic.

Consumer Week Opens

Today marked the opening of Consumer Week in Canada, sponsored across the country by the 70,000 strong Consumers Association of Canada, a volunteer organization.

For the local Victoria branch of the CAC, Consumer Week really began last Thursday, however, says outgoing president Mrs. J. A. Clay. That afternoon, at Camosun College, some 250 women attended a lecture and demonstration on the care and maintenance of fabrics new to the market. San Diego home economist Mrs. Barbara Lieuwen, a retailer and a dry-cleaner discussed the benefits and the pitfalls inherent in some of the new fibres, knits and blends that the consumer is likely to meet today.

Timely Topic

Thursday, 2nd March, Mrs. Clay of the CAC will be appearing on local television forum entitled Bicycle Rebriefing. In view of the recent controversy over the proposed Oak Bay bicycle path, she says, the forum's topic will be a timely one.

With Mrs. Clay on Thursday evening's panel will be a police officer, a cycle mechanic and the president of a local cycling club. All aspects of cycling, the legal, practical and the pleasurable as well as the economics of purchase will be under discussion.

Friday, March 3 Mrs. Clay will be guest on the Ida Clarkson Noon Hour Show, a duty she shares the first Friday of each month with the provincial president of the CAC, Mrs. W. E. Rolls. On Friday's program, Mrs. Clay's topic will be the recyclable aspect of buying goods. She cites as examples the purchase of bottled rather than carton milk, and returnable over non-returnable pop bottles as signs that consumers are beginning to pay heed to recycling what they consume.

Media Helps

Mrs. Clay believes that the exposure the CAC is getting in the press, on radio and TV, will help further one of her organization's basic ideals, that of keeping the consumer informed of what is being done in the marketplace.

She quoted the words of Prime Minister Trudeau as indicative of the successes of the CAC:

"Consumer protection requires an informed public," he said in a statement issued in connection with Consumer Week, "an objective to which your association has contributed significantly."

No 'Preaching' Just the Facts

HALIFAX (CP) — Students in Halifax schools are getting the facts on drug use without the usual "preaching" to make it easier for them to make a decision, says Fraser Dewis, a health education consultant for the Halifax school board.

The program, now in its second year as a formal classroom instruction, is geared towards the ultimate goal of prevention through an initial discussion of the motivational and sociological influences on the students. The actual drugs are not discussed until near the end of the program.

Last year the program concentrated on Grades 6 to 9; this year the emphasis has shifted to Grades 4 to 6.

Mr. Dewis says the shift to younger students was made after it was found that they were not necessarily taking drugs, but were being exposed to them.

A curriculum guide suggests that sessions in which attitudes and feelings are discussed may provide "the key to our success."

"If we can determine the students who are happy, unhappy or disturbed and why, then hopefully with a little concern on the teachers' part we may be able to shift them from a negative way of changing their feelings to a positive one," says the guide.

A discussion on emotions leads to a study of methods one can use to manipulate and modify his feelings in a non-chemical way. For example, the students are asked to consider the value of physical activity, arts and crafts or even going to a movie as a method of alternating moods.

Initially, teachers receive drug education from Mr. Dewis in groups of 15 or less in three one-hour sessions. They are provided with the most up-to-date information drawn from both federal and provincial government sources.

The teachers then are free to introduce the subject as part of the total health program.

A full evaluation of the education program will be carried out at the end of the school year in June.

SASKATOON (CP) — Saskatoon residents lost 25 tons of fat during 1971 — but nobody's missing it. A Star-Phoenix reporter found that about 3,000 persons enrolled in the city's recognized weight-loss clubs and special diets, calorie-counting, hobbies and exercise programs all had played a part in an estimated weight-loss of 17 pounds for each person.

A Quick, Easy Meal To Eat During Lent

By MARY MOORE

To help you with your Lenten meals we bought some fillets and prepared them in a different guise for gourmets. Surprisingly it is quick and easy and I predict you will serve them more than once during Lent and often after.

SOLE AU CITRON

(Serves 6)

NOTES: 1. For a family of three people make only half of the following quantities.

2. If this dish is to be served to reducers substitute milk for the cream.

2 lbs. sole fillets (fresh or fresh frozen)
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
3 tbsp. finely chopped green onions including tops (or 2 tbsp. bottled green chives)
1 cup water (see note below)
¼ cup lemon juice
3 tbsp. butter
3 tbsp. flour
About ½ cup whipping (32 per cent) cream (or milk)
2 tbsp. parsley (optional)

If sole fillets are frozen, thaw them. If fillets are large and wide, cut them into long strips about 2" or 2½" wide. Sprinkle them with salt and pepper and roll them up like little jelly rolls. Place close together in well-buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with green onions or chives all over the top. Mix water and lemon juice and pour in at side of dish. Do not wash onions from top. (Note: If desired, substitute ½ cup dry white wine diluted with ½ cup water for the 1 cup water and lemon juice.) Cover dish and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes or until fish will flake easily with a fork. Carefully drain pan liquid into a two-cup measuring cup and make it up to 1¾ cups by adding the heavy cream (or milk). Melt the butter, stir in the flour to blend, then stir in parsley (if used) and measured liquid until thick. Transfer fish rolls to hot platter and pour sauce over and serve. We served ours with canned asparagus, baked bananas and diced turnip.

An appetizing picture plate.

Flow of Ideas Better Than Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A high U.S. justice department official suggested recently that tobacco consumption might decline if the ban on cigarette ads on radio and television was removed.

Deputy Assistant Attorney General Bruce B. Wilson of the antitrust division, told the senate consumer subcommittee "one cannot help but question, in light of the recent statistics, whether the goal of reducing tobacco consumption might not be better served by reverting to the free flow of ideas that surrounded the smoking issue prior to the enactment of the ban."

He referred to a 1969 law which banned broadcast cigarette ads and required a precautionary warning on packages that smoking is harmful to health.

"The extension of the fairness doctrine to the advertisement of all tobacco products — not just cigarettes — would once again permit the public to make an informed choice on this controversial issue of potentially grave consequences," Wilson said.

Prior to the congressional ban on ads, the federal communications commission ruled under its fairness doctrine that radio and television stations carrying cigarette ads had to balance them with antismoking messages.

Smart City Suit

By LOIS HOLMES

Follow the knit fashion road to a smart city suit or a deftly detailed cardigan in the type of pattern that's always in demand. One-needle favorite it's knitted from the neck down, starting with stockinette and embodying an interesting stitch pattern called English Lace.

Single crochet borders help to firm the shape of the garment. The points of the stand-up collar touch slightly to create a flattering new neckline.

This daytime suit is clear-cut and well proportioned, an understated suit for those who enjoy an active life.

Sizes small, medium and large are all included in the pattern.

To order: Hand Knit 733 One-Needle Lace Cardigan Suit, send $1.50 in American funds to Lois Holmes of California, Victoria Times, Box 6002, Inglewood, Calif. 90301.

Please print your name, address and pattern number plainly. Send 15 cents for each pattern for first-class mail and special handling or 25 cents each for air-mail.

Daytime suit is well proportioned.

Driver to Benefit

Like anything that is new and different, the yellow line soon to appear on our streets and highways is coming in for a fair share of criticism as well as approval.

Latest issue of the B.C. Motorist spells out the coming change in a half-page article headed Caution—Yellow Down the Centre.

It then goes on to say that new pavement marking devices will be introduced this year on all North American highways and that the lane marking color will designate the traffic direction.

In other words, white lines will separate lanes with traffic moving in the same direction. Yellow lines will separate lanes with traffic moving in opposite directions.

Yellow Lines

On two-lane undivided highways, the lines separating traffic will be yellow.

On highways with two or more lanes of traffic travelling in the same direction, the lane lines will be white.

Yellow lines will also be used on divided highways with centre medians that are not wide enough to permit safe emergency stopping.

The B.C. Motorist adds that it will be some time before these new pavement markings are in general use.

In the meantime, motorists are urged to exercise caution, to watch for the new markings and to pay particular attention to traffic signs and signals which indicate the direction of traffic flow.

Grumbles about the use of the new color include the idea that a yellow line will not show up as well as a white one in fog or heavy rain.

Wrong, says Ray Hadfield, head of the provincial motor vehicles branch. It's been pretty well established that a white line melds into the reflected light from cars on wet or foggy streets and highways.

Tests made on some roads, by placing yellow lines on the outside edges show that, unlike white, the new color does not disappear in reflected light.

As far as I'm concerned, the more you separate traffic and the less you ask a driver to do, the safer things are. Also, a properly marked street, road or highway (and a properly illuminated one) keeps down the death and injury rates.

Let me say too that I believe it pays to stay on your own side of the road. By that I mean not just driving in the correct lane but leaving yourself a margin of safety by driving on the right-hand side of your lane, especially around curves.

Then, if the other fellow accidentally takes a little more than his share of the highway, he won't take you with him.

Believe it or not, statistics show that one of the major causes of accident fatalities is failure to stay on the right side of the centre line.

Every time you cross that line, white or yellow, especially when passing, your chance of an accident increases.

Think about that when you drive.

dear abby

Wife Gets Warning

DEAR ABBY: I know it's impossible, but I would give a year's pay to meet "Practically Untouched," because I am just as hungry for affection as she is.

There is only one difference. My wife loves me (I think) and she is an attractive, intelligent woman who is fun to be with. I just can't get her into the bedroom.

If I want to retire early, she stays up watching television until I'm asleep. Or pretends to be.

I am no sluch, either. I'm 6 feet 1 and weigh 180. I'm fit as a fiddle, have a headfull of premature silver grey hair, play golf and tennis in summer and handball in winter.

In our 25 years of marriage, my wife and I have never gone off for a weekend together. She still calls it "nonsense" to run off and leave the chilren, who are now 23 and 24, and married with families of their own.

I have never cheated on her in my life. My parental influence and religious training still sticks. But how long can I curb these growing frustrations? I am constantly propositioned by widows and neighbors. Even some of my friends' wives drop little hints. It's one big battle, and it's not getting any easier. Sign me — On the Verge.

DEAR ON: I hope this letter reaches you in time because you sound like a man with one foot in somebody else's bed. You say your wife is intelligent. If she is, sit her down and read this letter to her! And if your life at home doesn't improve after that, she can't say she wasn't warned.

DEAR ABBY: You were unfair to those of us who do needlework while conversing with others.

Some folks smoke because it "relaxes" them. Well, knitting relaxes me? And my knitting doesn't bother anyone. But their smoking sure bothers me. Apologize! — Mrs. K. E.

DEAR MRS. E: I already apologized for that one.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Thurs., March 2, 1972

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't be deceived by apparent rebuff. You are making headway — in personal and professional areas. Key is to understand one who seems gruff. You are being tested. Listen, observe and learn.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Tread lightly. Maintain low profile. Get basic issues settled in quiet, efficient manner. Avoid extremes. Dealings with Capricorn indicated. Efforts made in recent past could provide fulfillment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't permit those who lack imagination to dampen your creative urges. You have chance now to broaden sphere of influence. Aries figures prominently. Make amends to young person for recent, unintentional slight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): If you insist on old methods, you will find yourself in rut. Different, original approach is necessary for progress. Act accordingly. Leo is in picture. Check property, including plumbing and other basics.

LEO (July 21-Aug. 22): Cooperate with Cancer-born individual. Accent is on movement, ideas, intuitive intellect. Answers are found in out-of-way places. Forget grudge against relative. You'll be happier as result. Message will be clarified.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your adversary now is tendency to be extravagant. Key is to try many avenues of expression. However, strive to focus on eventual goal. Otherwise, efforts will be scattered. Conserve assets. Don't give up something of value for mere promise.

LUBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Check details. Apparent minor matters may be more important than imagined. You have fine opportunity to straighten out property dispute. Key is to present case with air of quiet confidence. Family member will concede.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Make changes without throwing out past lessons. Be creative, not confused. Speak up, but don't promote senseless arguments. People now confide in you. Maintain dignity. Be a good listener. Then you make solid gain.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): What appeared a financial problem will be resolved. You are not without allies. You discover meaning of goodwill, friendship. You are aided because you helped someone in recent past.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may be trying to expand too quickly. Get realistic picture. Accent now is on how to achieve goal. Professional superior is willing to lend helping hand. Pisces is in picture. You can streamline procedures.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Path is cleared for you. Older persons take a liking and you get proper credentials. Express appreciation — in writing. Plan advertising program. Spread message. Loved one has right to degree of privacy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You gain by joining forces with Capricorn. Friendship can blossom. Money situation improves. Communication lines are opened. What was a mystery is solved. Delve beneath surface indications.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are musical, sensitive to moods of others, capable of expressing yourself through written word and dramatic gesture. Home adjustment is indicated, with possible change of residence. September and November are key months for you in 1972.

To find out who's lucky for you in money and love, order Sydney Omarr's booklet, "Secret Hints for Men and Women." Send birthdate and 75 cents (no cheques) to Omarr Astrology Secrets, c-o The Times.

BACK TO BOOKS FOR N.S. POLICE

SYDNEY (N.S. (CP) — Police chiefs and constable share classrooms with university students and social workers at Xavier College studying criminology.

The first program of its kind in the Atlantic provinces is a multi-disciplinary one involving staff and resources from many departments in focussing on important aspects of law and order.

The program offers a diploma or certificate at the end of two to three years of study.

Town police forces in Cape Breton are depresented in the student ranks as are RCMP, probation officers, several students of labor law and social workers.

The certificate program involves three years of work with two university level non-credit courses each year. The diploma program consists of four years work with two full college credit courses during each of the four years. The basic courses now being taught must be taken by all students in the certificate program.

Blakeney Denies Purge of Civil Service

the prairies

REGINA (CP) — Premier Allan Blakeney told the legislature Tuesday his government had dismissed 31 employees during its 240 days in power, one of them a drunk, several who failed to appear for work after holidays and one who tried to get into a fight on the job.

The premier, entering the throne speech debate for the first time during the current session, defended the dismissals and rejected opposition claims they amounted to a "purge."

He was replying to Allan Guy, the Liberal member for Athabasca, who accused the New Democratic Party government of purging the civil service and hiring political hacks and friends in high-paying posts.

Taxes 'Fair'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer has disputed a claim by the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce that proposed succession duties and gift taxes will hurt business prospects in Manitoba.

He said the planned legislation is similar to law in effect in eight other provinces and is more generous to business than the laws of some provinces. Schreyer said his NDP government is unwilling to sacrifice a system of fair taxation in order to cater to business interests. "There is such a thing as paying too high a price to attract anything, including industry," he said.

Twins Die

LYNN LAKE, Man. (CP) — Two-year-old twin brothers were killed Tuesday afternoon in a fire that destroyed their parents' house at Loon Narrows, about 600 miles northeast of Winnipeg. RCMP said the dead children are David and Donald McLeod. They were asleep at the time of the fire believed to have started in the area of a stove.

Poverty Seen

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien was exposed to numerous examples of Indian poverty during his three-day tour of northern Manitoba, says Steve Anderson, a spokesman for the Manitoba Indian Brotherhood.

Chretien "saw for himself what we have been trying to say to Ottawa for years," Anderson said.

Chretien was presented with a brief prepared by a group of northern Indian chiefs. The brief said a "more criminal aspect of federal government policy is its failure to provide employment. The undisputable fact is that the unemployment level in northern Manitoba is 10 times greater than what is regarded as acceptable nationally."

Resort Approved

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — The Alberta Travel Industry Association has given its approval to a proposed $30 million resort centre at Lake Louise in Banff national park.

The plans have been opposed by conservationists who say that national parks are no place for major resorts and by others who say the resort would be controlled by United States interests.

The project was proposed by Imperial Oil Ltd. and Lake Louise Lifts, partners in Village Lake Louise Ltd., created to build the 3,500-bed centre. Imperial Oil is about 65 per cent owned by Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

Pilot Killed

COLD LAKE, Alta. (CP) — The body of Capt. Robert James Pettman, 30, a student pilot whose family lives in the Moose Jaw area, was found Tuesday in the wreckage of a Canadian forces T-33 jet trainer.

The trainer, missing since Monday on a routine training flight, was found in a wooded area at Green Lake, Sask., 100 miles southeast of Cold Lake.

Poisonings Rise

EDMONTON (CP) — The incidence of poisonings in Alberta have more than doubled during the last eight years and a provincial official says part of the increase can't be explained.

The provincial poison control service said 145 people died from poisoning in the province in 1971 and there were 5,129 incidents involving poisons. In 1964 there were 58 deaths and 3,313 incidents. In 1970 there were 129 deaths and 4,764 incidents.

Dr. Charlotte Dafoe, service director, said part of the increase involved the population increase and improved efficiency in reporting cases. But part of the increase still is not explained. "We just don't know why," she said.

Scanner Urged

REGINA (CP) — A coroner's jury has recommended more supervision and a scanning system, such as closed-circuit television, for city police jails. The recommendation came during an inquest into the death of Raymond Keith Arnold of Regina, who hanged himself in his cell recently 11 minutes after he was arrested on charges of break, entry and theft.

'Consul' Caught

WINNIPEG (CP) — A man who posed for part of last year as the Luxembourg consul in Winnipeg has been sentenced to one year in jail for 13 criminal convictions, nine of them involving false pretences.

Svein Dag Strom, 36, no fixed address, was described by crown prosecutor Chrys Iwanchuk as "a con man of the highest order. He has been doing this as a way of life for the past seven years."

Iwanchuk said Strom arrived in Winnipeg last August, assumed the title of Dag Vedel von Jarlsberg, consul of Luxembourg. He obtained consulate licence plates from the government motor vehicle branch, and ran up a string of debts totalling about $10,000.

Doctor on Trial

EDMONTON (CP) — A doctor whose case aroused the interests of civil liberties groups across Canada has been summoned to appear in court on charges of criminal negligence in the deaths of four patients, undergoing treatment for drug addiction.

Dr. John David Craig, who operates a skid row clinic to treat alcoholics and drug addicts, had been charged earlier with defrauding the Alberta Hospital Insurance Commission of $43 in nine claims made on April 6, 1970.

At the time of his arrest on the first charge, Dr. Craig's medical files containing case histories of his patients were seized, causing an outcry from civil liberties groups.

Theatre Fined

SASKATOON (CP) — A city theatre has been fined $1,000 in magistrate's court today for showing the film The Stewardesses.

Judge R. H. King levied the fine on the Midtown Theatre, for showing obscene entertainment. King said that the film, seized by city police in December showed undue exploitation of sex and that sex was the prominent characteristic of the film.

Blackout Cure?

CALGARY (CP) — A University of Calgary scientific team says it has developed a centralized controlling system suited to preventing massive power failures.

"The idea works — it's proved to be even better than we expected," said Dr. G. S. Hope, one of two associate professors co-ordinating the product funded by a national research council grant. "It's now just a matter of making refinements, putting together the best possible system."

Heart Trouble

REGINA (CP) — A city needs a sound heart, and Regina is having heart trouble, says a report by planning director Harry Helmark.

A city, to remain alive and exciting, needs a "viable and well-defined core, supported by a high-density inner-city residential zone and a balanced system of commercial and service centres throughout the city," Helmark said, explaining his plan is designed to stir discussion in the hope that solutions will be found to the problems of vacant buildings, congested traffic, lost business taxes and "the virtual degeneration of the heart of this city."

New Mirror No More

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Daily Mirror, blaming printing and distribution problems, went out of existence Tuesday night.

The newspaper was launched Jan. 4, 1971, with many of the columnists of the old Daily Mirror. Managing editor Gilbert Carter said the paper had reached a circulation of about 50,000.

"We thought we had one of the best metropolitan daily newspapers and without the problem of distribution we could have made it," Carter said.

QC BAN SOUGHT

An NDP MLA Tuesday introduced a bill in the legislature which would end the practice of awarding the Queen's Counsel honor in B.C.

The bill, entitleed An Act to Repeal the Queen's Counsel Act, was given first reading after being introduced by James Lorimer (NDP—Burnaby-Willingdon).

Lorimer is a lawyer but not a QC. His bill, as a private member's bill, has little chance of being approved.

Nfld. Pushes School Plans

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)— Newfoundland business and industry are becoming more efficient and modernized and more Newfoundlanders are preparing to meet the demand for skilled and trained personnel.

Approximately 163,000 students, close to one-third of the province's population, now attend classes from kindergarten to Grade 11 in more than 800 schools across the island.

In addition to primary, elementary and secondary schools, there are 14 district vocational schools, three private schools, one school for the deaf and one for retarded children.

In 1948, the year before Newfoundland joined Canada, the spending by the Newfoundland government on education was slightly more than $3½ million. Since Confederation about $600 million, or more than $27 million a year for the 22-year period, has been spent on upgrading and improvements.

Until the early 1940s education was voluntary on the island. A child's chances of attending school depended often on the whims of parents and their attitudes towards learning. But economic conditions were probably the most important factor governing school attendance.

BECAME COMPULSORY

All schools depended on the collection of fees and pupils were sometimes denied admission because of non-payment. Youngsters were also kept home from school to work on fishing boats and help with household chores and the curing of the cod catch.

In 1942, the commission government, which preceded Confederation, made education compulsory throughout the island. Collection of fees was dropped, making schools free for all.

Former education minister Dr. F. W. Rowe said last summer that student aid alone during the 1970 academic year amounted to almost $11 million.

He said the figure will be much higher for the present fiscal year ending March 31, 1972, since the number of scholarships has been doubled, 300 new bursaries valued at $400 each have been made available to university students and mothers' allowances have been increased by 25 per cent.

Alberta Land Issue

EDMONTON (CP) — Discrimination—by most definitions—is written into the law of Alberta.

The discrimination has the backing of the Supreme Court of Canada and the support of much of rural Alberta. The provincial government, however, is committed through election campaign promises to a bill of rights which would appear to bar such discrimination.

This is the background to the conflict surrounding the government's decision—reached indirectly—to reopen the controversy that has always surrounded the Hutterites—7,200 Alberta residents who live a strict, near-cloistered life on rural communes. The Hutterites say this is so they can serve God better.

The Progressive Conservative government which came into office last August has decided to review the Communal Property Act which states at the beginning that it is specifically directed against Hutterites, Doukhobors and others who hold communal property.

PROVIDES FINES

The act sets out fines of $500 or a year in jail for Hutterites or Doukhobors who buy land for communal living or for anyone who sells it to them, without cabinet permission. It also limits the size of communes.

Saskatchewan has 2,300 Hutterites but no legislation controlling them. However, a 1958 agreement between the government and Hutterite leaders is still in effect and contains many provisions similar to Alberta's legislation.

Manitoba, the Union of Municipalities and representatives of the more than 4,000 Hutterites in that province signed an agreement in 1956 limiting the total acreage that Hutterites could hold in a district. The agreement, however, was never ratified by the legislature and has no legal footing.

Few argue that the Alberta act, in specifically directing prohibitions against two religious groups, does not constitute some form of discrimination, defined by the dictionary as the observation of a difference or distinction.

HOSTILITY CREATED

But many Albertans say that discrimination may be necessary because restrictions on Hutterites are essential due to economics, not religion.

Hutterites occupy 579,653 acres of farm land in Alberta, or 1.2 per cent of the total, mostly in the southern part of the province. They keep mainly to themselves, are efficient farmers and frequently bypass local merchants to buy in bulk at wholesale prices in the cities. The population of colonies has traditionally doubled every 17 years, causing the formation of new colonies.

They have aroused fear and hostility since their founding as a product of the Protestant Reformation in central Europe in the 16th century.

Morris Davis and Joseph F. Krauter described the problem in the book The Other Canadians:

"... It is no easy matter to accommodate a group such as the Hutterites, who, even while constituting no positive threat, nevertheless adamantly refuse to participate in any meaningful way in the social, cultural and political life of the larger community. Such a stance is sure, it must be admitted, to arouse fear and misunderstanding among the majority."

BILL UPHELD

Complaints about the Hutterites led the Social Credit government of the time to pass the Communal Property Act in 1947.

The Hutterites tried a court test of the bill in 1969, arguing that it dealt with religion and thus was beyond the authority of the Alberta government. The Supreme Court, however, ruled unanimously that the bill dealt with land ownership in the province, a matter within the jurisdiction of the provincial legislature.

The government later set up a board to administer the act and give it more flexibility. The original requirement that no new Hutterite colony could be located within 40 miles of an existing colony was reduced to a "guideline" of 15 miles.

REVIEW PLANNED

But in December the new Progressive Conservative government dismissed the board. Municipal Affairs Minister Dave Russell, whose department administers the act, said the dismissal resulted from a written promise the board made to a municipal district, saying that no new Hutterite colonies would be established there.

The Conservatives were not told of this commitment when they took over from Social Credit after the Aug. 30 provincial election, he said. Nevertheless, three months later the board recommended approval of a new colony in the same area.

The government said in dismissing the board that it would use the opportunity to review the whole concept of the communal properties legislation which, Mr. Russell said, "does not appear entirely satisfactory."

No changes would be expected until possibly this fall and no applications for new Hutterite colonies will be considered until a decision is made, he said.

COLD STEAM VAPORIZERS 'DANGEROUS'

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

Vaporizers that produce a "cold steam" may aggravate symptoms of asthma and at times actually make the illness worse, a doctor warns.

The vaporizers, which operate by droplet fragmentation, may spread certain forms of fungi which develop within the vaporizer reservoir, Dr. William R. Solomon told a meeting of the American Academy of Allergy. Dr. Solomon said that in a study he conducted, air samples taken before and during operation showed that fungi and other contaminants in a room increased as much as 470 fold.

The allergist said he tested 14 different "cold steam" vaporizers. In seven, where yeasts predominated among the contaminants, the contamination diminished somewhat after careful cleansing, he said. When filamentous forms of contaminants predominated, cleansing did not help at all, he said.

SPOT REDUCING

California scientists have cast doubt on the widely held belief that you can reduce the amount of fat at a given part of the body by exercising just that part.

The researchers at the Orange County Medical Centre, Orange, Calif., measured the circumference of both forearms of tennis players and found that while the playing arm was invariable bigger, the thickness of fat under the skin was essentially identical for both arms.

The investigators noted that exercise does indeed reduce total body fat but said their evidence questions the idea of spot reduction, and they concluded with the obsetvation from Shakespeare's Hamlet: "There is a divinity that shapes our ends."

LONG LIFE

If you'd like to live to 100, your chances would be better if you lived in the Soviet Union, and were a woman as well.

The probabilities of a man aged 65 surviving to age 100 range from a low of about one per 1,000 persons in England and Wales to a high of nearly nine per 1,000 in the Soviet Union, says the Statistical Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. The probabilities for women vary from about three per 1,000 in England, Wales and New Zealand, to a high of nearly 25 per 1,000 in the Soviet Union.

BEWARE THE WIND

A warning to be on guard against frostbite comes from the New York state health department. The danger: The wind chill factor.

"Even on relatively warm winter days, the cooling effects of the wind can create the same results as a much lower temperature," says Dr. Hollis S. Ingraham, commissioner.

The combination of a 20-degree day and a 20-mile-an-hour wind creates the equivalent condition of a temperature of nine below zero on a calm day, he reports.

Snowmobilers and skiers are especially vulnerable to frostbite and should stop frequently to check exposed areas for loss of feeling and other signs of frostbite, the commissioner advises.

STAY LOOSE

People who are "narrow of outlook and rigid in their views" appear to be candidates for the depressions that can come on in middle life.

"There's a certain type of person who becomes ill in middle life, and if one word would characterize it, it's rigidity," said Dr. Francis J. Braceland at a symposium at the Cleveland Clinic.

Dr. Braceland, senior consultant at the Institute of Living in Hartford, Conn., said doctors should be able to distinguish real depression from grief. Grief, he said, is based on real factors. "Depression, on the other hand, involves a feeling of self-doubt, and is internal."

Relief Record

NEW YORK (AP) — The number of persons receiving welfare payments in New York City has risen to 1.27 million, "the highest point in years," says Jule Sugarman, human resources administrator. Sugarman said Monday night the welfare load is increasing by 8,000 to 10,000 persons a month.

Dublin's Irish—Privileged Class in Britain

LONDON (CP) — At the heart of Britain's current quarrel with the Republic of Ireland over the agonizing crisis in Ulster lies an anomaly —as is usually the case with relations between London and Dublin.

The anomaly is that some of the protest about Northern Ireland comes from natives of the republic who enjoy a privileged status among outsiders living in Britain.

One unofficial estimate places the number of native Irish now residing in Britain at about one million.

The last complete census figures, dating from 1966 and based only on the number of residents acknowledging the fact of having been born in the republic, showed that at least 700,000 such persons lived in England, Scotland and Wales.

Chanting loud denunciations of the Ulster policies followed by their host country, thousands of Irish-born residents frequently paraded down Whitehall in processions occasionally disrupted by clashes with police at Downing Street and drawing passionate inspiration from anger over the actions of British soldiers in Northern Ireland.

Echoing Ulster MP Bernadette Devlin, the Irish paraders in London condemn the British soldiers as if they were foreign troops rather than the military arm of the very country which has allowed the protesters unimpeded entry and a subsequent freedom from the bureaucratic headaches that are the usual lot of foreign immigrants here.

The ordinary Briton is normally tolerant of what he might construe as this ungrateful behavior, largely because the Irish and their traditional brand of patriotism have long been an accepted feature of life in Britain at every level. It is also conceded that the Irish perform vital jobs unlikely to attract native Englishmen.

One of the main worries at present is that the intensified conflict in Ulster and the recent anti-British violence in Dublin might disrupt the customary tranquillity of Anglo-Irish relations within Britain. There seems to be less chance of a serious impact on the tightly integrated economic ties between this country and southern Ireland.

Occasionally an Englishma in a London pub can be heard sounding off impatiently about the Irish or expressing irritation that the flamboyant wearers of the green should see fit to brandish their anti-British slogans while still given favored treatment in this country.

In reply, the Irish here cite their contribution to the British economy and also argue that a relaxation of the immigration rules is the least Britain can offer to migrants from a country which, to their mind, has suffered much at the hands of London officials in the past.

Maverick MP Enoch Powell is prominent among those Britons who suggest that, since southern Ireland displays such pride in being a non-British, sovereign state, it should be placed in the same category with other foreign countries as far as immigration rules are concerned.

British critics of the republic often link this line of argument with the proposition that Dublin's much-vaunted independence is partly unreal in view of the south's economic reliance on Britain.

The critics contend that this country has shown great forbearance in not resorting to a tightening of its immigration rules or to economic retaliation as a way of countering Dublin's stand on the Ulster crisis.

A letter to The Times from a Sussex resident incensed by developments in Northern Ireland, expressed fear that there now will be "a backlash in Britain by (those) . . . no longer willing to see their soldiers shot or their policemen injured in the interests of a turbulent and seemingly irrational people who rely on us for their economic existence."

Irishmen from both north and south "have free access to our country and liberty of expression here and . . . treated by our laws better than our relatives in Australia or New Zealand or Canada," said letter-writer P. G. B. Wills.

Once here, immigrants from the Irish republic go into a wide variety of jobs, working for a time in Britain and then returning home with extra money for their families or settling permanently on this side of the Irish Sea.

In the 19th century, laborers from Ireland—an island then united but entirely under British control—made a vital contribution to the construction of pioneer railway lines in this country.

WORKED ON AIRSTRIPS

That tradition of the Irish as trail-blazers in the British construction industry was vigorously sustained through the years of the Second World War, even though southern Ireland remained officially aloof from the Anglo-German conflict.

From 1939 to 1945, laborers from independent, neutral Ireland led the way in building the roads and airstrips vital to the British-based forces fighting against Germany.

Even now, the Irish still maintain a solid placee in Britain's construction gangs. But the Irish in Britain are by no means exclusively working-class or concerned solely with those other strongholds of men from the republic, sport and show business.

For decades, Irish intellectuals have been conspicuous among the makers of British art and literature.

In fact, prior to the latest eruption of controversy over Ulster, the trend was towards a growing integration of the Irish-concentrated mainly in Glasgow, Liverpool, Birmingham and parts of London—into the general run of British society.

The influence of tradition-minded Irish organizations in these cities was beginning to wae or at least to become less stridently out of step with tendencies elsewhere in the community.

Fewer Irishmen are arriving in Liverpool these days and the ones who do are passing naturally into British life as a whole, an authority on Irish immigration remarked in an article published last year. Liverpool is the perennial gateway to Britain for immigrating Irishmen.

Politically, the Irish in Britain have for the most part thrown their electoral weight behind the Labor party, a reflection both of their working-class affiliations and of the link between the British Conservatives and the solidly-Protestant Unionist party in Ulster.

In local and national elections, however "there are no more than two dozen seats in which the Irish can decide the results," argued Birmingham MP Roy Hattersley in an apparent effort to rebut allegations that Labor's Ulster policies are at least partly designed as a ploy to retain the valuable votes of Irishment living here.

It seems certain, however, that the white-hot war of words over Ulster will pump new life into the Irish patriotic organizations active in Britain.

Festival Slated

OTTAWA (CP) — Festival Canada, a month-long celebration ranging from woodchopping to opera, will be staged here again this July, the state secretary's department announced Tuesday.

The festival will begin June 30, the eve of Canada's national holiday, with a variety show and fireworks display on Parliament Hill. Activities will extend through the month in Ottawa and neighboring countryside.

Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener will present new colors to the Governor-General's Foot Guards on Parliament Hill July 1 as part of the ceremonies marking the 105th anniversary of the British North America Act.

Is Your Breath What It Used To Be?

Bad breath has a number of causes. Age is a factor—so are dentures, caps, bridgework, gum trouble and so on. But Steri/sol Oral Antiseptic does much to control "aging breath" problems. You see, Steri/sol is the only mouthwash with Hexetidine—the powerful germ killer that deprives mouth bacteria of thiamine. Without thiamine, the mouth-germs that cause bad breath cannot live.
When you are worried about "aging breath", rinse with Steri/sol. Steri/sol is specially designed to combat these particular breath problems. The germ killing action of Hexetidine starts immediately, and within 15 minutes up to 95% of bad breath bacteria are eliminated. And because the Hexetidine in Steri/sol clings to mouth and gum tissues, the bactericidal action keeps on working up to 10 hours to help you feel really sure about your breath.
Put Steri/sol to work on bad breath right away. It does cost more than you might usually pay for a mouthwash, but then Steri/sol is not your usual mouthwash. Sold only at pharmacies.

Del Cielo Assessments Soar

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The Dufferin district court of revision has reassessed five Del Cielo Heights Co. Ltd. properties within the municipality's boundaries at 41 per cent of market value for school purposes, about 40 times more than the previous assessment of the properties.

District assessor Andy Brown said Tuesday the court ordered the reassessment to bring the properties into line with others in the 6,000-acre municipality near Kamlooops.

The 41-per-cent total is the average for the school assessments in Dufferin. The five parcels of land had been assessed at levels ranging from less than one per cent of market value to 1.2 per cent of market value.

NEW VALUES

Under the revision, the five parcels will be increased in assessed value to $98,400 from $2,300; $262,400 from $5,565; $131,200 from $5,890; $65,553 from $2,624; and $43,259 from $1,276.

The difference between the previous assessments and the new assessments for the five parcels of land is $582,057 and will yield estimated school tax revenues of $25,000.

Alleged discrepancies in Dufferin assessments were aired in the Legislature last week by Bill Headen, Kamloops assessor and Bob Williams, New Democratic Party MLA for Vancouver East.

The Del Cielo land is partly owned by former Dufferin mayor Charlie Bennett. The land was rezoned from farm classification to residential and commercial while he was in office last year.

When assessed for the municipality's general purposes taxes, it was considered as residential and commercial but for school and hospital purposes the assessment was based on the old farm classification.

Money Restored

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Court of Appeal has ruled that Canada Pension Plan benefits cannot be deducted from damages awarded under the Families Compensation Act.

The appeal court made the ruling in restoring to Mrs. Rajinder Kaur Gill of Mission $21,318 deducted in a B.C. Supreme Court ruling that awarded her damages for the death of her husband, Pall Singh Gill, 42, at the time of his death in a highway accident in 1968.

The ruling restoring the $21,000 brings total damages to $55,999.

Dairies Fighting

VERNON (CP) — NOCA Dairy, an interior-based farmers' co-operative, began selling its products in the lower mainland today. A spokesman for the company said the move was made because the Fraser Valley Milk Producers' Association has been making inroads into the interior market. NACO Dairy's milk will sell at prevailing market prices.

Meeting Delayed

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — City council has rescheduled its public hearing on the third crossing of Burrard Inlet to March 22 from March 15. Council agreed to the change after being told that the March 15 hearings scheduled for both Vancouver and North Vancouver would prevent the appearance here of representatives of Swan Wooster Ltd., the firm which designed the proposed $177 million tunnel crossing.

CABINET LEAKS NOT SERIOUS

By the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

How troubled are Canadians about such cabinet leaks to the press, as that of the Gray report? Do they consider these leaks to the public before cabinet decisions on policy have been made, and which appear to be getting more frequent, as a serious problem or not?

Whether young or old, the public divides into almost equal numbers on the issue. About four in ten consider them very, or fairly serious, and another four in ten, dismiss the situation as not serious at all. The other two are not sure.

This split opinion may come from a current credibility gap which appears to exist in certain areas between the people and the government. For example, the current consensus among a majority of the voters (55%) is that Ottawa is not telling them enough about the inflation threat, while almost half (45%) say this is also true about unemployment.

Opinion as to the seriousness of cabinet leaks runs at very similar levels through all age groups. Whether Canadians are under 30 or over 50, for example, 25% of them describe the leaks as very serious. Younger Canadians are more likely to give them no importance than are those over 50 as these voters are more undecided.

The question:

"As you may know there have been several leaks to the press of cabinet documents before cabinet decisions on policy have been made. How serious do you think these leaks are — very serious or not serious?"

Here's the reaction, showing how closely Canadians are in agreement whether young, middleaged, or old.

	Very Serious	Fairly Serious	Not Serious At All	Can't Say
CANADA	25%	19%	40%	16%
Under 30	25	16	43	16
30 - 39 years	22	21	44	13
40 - 50 years	18	20	43	19
Over 50	25	20	32	23

2,000 Bachelors 'Arrested'

AURORA, Ill. (AP) — The poser puff government of Aurora ordered the arrest of all bachelors Tuesday and by mid-afternoon more than 2,000 men paid fines of up to $5 each.

The arrests were made as unmarried girls took over all civic posts in the city on Feb. 29 for the thrid consecutive Leap Year.

Dianna Hartman, 19, taking over the mayor's chair in the morning, proclaimed the downtown area Bachelorville and ordered the police chief to round up all single men.

The men either admitted they were bachelors at the time of their arrests, for which they paid $5 and were let go or else appeared before Jane Strombers, judge in a makebelieve court. She dispensed justice with an even hand, fining each defendant $3.

Proceeds went to the Aurora Heart Fund.

Gairy Re-Elected

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (Reuter) — The Grenada United Labor party, led by Premier Eric Gairy, was swept back into power Monday night in general elections held in this Caribbean state. With one result to come, the governing party had won 12 seats in the 15-member House against only two for the opposition Grenada National party, led by Herbert Blazie.

History of Beards an On-Off Affair

TORONTO (CP) — As in any other fashion, beards come and go, though they have not always been worn just to look natty.

They may have had religious and social significance and in the mid-19th century, some beard lovers said they staved off disease and consumption by keeping the throat warm and filtering air on its way to the lungs.

Derwyn F. Phillips, president of Gillette of Canada, says practical considerations such as climate have also had to do with beards.

In ancient Egypt where shaving was the rule, beards were worn to indicate rank and, because of the intense heat, the beards were usually false.

BARBERS POPULAR

Mr. Phillips says the earliest know shaving sets, dating from about 2,000 BC, had bronze razors, grit stone hones, mirrors with ivory handles and shaving mugs.

"A crescent-shaped razor was developed late in the fifth century and barber shops became popular gathering places in Greece in which to gossip and philosophize while being shaved. A fad of allowing only the moustache to grow developed.

"In Rome the upper classes were shaved by their slaves and others went to public barber shops. The Romans are believed to have been the first to use warm water for shaving, and their razors were flat and straight. Until soap became generally available during the Middle Ages, daily shaving was almost unknown."

Beards became fashionable again in France in the 14th century and false beards appeared in Spain. One man might have several colors and styles to wear for various occasions.

WERE SIGN OF AGE

Mr. Phillips says beards were a sign of age, dignity or importance during the 15th century.

"Sixteenth-century shaving customs were especially noteworthy.

"Henry VIII liked beards and short hair so his subjects followed suit. But throughout history, whenever there has been a beard faction, there has been an anti-beard faction. In 1535 in France the Edict of Beards forbade anyone to appear in the hall of justice with a long beard."

Periwigs put a temporary end to beard-wearing in the mid-17th century. As the wig got bigger, face hair disappeared, even the moustache, and men were usually clean-shaven until the 19th century. Not always because they wanted to be, though. Peter the Great of Russia imposed a beard tax to make people stop wearing them.

Beards faded again during the last decades of the last century and the safety razor was invented in 1895. In 1902 a barber's magazine in England said one out of every three men was his own barber.

Moustaches have been common through the 20th century, from Kaiser Wilhelm's upturned one, to the pencil-line style worn by Hollywood stars.

The return of the beard began slowly in the 1950s and built through the 1960s.

Now that beards and complicated networks of sideburns and moustaches are widespread, Mr. Phillips says some people are predicting the tide of hair is about to turn again and they will gradually disappear.

LOW BID ACCEPTED ON NEW CENTRE

Saanich council's special committee for the new Cedar Hill community centre recommended Monday that council accept the low bid for the project of $308,138, submitted by Herb Bate Ltd.

This sum is about $48,000 more than the $260,000 allocated for the building under a 1967 bylaw, and the committee is recommending that the balance be made good from the tax land sale account.

Meanwhile, committee chairman Ald. Alan Newberry is to meet with architect Alan Lester to review the plans with a view to making possible further cost cuts.

Students Learn The Indian Way

DUNCAN — Students, teachers and Cowichan Indian Band members are making a great success of Indian Culture Month at Quamichan Junior Secondary School.

By March 17 the 212 Grade 8 students in the school will have been instructed in Indian writing, local and B.C. Indian history, the band's dancing and music as well as crafts such as wood carving, knitting and beadwork.

Highlight of the culture month will be a concert by Capilano Indian Chief Dan George and his two sons and son-in-law at the school on March 10.

It's Repotting Time For Those House Plants

With the coming of March, the month of Spring whatever the current weather, repotting of several kinds of house plants can be done with good results.

One which may need this attention is your palm, before making new growth in the next few weeks.

A warning first. Do not repot unless the present pot is filled with roots.

An easy way to find out, providing the pot is not over six inches in diameter, is to remove the plant and look at the rootball.

To do this, first water thoroughly, leaving for a half hour to moisten the soil completely. Then invert the pot with the right hand, holding the left hand across the soil with fingers around the stem of the palm. Give the edge of the pot a sharp tap on a bench or table edge to dislodge the rootball. Lift off the pot and inspect the rootball.

It will be intact; this is important especially with palms, for they develop browned leaf edges from root disturbance.

If you see a tight mass of matted roots — repot. If few or no roots can be seen in the soil, put the pot back into place. Set the plant upright again, and tap the bottom of the pot on the bench, this time to resettle the rootball firmly in the pot.

Sometimes a palm seems to need a boost of some kind, yet not require repotting.

Scratch off a little topsoil with an old fork, perhaps for an inch in a five-inch pot, and replace with fresh rotted leafmould or screened compost mixed with a little medium grade sand.

Be sure the finished level is still an inch below the edge of the pot to allow ample space for watering.

If complete repotting is needed, choose a pot only one size larger than the previous. Do not disturb the roots. Compost mixture for palms should be rather heavy—two-thirds coarse compost and one-third medium grade sand. Put a little in the bottom of the fresh pot, place the palm on top, and fill in around the side with the mixture.

Tamp the mixture rather tightly from the edge of the pot to the bottom, using a blunt-ended piece of wood of suitable length.

Tight potting is useful for many house plants which are normally trees in their native homes.

Some palms grow in dense jungles, almost continually flooded by the Amazon and Madeira Rivers in Brazil; others in desert country with water only at roots. We cannot always decide accurately which kind we have. Generalizing, those with more or less stemless fans like the human "palm" (which came first, the chicken or the egg?) grow in more moist soil than those with long stems to the fans of long narrow leaflets with a central stem.

Again in general, the jungle kinds of palms will want more humidity in the air than is usual in our present homes.

SOLUTION THURSDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Quite often during any given year, today's deal is submitted to me by various readers, with the question: "How does South fulfill his grand-slam contract in hearts?" The answer is presented forthwith.

The origin of the deal is unknown, but through the decades it has persisted as the best "double dummy" problem deal in bridge. (By "double dummy" is meant that you're allowed to look at all four hands to determine the solution.) Many players — even our better ones — have spent many hours trying to work it out, without success. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

EAST

◇ 6 5 4 3 2

SOUTH
◇ A K
♣ A 10 9 8 7 6

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ◇	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♡	Pass	7 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣.

Since this deal never actually arose in real life, the bidding sequence presented above has been "created" by me. It is probably the most logical, considering that the final contract must be seven hearts.

The idea is for South to make all 13 tricks on his own power. For those who might be interested in problems of this sort, stop reading right here and try to work it out.

Here is the solution. On West's opening lead of the club king, it is imperative that a diamond be discarded from dummy, and not the apparently useless deuce of spades. If the deuce of spades is discarded, South's seven-heart contract becomes unmakable. Of course, South wins the opening lead with the ace of clubs.

A trump is then led to dummy's ace, after which the king of diamonds is discarded on the board's ace of spades. The deuce of spades is then ruffed by South.

Another trump is led next to dummy's king, and South now ruffs the queen of spades. South has one trump left at this point, having used two trumps to get to dummy twice, and two trumps to ruff out two of dummy's spades.

South then leads his remaining trump to the board's queen, and on the jack of trumps he discards his diamond ace. On these two trump leads West's remaining trumps are gathered in.

With the ace and king of diamonds having been discarded from the South hand, all of dummy's diamonds are now winners. And when these are cashed, declarer has all 13 tricks.

It is obvious that if declarer had attempted to cash the ace or king of diamonds before drawing trumps, he would have gone down.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

We have 4568 for the game today. Using all four each time, one of each and no other digits, you form expressions for consecutive numbers from one up.

Any arithmetical signs may be used, but no summation (that's not the simple plus) or factorial symbols. Don't forget decimals, powers and roots (no extra digits). For example, 68 plus 3 minus 4 is a solution for 69.

The limit without a break in consecutivity seems to be 146, with some real "toughies". I shall be glad to check solutions and send hints to help in future games.

Yesterday's answer: TREAT was 12831.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.
— PSALM 23.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

What Are Vitamins?

Today people are constantly hearing about all kinds of vitamins, but I fear that few know exactly what vitamins are, what they do in the body, and in what foods they are found in greatest amounts. People may be interested in know that the term vifamin was coined around 1911 by Dr. Casimir Funk, in Germany. Later, the existence of some 14 vitamins was established.

Actually, vitamins are chemicals which usually must be present in animal or human bodies, in very tiny amounts, if certain essential chemical processes are to be carried out. They are necessary in childhood, so that the body will develop properly, and during adult life so the body will keep functioning normally.

Sometimes very little of a vitamin is necessary. In persons suffering from primary, or "pernicious," anemia, which until a few years ago quickly killed anyone who had it, the person's life can now be saved and he can be kept healthy with a tiny dose of Vitamin B12, given once a month. This gives an idea of the power of such a chemical.

Experts know that a person who has a real lack of a certain vitamin will develop a specific and recognizable disease. For example, in the 1700s, a fine physician in England named Lind reported that the terrible disease scurvy, which killed many sailors on long voyages was due to the lack of fresh foods. He showed that the sailors could be saved from getting scurvy if only they would be given a small daily dose of lime juice.

I rarely prescribe a vitamin for a patient because I have never found one with scurvy, beri-beri, or pellagra. Any person who lives on a mixed diet, with some meat, fish, milk, eggs, fruit, vegetables and bread is almost certain to get all the vitamins he needs.

JOBS FOR BLIND PERSONS

Blind persons who would much enjoy having a job must wonder sometimes what kind of job they could get. The Braille Institute of America puts out a fine journal "Light," in which I recently saw an article about Bill Hurst, who helps other blind persons find employment. In addition to being the Braille Institute's placement co-ordinator, Hurst makes his own living in the business world. He sells insurance and investment plans on a commission basis. Much of his selling is done by phone, after he has made the initial contact in person. He says he is lucky to be working on commission, because he then has no employer problem.

SELECTION
A-L-L M-A-K-E-S

The response to our February sales offering on new Hondas was just terrific — and now of course we're just a little overstocked with trade-ins.

Come around — take a look. The selection is vast, the model choice is great — and the prices, money savings!

Chaplains Described As 'Support People'

The top Protestant chaplain in Canada's armed forces, Brig-Gen. Joseph Cardy says chaplains are coming to grips with social problems through using a team program.

Here for a three-day conference of chaplains in the western region, Cardy discounts any notion that a service chaplain has a minor role to play in the armed forces.

He describes them as "support people," part of a team of doctors, psychologists, teachers and other personnel that are needed to back up a healthy force.

The conference's theme is based on teamwork and the utilization of laymen in church programs.

PROJECT PIPELINE

He cites Project Pipeline as one of the results of such teamwork. The project has raised $40,000 to provide a water system for a village in Ghana.

Protestant and Roman Catholic chaplains combined forces on the project, acting as support for the armed forces personnel who led the drive.

Cardy says men are drawn to the chaplaincy because it provides flexibility and an opportunity to work with men in times of trial and crisis.

QUEBEC CRISIS

Their worth is seen, he says, in emergencies like the Quebec crisis.

"They played a very significant role when restraint was needed and tight nerves had to be avoided. They earned the respect of both service commanders and civilians."

Service chapel congregations are always well attended when fighting men are in the field or on exercises, Cardy says.

He tells of one chaplain in Edmonton who would parachute out of a plane with the troops, his hymn books following close being in the next parachute.

Cardy, at 26, was the youngest chaplain to serve overseas during the Second World War. He's also the last remaining chaplain in the forces to have seen service as a chaplain in that war.

Today's chaplains undergo the same initial rigorous training as their brother officers in the training school at Chilliwack and Cardy says that they often earn the admiration of their classmates for their stamina, leadership and other qualities. Asked to define a chaplain's main role in the service, Cardy says it is "to be a real friend" to the men.

This, he says, is established through "man-to-man" relationships in counselling sessions during a recruit's initial period of enlistment.

Firing Squad Shoots 10

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A firing squad executed six guerrillas at dawn today after an estimated 250,000 persons staged a mass rally in Tehran to demand their punishment.

The guerrillas had been convicted of murder, bank robbery, subversion, illegal possession of arms and membership in the outlawed Communist party.

A rally Tuesday night during which one demonstrator was killed by a bomb was followed today by similar demonstrations in other Iranian cities. At east 10 other guerrillas are awaiting execution.

LIONS SIGN FULLBACK AND CANADIAN PUNTER

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference have confirmed the signing of fullback Bill Allison, an all-American from East Texas State University.

Allison, six feet and 220 pounds, was signed two seasons ago by Kansas City Chiefs and was a late cut by the Chiefs last season.

The Lions also announced the signing of Canadian punter Doug Woodward, 22, a six-foot-two, 190-pounder who played minor football in Vancouver before attending Everett Junior College in Washington and the University of Hawaii.

Nuclear Power Best Bet—Nash

Nuclear power must be used to meet the province's galloping electrical demands and to minimize damage to the environment brought on by installation of B.C. Hydro facilities, C. W. Nash, manager of Hydro's corporate services division, said here Tuesday.

Speaking on a panel on Power Generation and Use at the Oak Bay Senior Secondary environmental teach-in, Nash said thermal sources are inevitable even if all available sources of hydro power are developed to meet the demand until 1990.

"We face the need of thermal generation with coal, oil, gas or nuclear reaction as the heat source."

He also said that some major hydro sources may not be developed — such as the Fraser River — because of resource conflicts.

SPACE PINCH

He contended nuclear generation is best for the environment.

"Hydro sources affect the landscape and water courses but do not pollute the air. Thermal sources using fossil fuels burden the atmosphere with products of combustion. A nuclear source of proven reliability would make the least change to the environment assuming that certain risks are minima) or have been eliminated."

Nash also said that with electrical production doubling every 10 years "it will not take many doublings before the physical space for power plants and transmission lines is exhausted."

Supposing all hydro sources are developed in the next 20 years, "the remoteness of most of them from load centres means a large increase in both investment and physical space for transmission lines," and this means more damage to the environment.

NO ESCAPE

Whatever the future, he said, "we cannot escape the effect that energy production will have on the environment."

Even to save the environment, more electricity will be needed for air purification, air conditioning, sewage treatment, recycling of wastes, transit electrification and conversion of automobiles to rechargeable battery power.

He said that if environment damage is going to be kept to a minimum, the basic cause of electrical expansion should be dealt with — population increase and the use of more electricity by individuals.

Besides reducing population "are we willing to lower our standard of living in order to reduce environmental impact?" Nash asked.

MANPOWER FINDS EIGHT STRIPPERS

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Three men and five women found Tuesday that the sometimes rocky road to employment can lead to a lucrative stretch of bumps and grinds as Canada Manpower placed its first co-ed strippers line.

The peel-for-pay personnel will work at a strip theatre opening April 1 at Hespeler, six miles east of here.

Besides a salary of $150 for six nightly one-hour performances a week — or $25 an hour — the new employees of the Foxy Lady club will receive instruction in the art of undressing from professionals.

Club promoter Wayne Leavere said Fanny Lou, a wardrobe removal specialist who operates out of Stratford, Ont. will be education director for the new recruits.

Among the people who will take part in nightly unveiling ceremonies in Hespeler will be an advertising salesman, a university student, a factory worker and a male art model.

Manpower advertised for two weeks for exotic dancers with "nice looks, weighing 100 to 145 pounds, of neat dress and appearance."

Nine persons responded to the lure of bright lights on bare flanks, and only one was turned away.

Leavere said his club's co-ed stage show will make for "better all-round family entertainment."

Boeing Gets 707 Contract

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Air Force has awarded a $7.3 million contract to the Boeing Co. of Seattle for a 707 jetliner which will become the new Air Force One — or "The Spirit of '76" as President Nixon has dubbed it.

The new plane will be basically the same as the 10-year-old model which flew Nixon to China. There are two other back-up planes in the Air Force One fleet, both of which are 14 years old.

Kaiser Insiders Return Profits

VANCOUVER (CP) — The board of directors of Kaiser Resources Ltd., announced Tuesday several officers and employees of the company who profited from trading in company stock through KRL Investments Ltd. have voluntarily agreed to pay their profits to Kaiser Resources.

At the same time, the board released a report prepared by a special committee established by Kaiser Resources last month after newspapers reported insider trading.

The committee, composed of senior board members, said in its report:

"We believe that as a result of the undisclosed transactions their belated exposure has caused considerable harm to the image of the company and that it is not desirable in the circumstances that any insider participant should emerge with a profit on his share dealings.

"We therefore recommend that such profits be paid voluntarily to the company by such insider participants even though from our investigation and in the opinion of our special counsel there is no liability to do so."

★ ★ ★

The board, which said it had adopted the committee's report in full, said "the insider participants in KRL Investments Ltd. who realized a profit have advised us that they voluntarily agree to implement the committee's recommendation by paying their profits to Kaiser Resources."

KRL is an investment firm registered in Halifax and a subsidiary of Kaiser Resources.

The committee report said it "was formed for the purpose of enabling certain employees and officers of the company to participate as share purchasers in the 1969 Canadian share offering, notwithstanding that these individuals were U.S. residents and that the issue had not been qualified for sale in the U.S."

The committee noted the decision to permit the participation was made by the senior management of the company.

In January, 36 executives of the parent Kaiser Steel Corp. of Oakland, Calif., confirmed they had purchased stock in Kaiser Resources through KRL. The shares began a decline after a large number of shares bought through KRL were sold at a substantial profit.

The Securities Commissions of British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec are investigating the transactions.

The special committee was established by Kaiser Resources Jan. 11 to conduct the company's own investigation under chairmanship of Graham Dawson of Vancouver, vice-chairman of Kaiser Resources.

Reports released Tuesday by Kaiser Resources showed a total of 63,200 shares of Kaiser Resources were purchased by KRL through an underwriter in July, 1969, at a cost of $12.10 a share with the total amount of $764,720 being contributed by the 36 executives. The arrangement was carried out under supervision of David Hardy of Oakland, Calif., vice-president and secretary of Kaiser.

The shares were part of a 2.5 million offering of common shares in Kaiser Resources for sale to the public in Canada. Kaiser Resources has a large open-pit coal mining operation at Sparwood, B.C., with most of the output being sold under contract to Japan.

★ ★ ★

The committee report said an original intent to hold the KRL shares was abandoned late in 1969 following publication of the Canadian White Paper on Tax Reform. The committee said the white paper led Hardy "to the conclusion that after implementation of the tax propossals the KRL arrangement would result in punitive income and capital gains taxation on the participants."

As a result 14,200 shares purchased through KRL were sold on Jan. 21, 1970, for "just over $17 a share." The committee said the 14,200 included 9,300 shares "out of the beneficial holdings of eight statutory insiders of the company."

The committee said that at the time the insiders knew that the mine construction project had encountered cost overruns of $11 million to $13 million in excess the $85 million set out in the common share prospectus although no disclosure of this fact had been made to the public. The committee noted "There was no reason at that time to suspect the mine would not meet its projected April 1, 1970, date for commencement of shipments under the Japanese coal contracts."

★ ★ ★

The committee said that between March 25 and April 1, 10,000 shares were sold at prices ranging from $19 to $20 a share by three insiders, including 6,000 held by J. L. Ashby, chairman of the board. Again the committee noted there had been no detailed disclosure made to the public about cost overrun but said the worst consequence of the problem at the mine "apparently was thought to be some delay in commencing full shipments to the Japanese."

The committee said no further shares purchased through KRL were sold until June 23, 1970, by which time the public had been told the company was encountering cost overruns and serious problems with the coal preparation plant.

The committee said it did not believe that information available to the insiders at the time of sales made on or before April 1, 1970, "would have adversely affected the market price of the company's shares if generally known, for neither was an unusual circumstance for a new project of this type and neither — to the extent known at the time — would have brought about a significant impact on the company's long-term profitability."

Large Sections of London Dead at Night

LONDON (AP) — The quality of life in London is deteriorating.

London's population has dropped more than 500,000 in 10 years.

Large sections of the central area are dead at night and at weekends. Traffic jams at peak periods are getting worse, crimes of violence have shot up, unemployment is increasing, the housing situation is getting worse, the birthrate is down and industry is declining.

There are two schools of thought on the situation.

The first says it is necessary to reduce London's population in a controlled manner to improve standards for those that remain.

The second warns that depopulation is going ahead too fast for the good of the capital. If it continues at its present rate the net result will be high unemployment and a spiral of decay.

London's population has fallen to 7.3 million from a peak of 8.6 million in 1939.

The latest statistics suggest that the capital is losing people at the rate of 100,000 annually, with 250,000 people moving in and 350,000 moving out.

Although the main streets still appear prosperous and the lights of Piccadilly shine as brightly as ever, there are pockets of decay and poverty in neighborhood areas.

Shelter, a British charity specializing in housing, estimates a shortage of at least 200,000 habitable dwellings in London at present. It says that the situation is getting worse.

Crimes of violence in London went up 28.7 per cent from 1969 to 1970, with a further four-per-cent increase in the first six months of 1971.

HALF LEAVE REGION

Where are the people who are moving from London going to? As far as the Greater London Council can establish, half are leaving the region entirely and the rest moving into the burgeoning, prosperous southeast commuter belt bordering London.

The council is financing new housing in 30 towns all over England for the use of those who want to move out of London. Nobody is moved until assured of both a job and a house.

The reduction in population is beginning to be matched by a drift from London of manufacturing industries. This is in line with the government's policy of persuading factories to move to areas of high unemployment.

Not everyone is in favor of this policy. The London Chamber of Trade and Industry, spokesman of the commercial concerns, recently warned the government that it is essential to halt the drift.

HARD TO ARREST

An official said: "Once you get into a spiral of decay it is very hard to arrest it. First you get industry moving out, then high unemployment, then the service industries start to lose out. Property is taken over by people with nowhere else to go and soon a whole area can become a slum."

The chamber is calling for joint action by public and private sectors to provide more accommodation in central London, especially for middle-income workers. It says such people are being forced to commute long distances because they are unable to afford the accommodation they want at London prices.

The Royal Institute of British Architects warned two years ago that "swinging London" could disappear if the drift to the suburbs continued, leaving the centre bereft of people at night. It still holds the same view. A spokesman says London can remain alive only by stimulating a mixture of business and residential communities in the inner area.

'Definite Increase' In Hair Lice

There has been a "very definite increase" in the incidence of lice in school children's hair this fall and winter, Greater Victoria's senior public health officer said today.

And the problem has not been restricted to any one school or area but is general, he added.

Whitbread doesn't think the increase in head lice can be specifically blamed on long hair styles because he says young people have been growing their hair long for five or six years now.

But he suggests there is a tendency for youngsters not to wash their hair as often when it is long and this is a contributing factor.

"If this isn't done, it doesn't matter whether the hair is long or short."

The health board staff makes available through school nurses a powder which Whitbread says has proved quite successful in combatting lice. It is not available from drug stores.

Treatment involves washing the hair, applying the powder, leaving it an hour, then washing the hair again.

European Radio 'Fascinating'

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Here's some consolation for prospective migrants to Europe who have to do without a television set.

Don't worry. European radio can be more fascinating than the lushest color TV, a form of entertainment now all the rage in Britain.

Even a small transistor in London is sufficient to bring in scores of radio stations from a variety of countries on both sides of Europe's east-west dividing line, broadcasting as these outlets do with a power far greater than that of transmitters in North America.

Hot jazz from East Berlin, ambitious plays and historical surveys from London, Maoist outbursts from Albania and French-Canadian songs from Paris and Brussels are all part of the enormous diversity that characterizes radio in Europe.

From East Germany, the Deutschlandsender puts out reams of Communist-oriented news, contrasting sharply in tone with the Mao-inspired editorials regularly broadcast in English by Radio Tirana.

But lately the booming voice of the German Democratic Republic has developed a sophisticated soft-sell approach to the incessant east-west war of ideas and has taken to wooing listeners through extended bouts of soothing melodies, expertly performed Dixieland and raucous pop, East German style.

MORE SEDATE FARE

The Deutschlandsender is apparently aimed at, among other targets, radio buffs in West Germany, which has powerful stations of its own beaming a more sedate menu of music and capsule news at the East.

The West Germans call their main central service the Deutschlandfunk and it's run by the federal authorities in Bonn.

But the federal republic's main radio service for domestic listeners is divided into autonomous regional units, a result of the decentralization which characterized the building of the new West German state after the collapse of the old, rigidly-centralized Reich in 1945.

Even for foreign listeners without a knowledge of German, the regional services from West Germany—including the Hamburg-based northern network, the Bavarian service from Munich and the Hesse radio organization with headquarters in Frankfurt—provide large rations of intriguing music, especially of the modern experimental kind.

But for non-German listeners eager to eavesdrop on the drama of contemporary European politics, there is great fascination in dialling a radio station situated in the American sector of Berlin—known simply under its initials RIAS.

RIAS is constantly jammed by the Communists and thus is barely audible in most parts of Western Europe.

Yet the United States has other European-based transmitters available for its broadcasts to the East, including big repeater stations used by the Voice of America and giant outlets carrying the programs of the U.S.-backed Radio Free Europe.

In any case, the broadcasts beamed to Western Europe from the Soviet orbit are themselves a stimulating form of radio fare.

Veteran Spanish Communists, exiled from their homeland since the civil war of 1936-39, broadcast to Spain from Radio Prague every night.

Prague has a sizable short-wave service for listeners in Canada and the U.S.

POIGNANT NOTE

But even the Czech radio system's home transmissions, easily picked up in London on the standard bands also used by domestic stations in North America, assume a poignant quality at midnight when the bells of St. Vitus Cathedral are heard chiming the hour of 12 and the radio signs off with the national anthem of Czechoslovakia.

During the invasion of Czechoslovakia in August, 1968, British listeners equipped with nothing more than tiny transistors were able to hear the underground stations that mushroomed across the East European country, complete with the sound of defiant fanfares and their self-protecting technique of switching from one location to another.

As if to sustain the drama of European radio, the BBC still begins its transmissions to the Continent with the drummed "V" signal that became famous during the Second World War.

Within Britain too, BBC Radio has a character all its own, offering services designed to suit virtually every taste.

Its main domestic network, labelled Radio 4, is one of the few surviving sound-broadcast services which go on providing a full range of programs reminiscent of the pre-TV era.

A vast array of features include everything from news magazines to plays and complex, carefully researched series like the BBC's current sound depiction of the common man in British history from Roman times to the present day.

U.S. Protectionist Plan 'Devastating to Canada'

By ROY CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada and other trading partners of the United States are anxiously watching the slow congressional progress of the so-called Hartke-Burke bill, one of the most protectionist trade proposals in the last 40 years.

Because of preoccupation since mid-summer with international trade and monetary problems, the proposed trade bill had gone virtually unnoticed until recently although it was introduced in the Senate last September. And it may be months before Congress starts work on it.

Nevertheless, at this early date many veteran observers are giving the bill a 50-50 chance of passage, despite stout opposition from the Nixon administration, U.S. firms heavily involved abroad and the whole group of free-trade advocates. It could, of course, be extensively amended in the long congressional process ahead.

The Canadian government has not commented on the measure, which officials say would be crippling to Canadian sales in the U.S. But the bill is believed by Canadian authorities to be so extreme that it is given little chance of passage by Congress.

As it now stands, passage of the bill would be a devastating blow to Canada.

PROVIDES QUOTAS

For a start, it would put quotas on all U.S. imports and impose heavy penalties on American foreign investments.

It would repeal the foreign tax credit allowed U.S. corporations, thus installing double taxation on foreign earnings and, in turn, discouraging foreign investments and subsidiaries.

It would give the president power to prohibit Americans from transactions involving a direct or indirect transfer of capital abroad if the president decided it would result in a "net decrease in employment" here.

To halt the outflow of American know-how — "technology produced by American genius," as sponsor Senator Vance Hartke put it — it would give the president additional vast power in that direction. For instance, he could prohibit any U.S. patentholder from manufacturing the patented product abroad or licensing others to do so if it would decrease U.S. jobs.

Peter G. Peterson, presidential adviser on international economic affairs recently nominated to be the new commerce secretary, has said the legislation could "gravely" affect the global competitive position of the U.S.

It would provide permanent quotas — based on average imports for the years 1965 to 1969 — that might require other countries to reduce exports to the U.S. by $10 billion to $15 billion, he calculated, adding: "Is there any question that this would lead to serious counter measures?"

FEARS TRADE WAR

John W. Evans, former U.S. minister to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, has said that Hartke "must realize that if his bill were to be enacted any hope of restoring our position in world trade must be abandoned." And the New York Times, in an editorial, said: "It would pile extra costs on American consumers, reduce competition, worsen inflation, damage United States export industries by drastic slashes in import levels, hamper foreign investment and world economic development, and almost certainly provoke a trade war."

Despite such broad indictments backers are optimistic about the bill's chances, mainly because of the all-out support of the AFL-CIO whose influence is tremendously enhanced in the current election-year atmosphere.

An irony of the AFL-CIO support is that if passed the bill could lead to loss of jobs by Canadian members of international unions, adding fuel to the arguments in some Canadian quarters that Canada should have its own unions rather than participate in U.S.-based unions.

STRESS BENEFITS

Union representatives here have been reluctant to discuss this angle, emphasizing only the broad benefits to the U.S. Howard D. Samuel, vice-president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, was quoted in New York as saying the U.S. would end up as a nation of hamburger stands and soybean farms unless the operations of multi-national corporations were regulated.

This reflects the main issue, with Hartke telling the Senate that "even though only 73 per cent of U.S. industrial capacity is being used the growth of many major companies continues and their profits increase because their production operations are abroad."

The bill would provide that "special advantages for American businessmen who control factories overseas are removed from our tax law." Without such moves "the heavy export of jobs, technology and capital by companies based in this country will continue unabated," Hartke said. "We owe it to ourselves to solve America's problems of poverty, unemployment and social unrest," said Paul Jennings, president of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers in urging passage. So far the United Auto Workers and the Teamsters Union have not taken a position.

AMENDMENTS LIKELY

Since the U.S. Congress is a great institution for compromise there is little doubt attempts will be made at least to amend the bill. But several senators involved in attempts to have Canada exempted from the 10-per-cent import tax imposed last Aug. 15 and lifted in December indicated they have not yet studied the bill or taken a stand.

Aside from pressures from the AFL-CIO, congressmen will no doubt be influenced by public demands for an "America first" philosophy in the face of high U.S. unemployment.

But there will be plenty of time for congressmen caught between their advocacy of freer world trade and their allegiance to labor to mediate.

A spokesman for Hartke, a Democrat from Indiana who currently is campaigning for his party's presidential nomination, said the Senate finance committee probably would not even call the bill up for hearings until spring. The companion bill introduced in the House by Representative James A. Burke (Dem.-Mass.), will have hearings before the House ways and means committee about the same time.

The thrust of the administration's opposition is that the president's new economic policy introduced last August will spur economic growth, check inflation, stimulate exports and cut imports without resort to such protectionist measures.

But if unemployment and inflation statistics do not soon lend support to the administration's arguments the result could be growing public support for the Hartke-Burke bill.

Welfare Solo By Gaglardi Condemned

The B.C. Association of Social Workers today branded as illegal and a "retrograde step" Monday's motion by the provincial government to place B.C.'s welfare system under the "absolute discretion" of Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi.

A six-member delegation including its executive director, Dr. Glen Hamilton, descended on the legislature this morning to put their objections to opposition MLAs and "hopefully" to present a brief to Gaglardi.

Group spokesman Jack MacDonald, president of the association and assistant professor at UBC's school of social work, said one proposed amendment to the B.C. Act — that of allowing Gaglardi to set welfare rates — would be illegal under provisions of the federal Canada Assistance Act.

WELFARE 'CZAR'

He pointed out that the assistance act stipulates that social assistance "be in an amount that takes into account his (the welfare recipient's) basic requirements."

He added that by allowing Gaglardi to become "sort of a welfare Czar" in the setting of welfare rates the Bennett government contravenes the federal law which provides 50 per cent of welfare money to the province.

"Both the letter and the spirit of the (federal) act could justify the withholding of federal money to B.C."

MacDonald also contended that the government is reducing the power of welfare review boards — "taking away their power" — so that they can do nothing more than make recommendations to government.

This makes a mockery of the concept of the appeal board," he said.

"There is good reason why review boards should have the power to make decisions as a safeguard against the arbitrary decisions of civil servants who already hold great discretionary powers over powerless people who are the victims of our society."

MacDonald also charged that the Bennett government was following more and more the tendency to delegate power to cabinet ministers exclusively and this was a "total abdication of legislative responsibility."

He contended that to give Gaglardi absolute discretion on welfare matters was a retrograde step "which goes in the face of the national trend" which is to vest more decision-making power in the social worker in the field.

The association's brief makes 11 recommendations covering a wide range of welfare problems.

Among them is a recommendation that social assistance rates be reviewed by a special commission and that they be sharply increased. The brief does not spell out what the amount of the increase should be.

It also points out that "contrary to the views of many citizens, 84 per cent of adults on welfare assistance are not capable of earning a living; 13 per cent are unemployed and 3 per cent are defined as working poor."

Another recommendation is that the minimum wage be raised to $2 per hour.

TERRORIST BOMB destroyed this building in Londonderry, Northern Ireland, where a policeman directs traffic around the debris. The building had housed a furniture store, ownd by a Protestant, on the ground floor. Buildings on both sides were also severely damaged.

Israel Hits Guerrillas

Syrians Respond With Bombers

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel launched air and artillery attacks on Palestinian Arab guerrilla camps inside Syria today. Syria said it struck back with air strikes on the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights.

The Syrian claim said the planes struck Israeli paramilitary settlements in the Heights, seized by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war.

The Syrians said the aircraft caused heavy damage.

Israeli military spokesmen acknowledged that Syrian planes swept over the Heights on a bombing mission but said they inflicted no casualties and no damage.

Israeli planes tried to intercept the Syrian MiG-17 and anti-aircraft guns opened fire but there was no contact or hits from the ground, the Tel Aviv command said.

In Beirut, 10,000 pro-guerrilla demonstrators marched through the streets today, shouting anti-American slogans and taunting President Suleiman Franjieh for not taking action against the Israeli incursions. They were escorted by 50 riot police and there was no violence.

But fighting broke out between guerrilla sympathizers and rightists at the American University of Beirut and a university spokesman said 11 students were injured in the 30-minute clash. He said: "A good number of windows, chairs and tables were smashed."

CLOSE AIRPORTS

Damascus radio said Syria's airspace and all of its airports were closed in late afternoon.

It was the fifth day in less than a week that the Israelis struck across their border for assaults on guerrilla outposts in Arab territory.

Lebanese guerrillas claimed Israeli planes also bombed two border villages today near the Arkoub region of southern Lebanon, scene of a four-day Israeli operation against Palestinian commandos that ended Monday.

Israel denied making attacks on Lebanon today.

A guerrilla spokesman claimed Israel lost three jet aircraft and 11 military vehicles in the four days of fighting. Israel reported no such losses.

The spokesman said 130 Israelis were killed or wounded and set guerrilla casualties at 47 killed and 64 wounded.

The Israelis report about 50 guerrillas were killed.

The Syrian army placed the Israeli assault 60 miles south of the capital, Damascus, and said three guerrillas and two Syrians were killed.

The air and artillery assault was a reprisal attack against guerrillas based in Syria who had fired at Israeli positions in the occupied Golan Heights 13 times in the last four days, the Israelis said.

The Israeli military command said all planes returned safely, despite Arab claims of intensive anti-aircraft fire. Seven Arab guerrilla centres came under fire, a military spokesman said.

Israel accused the Syrian government of supporting and encouraging the guerrillas.

"The aim of today's Israeli defence force action is to bring home to the Syrians and to the terrorists the fact that we do not intend to tolerate attacks . . . carried out by Syria or from her territory," a statement warned.

CLAIM 50 KILLED

The attack into Syria—the first since Jan. 24—came after four days of Israeli operations against Arab guerrillas in southeast Lebanon. Israel claimed about 50 terrorists were killed in the Lebanese operation, which ended Monday.

Today's raids appeared to have the same aim as the attacks into Lebanon—to break up guerrilla concentrations and to force the Arab governments to clamp down on guerrilla operations.

Israel argued that the guerrillas were harassing Israeli positions and settlements with bazookas, mortars and gunfire "with the full knowledge and approval of the Syrian authorities. . . . Terrorist activities from Syrian territory are strictly supervised by Damascus authorities."

The Syrian army was accused of handing over camps to the guerrillas, and training, arming and feeding them. Syrian President Hafez Assad was quoted as telling an Arab newspaper last year—when guerrillas hit Israel 39 times in two months—that "we are strengthening them and spurring them on."

An Israeli communique said the planes bombed guerrilla bases near the Syrian border villages of Sahem el-Golan, El Shaari and Tel Aram, north of Zera's. Meanwhile, Israeli guns shelled guerrillas tent camps near Jamala, Abdin, Ma'ariya and Musratiya.

NO DOCTOR, SO NO SEX

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Farmers and their wives in the souther town of Quirihue are boycotting sexual relations to protest the lack of a doctor in the local hospital, the pro-government tabloid Clarin reported today.

Clarin said in a front-page story that local officials in the town of 10,000 had refused pleas from farmers to hire a physician for the hospital, which has been without a doctor for three months.

"We have stopped having sexual relations in order to demonstrate our problem to the whole world," Clarin quoted a farmer as saying. The newspaper said farmers planned to seize the hospital unless a doctor was appointed soon.

Latin Nation Idled

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—A nationwide strike clamped a stranglehold on Argentina's industry and idled most of the nation for the second day in a row today.

Practically all of the nation's factories, shipping, land transportation and most private commerce were halted.

Called by the country's biggest labor union, the stoppage was said by union sources to be from 97 per cent effective in heavily-industrialized Cordoba to 44 per cent in subtropical Misiones in the north.

In Buenos Aires, the sources said the strike was 80 per cent effective.

Except for scattered minor incidents, no violent clashes between workers and police were reported.

The strike began at midnight Tuesday and was scheduled to end at midnight tonight.

IRA Assassin Squads Kill Two Militiamen

Times News Services

BELFAST (CP) — Terrorist assassination squads shot dead two part-time militiamen today as guerrilla bullets and bombs cut another swathe of terror across the face of Northern Ireland.

The slayings hoisted the death toll to 253 in 31 months and the continued violence left two other men—an army sergeant and a police officer—fighting for their lives after being hit in the head by terrorist bullets.

Amid the shootings, which security forces blamed on the Irish Republican Army, the British government was reported ready to order its troops here to cease intensive interrogation of terrorist suspects. The methods used have brought accusations of brutality.

The British government also was thought to be on the verge of unveiling its long-awaited political initiative aimed at bringing peace to Ulster.

British troops said they captured a top IRA bomb expert crouched in a tiny attic after a tip sent them to a home in Belfast's Andersonstown quarter, an IRA bomb-making centre.

Latest victim of terrorist assassins was Pte. T. J. Fletcher, who was shot down by four gunmen as he climbed into his car outside his home in Garrison, County Fermanagh, only a short distance from the Irish border.

Fletcher died almost immediately as six bullets ripped into his body.

Fletcher was a member of the Ulster Defence Regiment, the part-time militia.

The killing came only a few hours after terrorists murdered 55-year-old Harry Dixon, a sergeant in the militia.

Two hooded gunmen hammered on the door of his home at Lurgan, County Armagh, just before midnight Tuesday night. They burst inside and shot Dixon in his hallway.

The sergeant's 11-year-old daughter was hit in the leg. Police said she looked on as her father died from a head wound.

He is the third militiaman to be killed this year, and the eighth since the current wave of violense started in 1969.

The attacks—and a chain of explosions which wrecked shops and homes—were blamed on the IRA. Forty-six persons have been killed in the last two months.

ATTACKS LYNCH

In Belfast, Prime Minister Brian Faulkner made a bitter attack on his opposite number in the Irish Republic, Jack Lynch.

Faulkner accused the republic's prime minister of "monumental inaction" in dealing with the outlawed IRA.

Faulkner said that as soon as the IRA carried out a particularly horrible attack, Lynch took "a few timid steps" by arresting IRA men in Dublin.

"When the publicity coast is clear, he quietly releases those arrested, or prefers minor charges, and it is 'terrorism as you were' in the republic," Faulkner said.

Line Issue Largest Yet

TORONTO (CP) — Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. announced Wednesday a new issue of shares totalling $125 million, believed to be the largest equity issue in Canadian history.

The company said it plans to sell 2.5 million $2.65 cumulative redeemable, convertible second preferred shares, series A, each with a par value of $50.

Security Talks Likely in '73

LONDON (UPI) — The likelihood of an all-European security conference in mid-1973 emerged Wednesday as virtually all the Western allies and neutral nations were reported to have agreed to participate in the Communist-proposed meeting.

Diplomatic sources said the conference is likely to be held in the Finnish capital of Helsinki in the middle of next year. Vienna and Geneva have also been mentioned as possible sites.

AFTER SIGNING

Formal go-ahead for the meeting now depends on completion of the Berlin agreements, after West German ratification of the non-aggression accords with Russia and Poland and the signing of the Berlin protocol by the big four powers, the sources said.

"Like it or not, the principle of holding a security conference and participating in it has been all but formally accepted by all," they added.

This presumably includes the United States and Canada. The sources said the Vatican, too, might take part but China was not likely to be asked because the conference agenda is limited to strictly European problems.

A preparatory meeting for the conference is expected to be held in Helsinki next fall at ambassadorial level. The conference itself will be attended by foreign ministers, the sources said.

While agreeing to the conference, some major members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — principally the United States and Britain — are still showing little enthusiasm for a conference they expect to give the Russians the most benefits, the sources said.

RECOGNITION

The Western powers believe the conference is bound to provide virtual recognition of Soviet Union's wartime and post-war territorial gains in Europe, including annexation of the Baltic States, and perpetuation of the division of Germany.

At the same time, they believe that any all-European and American-backed declaration against curbing the rights and sovereignty of other nations might give some relief to the east European nations from future application of the "Brezhnev Doctrine" which claims the right for the Soviets to intervent within the Soviet bloc in cases where Moscow deems communism to be endangered.

Trudeau Apologizes For Rough Language

TORONTO (UPI) — Prime Minister Trudeau apologized to a mother of five sons today for using blasphemous language in the House of Commons Monday.

The woman, caller to an open-line radio show Trudeau participated in here, asked the prime minister to examine his use of the expression "god damned" as a parent whose child had been baptised.

On Monday Trudeau used the phrase "that is your god damned question" in an exchange with Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

"Is this a good example to the children of the country?" asked the woman, who said her sons ranged in age from seven to 21.

"It's a bad example and I'm really sorry that I used the word," said Trudeau. "And I'm really sorry that so many repeated it on the front pages in headlines."

Trudeau, however, was not entirely apologetic about the matter.

He said there was "a lot of hypocrisy around," citing the use of the expression on the front pages of newspapers and Stanfield's objection that the word in question be deleted from Hansard.

"I agree that one shouldn't use profanity," Trudeau told the caller. "I don't think my grandmother would have liked it at all. But she would have thought a lot of people were hypocrites . . . (people) who pretend to be shocked and use the word themselves."

NEWS BRIEFS

Seagram Sued

CHICAGO (AP) — A $30-million lawsuit charging price fixing has been filed by a Chicago liquor store owner against Joseph E. Seagrams and Sons, a distilling company, its 10 sales divisions and six local distributors.

Aid Sought

MOSCOW (AP) — Prime Minister Sheik Mujibur Rahman of Bangladesh flew to the Soviet Union today to seek aid for his fledgling nation from its benefactors in the Kremlin.

Easy Going

PROVIDENCE, R.R. (AP) — A forthcoming federal study indicates that persons who drive under the influence of marijuana are more cautious and less aggressive than drivers under the influence of alcohol, the director of the Injury Control Research Laboratory says. The study showed marijuana users had no more accidents while under the influence of the drug than they had while not under its influence.

Medics Face State Probe

CHICAGO (UPI) — Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has ordered a review of the credentials of all doctors working for the state of Illinois after an investigation opened into the qualifications of a state hospital employee working as a physician in the geriatrics section of a mental hospital in suburban Elgin.

Ogilvie's action followed the suspension Tuesday of Dr. Ricardo Munoz-Velez, 48. Munoz was removed four months ago from all medical duties ot Elgin state hospital.

Dr. Daniel Manelli, superintendent at Elgin, said about 200 deaths occurred during a period from 1969 to 1971 in the geriatric section where Munoz was assigned, but that Munoz had primary responsibility for medical care in only 26 of the cases. The Kane country prosecutor's office, in charge of the Elgin area, has announced it is investigating the 200 deaths.

DID THEY CHICKEN OUT?

The B.C. Poultry Producers Association may have a little egg on its face today.

The reason: A delegation from the association failed to show today for scheduled presentation of a brief to the standing committee on agriculture under Chairman Donald A. Marshall (SC — South Peace River).

And if they had shown up, they might have had some difficulty getting a hearing from the commitee anyway.

Twenty minutes after the official starting time of 10 a.m., only four of the eight members were on hand. They were H. R. McDiarmid (SC — Alberni), W. L. Hartley (NDP — Yale-Lillooet), L. A. Williams (L — West Vancouver-Howe Sound) and D. E. Smith (SC — North Peace River).

This despite two searches of members' offices by Marshall in an attempt to round up absentees.

At 10:20, when it became evident the poultry delegation would not appear, Hartley moved adjournment.

"There's not point in meeting," he said.

"We don't have to adjourn," said Marshall, "we haven't even started."

The members, what there were of them, dispersed.

Answers in Due Time—Bennett

By ROBERT OLVER
Times Staff

Premier Bennett, who in recent days has been called a variety of nasty names — "arrogant old man," and "dictator" among them, may simply be misunderstood.

At least that's the impression he gave Tuesday afternoon during a brief interview in the corridor outside the legislative chamber.

"I'm a reasonable man," said Bennett, his face exuding benevolent sweet reason," but any political leader has to keep 'em guessing."

And if the current opposition is kept guessing a little more than they like, added Bennett, they have only themselves to blame.

"Twenty years ago," said Bennett, the Liberal-Conservative government was getting some questions from the opposition, and they didn't like them. They asked for and got a ruling from the Speaker wiping out the question period. So that's why they haven't got one now."

PLENTY OF TIME

But, under questioning about his reasons for forcing a 16-hour and 33-minute record-breaking sitting on spending estimates for the attorney-general's department, Bennett indicated that he does try to rise above the loss of the question period.

"They are always complaining about not having enough time to ask questions," said Bennett. "Well, that's not true. We gave them plenty of time then and we are always willing to do it again.

"All I wanted them to approve was the salary for the attorney-general. It wasn't as if I was asking them to approve all the estimates."

And besides, added Bennett, "I always answer, sooner or later, all questions asked in the house. Always.

Then, Mr. Premier, he was asked, will you be telling the house how much is still left of the $273 million paid to B.C. and Ottawa by the United States under the Columbia River Treaty?

"Yes, I will," said Bennett.

When, Mr. Premier?

"In due course," he said. "All questions will be answered in due course."

"You do like to keep them guessing, don't you, Mr. Premier?" said a reporter.

Bennett did not reply. But he smiled and smiled and smiled as he walked away.

'WE CAN LIVE WITH NEW RULES'

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — The Alyeska Pipeline Co. says it "can live with" the U.S. interior department's proposed stipulations for the Trans-Alaska pipeline and plans "to abide by them."

The reaction came after study of a revised version of the stipulations the interior department says it intends to impose on the pipeline planned to move crude oil from Alska's North Slope to its southern coast at Valdez.

An Alyeska spokesman said changes in the proposed stipulations make them "probably the most stringent stipulations that ever have been placed on any project."

PACKERS FINED

EDMONTON (CP) — Canada Packers Ltd. was fined the maximum $1,000 Tuesday in provincial judge's court when it pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to report the marketing of a regulated product under Alberta legislation.

Provincial Judge Carl Rolf, the senior provincial judge, in setting the fine, said he was assessing the maximum because of the size of the offence.

Evidence produced by the crown showed the firm raised, processed and marketed 17,000 broiler chickens without having the required quota or permit from the Alberta Broiler Growers Marketing Board.

Judge Rolf was told that in bypassing the provincial legislation, the firm failed to pay the required fee of 1-5-of-a-cent-a-pound for each bird raised on its farm at Crossfield, Alta. during 1971.

BANK SUED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Northlode Explorations Ltd. launched a $451,085 suit against the Bank of Montreal in British Columbia Supreme Court alleging the money was withdrawn from its account without proper authority.

The mining company alleges breach of contract between June and October, 1969.

LONDON 'GOLD'

VANCOUVER (CP) — An arbitration board has awarded London Drugs $359,279 for the expropriation of its store on Main Street to make way for the new Georgia Viaduct.

The board awarded the drug firm $350,000 compensation for the unexpired term of its lease on the property, which had four years to go, and $9,279 for "disturbance."

The expropriation took place in July, 1969.

London Drugs owner Sam Bass originally claimed $2.6 million and the city offered $11,416.

EXTEND CREDIT

TOKYO (AP) — The cabinet authorized the government-sponsored Japanese Export-Import Bank to extend credits to finance exports of equipment to China.

The cabinet's action, after months of delay, apparently was due to Japanese businessmen's fears of United States competition as a result of President Nixon's trip to mainland China.

Indians Use Rare Rule To Claim Pipe Land

OTTAWA (CP) — Through a rarely-used parliamentary device, the Old Crow Indians of the Yukon Tuesday claimed as their own some 66,000 square miles of the territory.

Their petition of claim, signed by Chief Charlie Abel and band councillors, was handed to the clerk of the Commons by Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon).

Nielsen, a keen student of parliamentary procedure, said in an interview the government has only three courses to follow. It could either acknowledge the claim, call the chief and his band council to the Commons to uphold it, or send it to a committee.

The Whitehorse lawyer said the Indians filed the claim because of recent statements from several cabinet ministers that pipeline studies now going on in the Canadian North will determine not whether they will be built but how they will be built.

One of the proposed routes goes through the so-called Old Crow flats, part of the land claimed in the petition.

Nielsen said the petition should make the government realize that it must settle land claims in the North before going ahead with pipelines.

Mr. Nixon Swings It: Watch for the Encore

Being some unplanned political notes gathered under a lemon tree beside a California swimming pool:

★ ★ ★

An engrossing time to be in these United States since it's a period that history may recall as the re-making of a president.

Whether it was mainly a political move in an election year or not, President Nixon's days in China are generally viewed as a personal triumph and a sure-fire guarantee that come November, he'll return to the White House in a breeze.

There's simply no better way to get a fast sampling of public opinion than to spend a few days in a resort motel. In this particular one, in California's Palm Desert, our neighbors were from seven different states, about equally divided in their adherence to the Republican and Democratic parties and incredibly open in telling a stranger their views.

A Canadian is left with the deep impression that, above all else, the average American adores a winner and at this moment in time Nixon is all but conquering hero.

"I've never liked or trusted the man," an insurance salesman from Illinois confessed characteristically, "but you can't take this away from him. He pulled it off."

★ ★ ★

Talking with these Americans, in the relaxed atomosphere that invited a free exchange of ideas, may have the effect of reassurance for a Canadian often alarmed or bewildered by the state of affairs in the U.S.A.

At this face-to face level you find a genuine desire to be fair-minded and a willingness to make new judgments on fresh evidence.

There could be no better demonstration of it than in the massive public re-assessment that's gone on since Nixon's China adventure.

These are people who, for better than 20 years, have been saturated through the mass media by a hostile, one-sided coverage of China as an enemy state in which Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai were cast as satanic villains. While Britons or Canadians were exposed occasionally—all too occasionally, I fear — to more realistic reportage, it seems clear that the average American simply was denied any continuing chance to make an informed, individual assessment.

Now, in the space of less than a week, press, radio and television abruptly hurled a whole new concept at the American public. Here were the old China hands of the state department in living color on millions of television screens freely volunteering that the isolation of China was a bone-headed blunder in policy-making by the United States. Here was the news, fairly reported, of the solid achievements in the years of China's revolution. Here — most startling of all — were Mao and Chou in the roles of engaging elder statesmen amiably breaking bread with the most opportunistic capitalist of the western world.

What seemed both astonishing and gratifying to us in that California motel that I began to see as a microcosm of America was that our neighbors were so willing to absorb and weigh this new information.

There was, curiously, no rancor expressed against the various media for their failure to provide that information before Nixon's initiative. Only a recognition that, like the first astronaut's landing on the moon, Nixon's landing on China soil had opened a new world to be understood.

★ ★ ★

As a man who, like the Illinois insurance salesman, has never liked or trusted Nixon, I left California with a grudging new respect for him and a conviction that, if only for pragmatic political reasons, he will soon speed up the American disengagement from Vietnam.

I base this speculation entirely on that sampling of opinion around a California swimmin hole.

If Nixon anticipated the overwhelming approval he's earned for the China visit he is truly something of a genius in assessing the reaction of the American voter, a talent that most political pundits say is uniquely his.

If that's true, then he must know, better than any man in the U.S.A., that there's a tremendous hunger in America, far more than you'll find mirrored in the newspapers, to end every form of involvement in Southeast Asia.

This goes much deeper than I would have thought. Those Americans who gave us their frank views have gone far beyond any qualifications of pride or dignity or face-saving in getting out. They are, in various degrees, wearied and ashamed of what they now consider a hopelessly lost cause, if it ever was a cause. When the subject of American draft-dodgers in Canada came up it was astonishing to find respectable middle-of-the-road Americans saying: "I don't blame them a bit. That's where I'd be."

That feeling is surely registering now on the president's supersensitive political barometer with an election just nine months away. The China success is going to carry him back anyway. But a meaningful response to that longing to pull out from Vietnam will make him one of the great winners of all time and he is just the boy to know it.

Hopes Dashed for B.C. Money

Letter From Campbell Disappoints City

Victoria can expect little provincial money for Inner Harbor greenbelt acquisition, or underground wiring, according to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

Campbell's statement was contained in a letter to city hall answering a Feb. 16 request for information about the fund from Acting Mayor Percy Frampton.

Despite the fact that the provincial government gave second reading to the bill providing greenbelt funds for municipalities in the legislature Tuesday, Campbell says the government has established no plans for administering the aid to cities for greenbelts and underground wiring.

Premier Bennett announced in his February budget that $25 million was being made available from surplus funds for greenbelt acquisition. Another $10 million was to be made available for underground hydro wiring.

Victoria's request for underground wiring aid is tied in with council's plans to improve Wharf Street urban renewal area.

Frampton's letter to Campbell said B.C. Hydro estimated the Wharf Street underground wiring project could cost about $1 million.

Campbell's return letter also stated that the funds' "Terms of reference have not been established," adding that no provincial cabinet minister has been appointed to administer the fund.

The city is more likely to receive aid, according to Campbell, through the power line beautification fund.

Meanwhile in the legislation, opposition MLAs flayed the $25 million greenbelt fund, calling it too little and too late.

The comments came when Resources Minister Ray Williston introduced the legislation in the house for second reading.

(The bill establishes authority for such a fund but does not spell out its use.)

Williston said the government will not expropriate land for the purpose of establishing greenbelts.

Some people, he said, have already offered land to the government for preservation.

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer attacked the fund as a possible tool for the use of the province's crown corporations, which he said are the "biggest despoilers of land" in B.C.

He said his party will oppose the bill because it is in favor of the greenbelt concept.

Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) called it a "vague and piecemeal approach" to the principle and suggested it represents "a palliative thrown in" to appease the conservationists of the province.

"I support these few struggling steps by this government along a path they should have long pursued," he said.

Debate on the bill was adjourned without second reading approval.

Builder Refuses Highrise Chop

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

An "inflexible and uncompromising" developer has poured cold water on city hall's attempt to scale down the View-Quadra apartment complex.

Following an afternoon meeting with developer George Mulek on Tuesday, Mayor Peter Pollen said city hall is unable to persuade Mulek to alter his original plans.

Mulek's plan is to build a companion tower to the 19-storey apartment building at View and Quadra, and a floor level commercial area containing a food supermarket and other shops.

The Mulek apartment tower, completed last year, has been greeted with almost unanimous dismay at city hall because of its drab appearance.

The development is also too concentrated and dense for the size of its site, city hall contends.

Mr. Mulek has been entirely inflexible and uncompromising," Pollen said today.

"Council looks on the development with a great deal of concern and dismay, but we haven't been able to reach any modification of the project."

Pollen said he called for a review of the project last month because of the "incredible density" of the development.

INSISTING

"Mr. Mulek has insisted upon the project as originally conceived," Pollen said.

The second tower was to be for "sophisticated residential" apartment living, although now Mulek is planning condominium units and hotel space.

Mulek has argued that the second tower is crucial to making the project economically viable.

The first tower was built as a limited dividend project with federal mortgage aid and profits are not expected to be made until the project is completed.

Pollen said Mulek "insists that (the second phase) has always been merely the completion of one building."

"I am strongly opposed to it, as are a majority of the members of council — because of its inordinate size, and because of the present building's lack of esthetic quality."

BUT HOW?

"But we are at somewhat of a loss as to how to get Mr. Mulek to compromise and scale it down."

Members of council met in committee of the whole Tuesday afternoon and evening to discuss the upcoming bylaw which will restrict further downtown building in size and height.

Pollen said some fears expressed over the impending bylaw are unfounded because council will retain the right to allow certain building to exceed the limits under the special development legislation in 702A of the B.C. Municipal Act.

The use of 702A must be agreed to by both parties in a development, and the developer must tie specific plans to the title on the land in use.

CHRETIEN COMING FOR FORUM

Jean Chretien, minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, will be a key speaker at a public information forum on parks and land-use at the Newcombe auditorium next Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Chretien, in charge of national parks, will speak on the national parks system, including plans for developing the new Pacific Rim National Park.

Sponsored by the Victoria Sierra Club, a conservation organization, the forum will discuss the Nitinat Triangle controversy.

The issue involves Tsusiat, Hobitan and Squalicum Lakes which conservationists want included into the national park. The proposal is opposed by the B.C. logging industry.

Rick Careless, chairman of the Victoria Sierra Club, and other speakers have been invited to attend. Slides and colored movies will be shown.

"We hope that all people interested in preserving the last three wilderness lakes on Vancouver Island will attend the forum," he said.

Her Majesty's 'Groggy' Navy Totters Into Sober Present

By PAT DUFOUR

A naval tradition that had its beginnings in Nelson's day goes down the hatch March 31.

That is the day that Canadian sailors will draw their final tot of demon rum.

From then on it will be bar service in various messes aboard ships just as in their counterparts ashore.

★ ★ ★

How did it all begin?

Was the daily rum tot a way of injecting fighting spirit into fighting men?

Was it a way of rewarding services rendered?

Such reasons could boggle the imagination but the truth must be told.

It was simply a matter of expediency.

In Nelson's day water aboard ships, even in casks, wouldn't keep.

So Her Majesty's Navy fought their battles on a diet of wine or beer, usually at the rate of a pint per man per day.

Sir Martin Frobisher, who made his mark in the Northwest Passage wasn't indulging in humor when he said:

"We'll sail as long as the beer lasts!"

What other alternative was there, except to gamble on ample rations of rainwater or melted snow?

Warships in those days, like their modern sisters, were always short of stowage space so the Royal Navy looked around for a substitute.

They tried brandy.

In the late 1600s Jamaica toppled and the island's most famous export was pressed into service by the RN.

★ ★ ★

Seamen were issued a pint a day, split between lunch and supper. Boy seamen had to be content on half this amount.

For obvious reasons Admiral Vernon in 1740 ordered the skippers and surgeons in his West Indies squadrons to make recommendations on the way in which the rum was to be issued.

The result — a watered down tot — two parts water to one part rum.

It was the admiral who wanted less fight in his fighting men that gave the name to the new mixture — grog.

★ ★ ★

Vernon was known to those below decks as "Old Grog" because of his penchant for wearing clothes made of grogram, a rough silk resembling mohair.

The name stuck.

The suppertime ration went by the board in 1824 when tea became a staple aboard ships.

In 1850 the ration was reduced to the present half-fill or tot. Officers lost their daily issue in 1881.

In 1971, "splicing the mainbrace" became a thing of the past in the RN.

Soon, too, the centuries-old tradition will die here—buried with "round rigs" and other ghosts of the past.

DRIVER PULLED OUT OF CAR IN RIVER

Quick action by a member of the Cowichan Indian Band saved a Duncan man, from drowning early this morning after his car crashed off Tzouhalem Road into the Koksilah River.

RCMP said Lorne Ketch, 32, of 2574 Lewis St., Duncan, was rescued by Colin Jimmy, who lives near Klem Klem Alutz Bridge on Tzouhalem Road.

Jimmy heard the crash about 2:20 a.m., rushed to the riverside for his boat and rowed 300 yards downstream where Ketch's car had come to rest on a gravel bar.

He pulled Ketch from the partly submerged car.

Ketch is in Cowichan District Hospital suffering from shock.

10-Day Drive For Schools

Some 25 parents, representing about half the schools in Greater Victoria, Tuesday night hammered out a 10-day plan of action to promote the school board's March 11 $412,000 spending referendum.

Dr. George Stocker, who held the meeting at his house, said the group will attempt to hold information meetings at every school in the district between now and the referendum.

He said the group, which decided to call itself School District 61 Parents Association, will also set up tables at the open houses scheduled by schools during Education Week next week in efforts to inform parents of the costs involved in the referendum.

To get every school involved, letters will go out to every principal to name a parent delegate to the new association.

The referendum follows provincial government reduction by 2 per cent of allowable spending by school boards. If the referendum fails to gain 60 per cent approval, $412,000 will have to be cut from the 1972 budget.

Stocker, who is association president, said that "we support every move towards lower costs, but we do not support government moves of starting to fight inflation with the education of children."

He said that since the cost of the referendum would be less than $10 a year for a taxpayer, which will be more than taken care of by the increase this year in the homeowner grant, from $170 to $185.

Pollution Countdown: 1,100 . . . 800 . . . 600

There's a belief prevalent these days that young persons are hot on anti-pollution, but this was shakened Tuesday when Oak Bay Senior Secondary held a day-long environment teach-in for its 1,100 students.

When Ecologue '72 started off with a general assembly in the morning about 800 students were present, and as the day wore on with a variety of panels, the attendance diminished to about 600, estimated Marshall McCall, one of the main organizers of the student-sponsored event.

"We're sort of disappointed," he said. "We expected a lot more students to come."

Attendance, as on any ordinary school day, was compulsory.

Principal D. A. Voth declined to discuss how he was going to deal with the mass truancy but said "those who were here were the winners — those who weren't were the losers."

Ecologue '72 was planned and organized by Students for Environmental Rescue (SFERE), and because of this it was "a success before it ever started," Voth said.

The program put on by the students was ambitious, and the turnout percentage of speakers and panelists — some 93 of them — was much better than that of the students. Most notably absent were Social Credit government members, Mines Minister Frank Richter and Esquimalt MLA Herb Bruch, NDP Opposition Leader Dave Barrett, Liberal Leader Pat McGeer, and Mayor Frances Elford of Oak Bay.

Teachers, engineers, architects, environmentalists, community leaders, representative from industry and many levels of government talked on a wide variety of panels.

Some of the topics included air pollution, pesticides and wildlife, politics and pollution, transportation, urban and suburban planning, and waste disposal and litter.

One student participant suggested that the student turnout would have been worse if the program hadn't been so good.

"Everybody thought it was going to be boring, and were going to take off, but they ended up staying here," said Minoca Fiederer, 17.

Bob Botterell, 15, a moderator on one panel, said "students didn't have enough to say" but "didn't get bored."

For himself he gained "a better awargness of the problems inherent in getting things done" in regard to pollution.

TWO HURT IN BLAST

Two men were hurt today when an explosion wrecked a basement heater in the Dogwood Building at Fort and Wharf.

A plumber and his assistant were treated for minor burns and released from hospital. They had been working on a gas water heater when the blast occurred. Damage was slight.

Police Misquoted Me—Woman

TORONTO (CP) — A woman who observed an anti-Soviet demonstration last October through binoculars from her apartment said Tuesday night that Toronto police misquoted her as saying she saw police horses jabbed with poles during the protest.

Edna Phillips told an inquiry into alleged police brutality during the visit to Canada of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin: "I didn't say that. There must be some mistake."

The discrepancy was in her affidavit taken by Toronto detectives.

The inquiry was in its 27th day Tuesday, and 2½-hour evenings sessions, to help clear evidence yet to be heard, began Tuesday night.

To date, about 1.8 million words of evidence have been heard about the demonstration outside the Ontario Science Centre Oct. 25, where Premier Kosygin was addressing the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

INQUIRY COST HIGH

Court officials said the inquiry has cost about $100,000 so far, or $6,000 more than the $94,000 bill that the Toronto police department sent to Metro Toronto council for additional protection during the Kosygin visit.

The inquiry, before Judge Anthony Vannini of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., is expected to run into the week of March 6.

Mrs. Phillips, a tenant in an apartment building opposite the science centre, said she watched through binoculars as mounted Toronto policemen moved into a crowd of demonstrators. She said she disapproved of nothing the police did.

Donald Hackenschmidt, building superintendent at Mrs. Phillip's apartment block, said crowds of demonstrators ignored requests to leave the lawns around the building. He said he had never seen a crowd in such an ugly mood.

'DID A GOOD JOB'

Roman Drowarsky, a demonstrator, agreed with a suggestion by Judge Vannini that blows he received when he was pushed forward into police lines might have resulted from policemen reaching to help him as he stumbled.

During the day session Tuesday, a newspaper photographer who covered the demonstration said that "the police did a good job."

Photographer Dick Loek, who covered the event for the defunct Toronto Telegram and now works for the Toronto Star, said the only incident which surprised him was one police officer who rode his horse into the crowd "like a madman, waving his stick."

"I didn't see him hit anyone. He looked like John Wayne the way he was riding. It didn't make sense to me."

In other testimony, a police photographer, Det.-Sgt. Harold Hall, accused television cameramen of inciting the crowd, which he said was peaceful until about dusk.

Canadian Ports Lauded in U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian maritime excellence and efficiency is encouraging U.S. shippers to bypass American ports and ship through Canadian ports, chairman Helen Delich Bentley of the U.S. federal maritime commission said today in warning the trend could cause "irreparable harm" in the U.S.

While expressing admiration for Canadian progress which thus far has eluded us," she warned that "questionable" practices may be involved and said the commission has hired a private organization to study the situation.

Mrs. Bentley was addressing the annual conference of the New York State University Maritime College in New York. Text of her remarks was released by her office here.

"In Canada, the regulatory atmosphere and the labor climate, together with aggressive rail and steamship managements, results in a carrier ability to put together and offer a viable intermodal service," she said. But in the U.S. labor-management indifference and the lack of competitive spirit by railways and steamship lines "combine to delay us."

FAVORS CANADA

She noted that considerable Canadian export-import cargo moves through U.S. ports but said the balance of business is heavily weighed in Canada's favor.

U.S. cargoes over Canadian routings do not move to published ocean rates, she said, with rates on virtually all the desirable cargoes tailor-made to meet the requirements and desires of the particular shipper. In some cases this meant "absorption of all or part of the overland cost to the carrier's vessel," she added.

"More bluntly stated, the Canadian carrier, unhampered by regulation as we know it, can wheel and deal. He can do whatever he must do to entice the cargo to his routing. . . . There is no Canadian maritime commission to look askance at his practices. I seriously doubt if this is healthy competition."

An earlier commission staff report, based on "scant" information available, said it appeared that some carriers serving Canada and the U.S. were engaging in rate practices that were questionable under the U.S. Shipping Act of 1916. The staff also found, "much to its surprise, that Canadian cargoes were being delivered through U.S. ports at rates lower than the rates which apply to cargoes tendered at those ports."

EXPRESS SURPRISE

Canadian and some American officials and shippers had expressed surprise that this should concern the commission. But if further study indicates unfair practices on rates, carriers "will discover first-hand that the commission is very much concerned."

Preliminary figures in the study now in progress show that prior to 1971—the year of the extended U.S. longshore strike—approximately 358,000 tons of export, liner-type cargoes were diverted through Canadian ports. In the same period, 255,000 tons of such cargoes were diverted from Canada through U.S. ports.

But because of the strikes, the U.S. cargo diversion flow through Canadian ports in 1971 "may have been as much as 10 times or this traffic, perhaps as much as 20 per cent will remain lost to the U.S. transportation network."

Referring to labor costs, she said it costs $143 per gang-hour for container handling at the port of New York while in Montreal the cost per gang-hour was only $49. "I seriously doubt that New York longshore gangs are two or three times more productive as are gangs working cargoes in Canada."

INCENTIVE RATES

Canadian rail carriers saw international container traffic as new business "and set out to obtain it," offering incentive rates to steamship lines as much as 40 per cent lower than rates available in the U.S.

"Unless the trend to bypass U.S. ports is curbed or controlled, it will cause irreparable harm to our harbors and damage to railway and highway services that support the nation's industry and economy."

Referring to a recent visit to Vancouver and reports of developments in Halifax, Saint John, N.B., and in St. Lawrence River ports, she said it was possible that changes in Canada "will soon serve as the models for similar action in the U.S."

Pipeline Price? $5 Billion

WASHINGTON (CP) — A $5-billion price tag, almost double what was estimated five years ago, was placed Tuesday on a proposed pipeline to carry natural gas from northern Alaska and the Canadian northwest to markets in the south.

Wilber H. Mack, chairman of a Calgary-based consortium called the Northwest Project Study Group, blamed delays in start of construction, inflation and other cost escalations, and design changes for boosting the estimated price so far above the original $2.7 billion.

Two inevitable results, he said, would be susbstantial difficulties in raising the money needed to build a pipeline and steep costs for the gas consumer, perhaps twice as high as the present cost for piped gas and equal in cost to liquified or synthetic gas.

Giving Ride to Stranger Dangerous for Car Thief

BARI, Italy — The 16-year-old was proud of the car he was driving and to oblige hitchhiker Vittorio Meola he took him to the street address Meola gave him.

The address turned out to be that of a police station and Meola turned out to be the man from whom the youth stole the car. The young man was arrested.

EDMONTON — Bob Lipscombe, 82, acquired a bride Monday and as an added bonus picked up 14 stepchildren, 49 grandchildren and 39 great grandchildren.

He married Marcella Guerry, 80, who has been his good friend for 19 years. "We're old age pensioners and decided to get married for companionship," said Mr. Lipscombe. He may have difficulty remembering the names of all his new relations, but his wife shouldn't have much problem. Mr. Lipscombe has only one son.

FLEMINGTON, N.J.—Forty years ago today Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., the only son of the "Lone Eagle" and Anne Morrow Lindbergh, was kidnapped from the family estate at Hopewell, 35 miles from here.

On May 12 of that year a truck driver found the badly decomposed body of the 20-month-old boy in a thicket six miles from the home of aviator Charles Lindbergh. The kidnapping and slaying made headlines throughout the world but it took two years of investigation in this country and overseas before a German-born carpenter, Bruno Richard Hauptmann was arrested, tried for the crime and eventually electrocuted at Trenton State Prison.

SAN JOSE, Calif. — The odds on an adult in California never having heard of Angela Davis must be astronomical, but one turned up Tuesday during jury selection at the murder-kidnap trial of the black revolutionary.

Mrs. Peter Ruth, an attractive young housewife and mother of three who recently was divorced and remarried, told the court that when she learned she had been called for jury duty someone suggested she might serve in the Angela case. "I said, 'who's Angela Davis'." Mrs. Ruth said. "I know I'm not a very good citizen but we don't take a newspaper and I don't pay much attention to such things on television."

ROCHESTER, Mich. — Mrs. Patricia Cochran, a leap year baby 28 years ago, gave birth to a leap year daughter Tuesday.

Amanda Deanne Cochran was born at Crittenton Hospital, weighing eight pounds, eight ounces. Mrs. Cochran's doctor predicted the Feb. 29 due date seven months ago but Mrs. Cochran didn't believe it until midnight came and went Monday. "It's hard just trying to think of it — it's so far out," she said.

CLEVELAND — Oral polio vaccine developer Dr. Albert B. Sabin was in fair condition at the Cleveland Clinic today after undergoing open heart surgery.

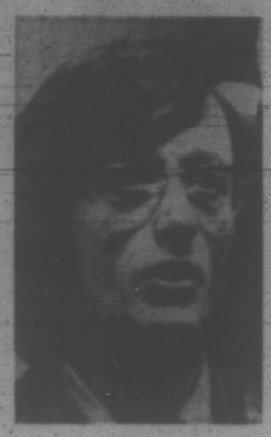
Doctors took part of a blood vessel from the leg of the 65-year-old researcher and implanted it in his heart to bypass a blockage in a heart artery. The operation was performed Tuesday morning and took 90 minutes.



WATKINS
. . . to seek seat

TORONTO — University of Toronto economist Melville Watkins, 39, will run for the New Democratic Party in the next federal election in Toronto's Parkdale riding.

Mr. Watkins, a founder of the party's left-wing Waffle group and author of the Watkins report on foreign ownership in Canada, defeated Martin Milanovitch at a nomination meeting here Tuesday night.

WASHINGTON, Pa. — Attorneys began their defence today of Yablonski murder suspect Paul E. Gilly, portrayed during two days of prosecution testimony as an inept killer-for-hire who left dozens of clues at the scene of the Dec. 31, 1969, slaying.

The prosecution rested Tuesday after presenting 34 witnesses and 32 exhibits in its attempt to convict Gilly, a 38-year-old former house painter from Cleveland, as the mastermind behind the murder of United Mine Workers official Joseph A. ("Jock") Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

SAN BERNARDINO — Taxi driver Benjamin E. Gasperaitis pointed to police the first marker on the trail — a pair of shoes.

Gasperaitis said Tuesday two young men robbed him of $7 and fired a shot at him. One of the robbers ran right out of his shoes as he fled, the taxi driver said. About 100 yards from the shoes, police found a coat, and further on, a pistol — then several dollar bills, and then some identification, and then a shirt. Following the trail to its end, police found Roland Williams, 18, who was wearing only his pants and a layer of dirt as he tried to hide in a dirt pile at a construction project, officers said. He was charged with attempted murder and kidnapping.

Death Row Inmates Getting New Homes

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI) — With the death penalty abolished in California, San Quentin prison's death row inmates will be given a new home. For some it will be better and for others worse than their private cells located near the apple-green gas chamber.

Warden Louis Nelson said Tuesday that it would take authorities about a month to sort out the "career troublemakers" and "super-violent types" among the state's 107 formerly condemned convicts.

Most of the inmates will then be sent into the prisons "main-line" population or to other facilities, including minimum security forestry camps.

For some, life on death row was probably better than in the general prison population since they had private cells, a television set for every three men, better food and no work assignments.

Nelson said about a dozen of the death row inmates would "continue to live under conditions of extreme restraint."

"They will probably be joined by some of the super-violent types we now have in maximum custody in the downstairs unit and the whole (death row) building will become a full-time, full-space adjustment centre," Nelson said.

Now that the state supreme court had declared capital punishment illegal in California, about 30 of the inmates, whose terms have become life sentences, will become eligible for parole.

"Which is not to say they'll make it," the warden said.

Doctor Wanted

ADAMINBY, Australia (Reuter) — Residents in this tiny town in the snowy mountains, 70 miles from the nearest doctor, have launched a worldwide campaign for their own doctor. As an enticement, the town of 500 is offering "the world's finest trout" in local mountain streams.

CANADA'S TRIAL BY TERROR

For years to come, Canadians will remember the kidnaping of James Cross and the murder of Pierre Laporte with horror and a deep sense of indignation. Montrealers will remember how the War Measures Act called thousands of troops into their city, and gave police "virtually unlimited powers." March Reader's Digest provides fresh insights into the 1970 October Crisis, why and how it happened, and the effect the FLQ kidnapings had on Quebec and the rest of Canada. Accused Cheered

CAIRO — (WP)—Four Palestinian youths who proudly proclaimed in court that they had shot and killed Jordanian Premier Wasfi Tel in the entrance to the Sheraton Hotel here last November were released Tuesday on bail of 1,000 Egyptian pounds (about $2,000) each.

Cries of joy resounded through the courtroom. The youths' relatives wept, and the four defendants shouted "long live justice, long live Egypt! When the presiding judge announced the decision.

Defence lawyers said bail would be paid by the Palestine Liberation Organization. No date has yet been set for the trial. One defence lawyer suggested that the four youths might even be allowed to leave the country to join the Palestine guerrillas fighting Israel while waiting for the case to open, but Egyptian lawyers thought this unlikely.

The decision, though expected, will almost certainly worsen the already severely strained relations between Egypt and the Jordanian regime of King Hussein. In a message of condolence immediately after the killing of the Jordanian premier, President Anwar Sadat had promised Hussein that the guilty would suffer "due punishment."

ACUPUNCTURE CENTRE OPENS

VANCOUVER (CP)— The North American College of Acupuncture, denied permission last September to open a treatment clinic in Vancouver, said Tuesday it now plans to establish a research centre here.

Its announcement that the research will be conducted on people suffering from rheumatism and arthritis brought a warning that the medical profession will be watching for any violation of the Medical Act.

The College of Acupuncture asked Health Minister Loffmark last fall for permission to offer the needle-puncture treatment free.

Loffmark said at the time that the college would first have to convince the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society of the effectiveness of acupuncture. But correspondence with C.A.R.S indicated that C.A.R.S. was not convinced.

Acupuncture is used in China, other parts of Asia and Europe, but is rare in North America. Only registered medical practitioners are allowed to use the method in B.C.

Neither Roger Langrick nor Leung Kok Yuen, founders of the acupuncture college, are registreed with the College of Physicians.

Langrick said the research centre will accept 20 people who can produce a letter from their doctor stating that they are suffering from arthritis or rheumatism.

He said treatment would be done by Leung, who used the method for many years in China, and himself. He said the project would provide statistical evidence of the effectiveness of the treatment.

Saanich Hydro Needs to Soar

Power demands in the Central Saanich and North Saanich areas are expected to quadruple in the next eight years, rising from 20,000 to about 84,000 kilowatts, B.C. Hydro officials said Tuesday.

Meeting with Central Saanich council to discuss future transmission line plans in that area, C. W. Nash, manager of B.C. Hydro's corporate services division, described the expected growth as an "enormous challenge."

Nash said new transmission lines and substations will be needed to meet the expected power needs. He added Hydro and municipalities must work together to ensure that the needs are met with a minimum of inconvenience to the public.

At the same time, Nash said, Hydro customers expected that the costs of supplying the extra power and rates reflecting those costs would not be allowed "to escalate to an unreasonable degree."

Nash said the problems of the Saanich area were the same facing those in other areas serviced by B.C. Hydro.

He said meetings, such as Tuesday's, would result in "satisfactory compromises that give adequate weight to ecological considerations."

But, Nash warned, the modern way of life depends on an adequate supply of power. This cannot be supplied without transmission lines and substations.

Nash said it was estimated that a high voltage transmission supply would be necessary in Central and North Saanich by 1980.

Power supply to the Sidney substation will be augmented by building a 60,000-volt transmission line on an existing right-of-way between Brentwood and Sidney.

The line will later be reinforced by a high-voltage transmission line to operate at 138,000 or 230,000 volts to meet future load growth.

Nash said it would be several years before the route and type of line to be used will be determined. He said every effort would be made to avoid built-up areas.

Routing, he said, would also be influenced by government policy on cost-sharing.

A high-voltage line between Pike Lake and Sidney is due to be completed by 1980 and a new substation will be needed in the Keating area.

Farm Loss Laid to Dockers

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) -- American farmers lost $1 billion because Longshoremen's union leader Harry Bridges spoiled a grain sale deal with Russia, secretary of agriculture Earl Butz said Tuesday.

"More than $1 billion in farm income has been lost because of an arrogant and callous labor leader who says 'I don't care if you get your product on the dock or not'," Butz told the annual meeting of the National Rural Electric Co-operative Association.

The Soviet minister of agriculture approached him with a plan to increase by a large amount the meat in the Russian diet, Butz said. The plan needed a vast supply of soybeans and feed grain to support the increased livestock production, and the Russian official wanted to know if the United States could provide it.

"I told him we could give him all he wanted," Butz said. "We have vacant lands, we need the grain market."

Then the deal fell through because Bridges pulled out dockworkers on the Pacific Coast, Butz said. The dockworkers strike, longest and costliest in U.S. history, was only recently ended, but there have been reports the federal pay board will reject the settlement. Bridges has said that if that happens, the strike will resume.

Island N-Power Predicted by '74

B.C. Hydro Chairman Gordon Shrum has a one-track mind when it comes to nuclear power for Vancouver Island.

He wants it.

Addressing Malaspina College students Thursday, he predicted that Vancouver Island cities will be competing for nuclear power plants in their area within two years.

Recognizing provincial government opposition to thermonuclear power, Shrum said, "It is not my job to oppose government policy . . . it is my job to educate the public."

Shrum said Vancouver Island is more likely to get a nuclear power plant within 10 years than the Lower Mainland because power or power fuel must be transported to the island.

GREAT FOR NANAIMO

"It could be the greatest thing that ever happened to Nanaimo," he said, adding a plant would cost about $300 million. He said federal financial aid is available for nuclear plant construction.

In early 1970, Premier Bennett said the province was planning to ask Ottawa about this aid for a plant on Vancouver Island.

However, he later began pouring cold water on the idea, saying Vancouver Island was more suited to quiet living and tourism than to heavy industry of the kind a nuclear power plant might be associated with.

Shrum said he has just returned from inspecting the Pickering nuclear plant in Ontario.

He said the Pickering power is not as cheap as hydro but "Ontario has run out of hydro."

He said the water used in the Pickering plant is 18 degrees warmer than regular Lake Ontario water it is dumped into, but much purer.

The water takes a mile of circulation to cool. However, the cold tidal waters of the B.C. coast would probably be less affected, Shrum said. would be exposed Shrum told his audience: "We really haven't decided yet what to do on Vancouver Island but by 1974 additional energy will be required.

"There is no other solution to meeting our power needs than nuclear power. The increased load can't be met by fossil fuels which are expendable.

Shrum said it is unfortunate that scare stories about radiation problems from nuclear power plants are so readily accepted.

The kind of radiation people would be exposed to from a nuclear power plant would be one twentieth of what people are normally exposed to in the American city of Denver.

DERBY, ARSENAL TIE; FANS HURT IN CRUSH

LONDON (AP) — Reigning champion Arsenal fought to a scoreless draw with Derby and Manchester United defeated Second Division Middlesbrough 3-0 in English Football Association Cup fifth-round replays Tuesday.

A second replay between Arsenal and Derby will decide which team meets Orient of the Second Division in the quarter-finals.

Fifty people, mostly children, were injured when a crush barrier collapsed at Arsenal's stadium shortly after the game started.

As ambulance attendants struggled to reach the injured, there were scenes reminiscent of last year's soccer crowd disaster when 66 people died at Ibrox Park in Glasgow, Scotland, in a crush on a huge exit ramp.

Angry fans among the capacity crowd of 63,000 complained Tuesday night about overcrowding on the exit terraces, where fans can sit during games. Only two spectators — both children — were sent to hospital. One had a broken ankle, the other had chest injuries.

The games was stopped while the crowd swarmed on to the field to make way for police and medical attendants to reach the injured.

Willie Morgan put the Manchester side into an 11th-minute lead with a penalty after Denis Law was brought down. George Best added a second after 51 minutes, and 14 minutes later captain Bobby Charlton scored the third goal.

In the only English League match played Tuesday, Sheffield United beat West Ham 3-0.

Main Thing for Hank Is to Stay Healthy

ATLANTA (AP) — Hank Aaron, estimating "it will probably take three years" to equal Babe Ruth's career record home run aggregate, signed a three-year contract Tuesday with Atlanta Braves. Speculation placed the figure at a major league high of $200,000 annually.

"My contract does represent a lot of money," said the 38-year-old Aaron. "But I feel like I've been compared with other players as equal or better than they are, only the salaries didn't match up.

"Now I'm on an equal basis there, too."

The slugging outfielder heads into his 19th spring training camp with 639 homers behind him, 47 of them last year. Seventy-five more will tie him with Ruth's 714 career homers.

"If everything works out right," said Aaron—and "everything" is mainly his ailing knee — "it will take probably three years" to catch Ruth.

Aaron agreed that the nervous pressure will increase as he narrows the home run gap. But the main thing, he said, "is staying healthy for the next three years."

Aaron said his ailing knee felt good and he was anxious to get to the Braves' Florida training camp.

Big Price Tag on Success

By The Associated Press

Are the kids crying? Are the bills piling up? Is the boss on your back? Well, quit complaining. If you think you have troubles, consider the problems of Frank Cashen, executive vice-president of Baltimore Orioles.

Today is March 1, the date generally accepted as the official opening of baseball spring training. If a player isn't signed by today, he's considered a holdout.

Baltimore Orioles have 10 played—most of them important ones—who fall into that category.

Cashen, who succeeded Harry Dalton and inherited the signing headache, enrolled shortstop Mark Belanger and rookie outfielder Don Baylor Tuesday, but his situation is easily the most critical in the signing derby.

Still unhappy with terms are infielders Dave Johnson, Boog Powell, Brooks Robinson, and outfielders Don Buford, Paul Blair and Merv Rettenmund, all regular performers for the Birds.

CUELLAR UNSIGNED

Also unsigned are lefthander Mike Cuellar, one of Baltimore's four 20-game winners, rookie flash Bobby Grich and infielders Rich Coggins and Jerry Davanon.

The dissatisfaction is the price Baltimore is paying for three straight American League pennants and, apparently, the gap is quite wide in some of the cases at least.

Cuellar, for example, is still in San Juan, Puerto Rico, demanding a $25,000 raise to $90,000. That's about $18,000 more than Cashen has offered. But Cuellar is not budging.

"I'm not going to make the same mistake I made last year," said Cuellar. "I'm going to stay here in Puerto Rico until I come to terms with Cashen."

Only six clubs—San Francisco Giants, Boston Red Sox, Minnesota Twins, Pittsburgh Pirates, Cleveland Indians and Chicago Cubs—have complete roster signed.

New York Mets, lack only utility outfielder Don Hahn, and their crosstown rivals, the Yankees, are missing only infielder Jerry Kenney. Los Angeles Dodgers are without only minor league pitcher Mike Strahler and Detroit Tigers, who got Mickey Lolich to agree to an $85,000 contract Tuesday, have only utility infielder Cesar Gutierrez unsigned.

Atlanta scraped together a reported $600,000 to satisfy Hank Aaron for the next three years. But now the Braves will have to dig down for some more cash to satisfy Orlando Cepeda, Ralph Garr, Rico Carty, Cecil Upshaw and rookie-of-the-year Earl Williams.

Joe Torre, the National League's Most Valuable Player and Vida Blue, MVP and Cy Young Award winner in the American League, are major holdout headaches for St. Louis Cardinals and Oakland Athletics.

Belmont Rise Abetted By 'Total Involvement'

By JACK KEATING
Times Staff

Belmont Braves are favored by many to finish on top in the 22nd annual Vancouver Island senior high school boys' basketball tournament, an eight-team struggle that starts Thursday at the University of Victoria.

That kind of attention hasn't always been Belmont's basketball fate.

In fact, it took the 27-year-old school in the Colwood area 20 years to even reach the Island hoop tourney.

DISMAL SEASONS

Many of those years were dismal seasons in the Victoria league and sometimes the outlook was so bleak the school didn't even compete.

Then in 1969 a minor miracle took place, Belmont made its inaugural appearance in the Island tourney and joined the city powerhouses of Victoria High and Oak Bay and established up-Island teams.

The Braves were knocked out of the tourney that year, qualified again in 1970 and were back last year as Victoria champions. A red-hot Oak Bay team upset them for the Island title but Belmont qualified for its first-ever trip to the provincial tournament in Vancouver.

IMPRESSIVE RECORD

Last Sunday afternoon, Braves won the Victoria crown for the second year running, and their impressive 25-5 record this season has earned them fifth place in the latest B.C. high school rankings.

And why have the Braves attained the kind of success monopolozide for so many years by Victoria High and Oak Bay?

"It's the coaching, there's no doubt it's the reason," pointed out Oak Bay coach Don Horwood, whose team may probably give the Braves the stiffest competition over the three-day tourney, from which three representatives will go to the B.C. final, March 15-18, in Vancouver.

PURSUIT OF EXCELLENCE

"He's completely dedicated to the game and his attitude catches on with the players," Horwood added.

Wally Russell is the coach and that kind of praise and his past record suggest it's no coincidence that Belmont's success began when Russell took over the team three years ago.

Any particular philosophy?

"It's the pursuit of excellence for the lack of a better term," Russell says.

"It's total dedication and the kids give their hearts and souls to the game."

PART OF IMAGE

He points out that the players all have much shorter hair than the other teams and it's all part of the image they're trying to create.

"It's sort of total involvement," says Russell, who became principal of Belmont this year after two years as vice-principal at Elizabeth Fisher.

Russell used the same philosophy when he coached for six years at Delbrook High School on the North Shore, where he guided the Hilltoppers to four straight league crowns and their first four trips to the B.C. tournament.

"I really enjoy the game," Russell says but he points out that his interests aren't limited to basketball and that he's striving to bring interest in all aspects of school life.

Support of the students and the community has been rewarding."

Russell, who won his 200th high school game when Belmont clinched the league crown Sunday, says his position as principal involves considerable extra work and believes this will be his final year of coaching.

NOTE OF CAUTION

Of course Russell would like to go out with a B.C. championship and it's possible.

Two of his players, Lee Edmondson and Jim Kupiak, rank with the best at their positions. Russell says the dedication is there and admits that this team can match any of his Delbrook teams, one of which finished third in the B.C. tournament.

However, he cautions, that they must get through the Island tournament first. First step is against Nanaimo at 9 Thursday night at the University of Victoria Gymnasium.

Totes Earn Spot In Island Event

Victoria High Totems capped a late-season spurt by grabbing the final playoff spot in the Vancouver Island senior high school boys' basketaball tournament as they tripped Mt. Douglas Rams 48-41 in a special playoff game Monday night at Reynolds High School.

Totems who were struggling to win games in the first half of the season, finished with a flurry to share the fourth and final playoff spot available to Victoria-area teams with Rams.

Rams ousted the Hornets Monday in the first round of a fourth-place playoff.

TACKLE TOWHEES

Vic High meets Courtenay Towhees at 7:30 in the opening round of the Island Tourney at University of Victoria Gymnasium.

Other opening games, with the Victoria teams listed first. In other Thursday openers, Reynolds Roadrunners meet Campbell River Tyees at 4:30 p.m., Oak Bay Bays take on Cowichan Lakers at 6 p.m., and Belmont Braves play Nanaimo Hubsters at 9 p.m.

Tournament play continues Friday and Saturday nights at UVic and the championship game goes at 9 p.m. Saturday. Three teams qualify for the B.C. tournament.

VICTORIA (48) — Jim Griffin 7, Sean Flynn 8, Kevin Townsend 13, Steve Rothwell 11, John Houston 9, John Lynch, Vanni Barbon, Tony Flynn, Doug Irving, Nick Schulieri.

MT. DOUGLAS (41) — Greg Gardner 4, Bart Zethof 8, Ron Smith 4, John Champion, Kevin Worth 7, John Tucker 6, Bent Hansen 4, Randy Jackson 4, Harry Hitchman 2, John Evans, Bruce Coulter, Wayne Robinson.

Gordon Quartet Leads Bonspiel

Lyle Gordon skipped his Victoria rink to the "A" event title Sunday in the annual B.C. Forest Products bonspiel Sunday at the Playland Curling Club.

Gordon, supported by Jack Doan, John Tarjek Jr., and Iris Gordon, defeated Ed Taylor of Prince George in the final.

Vancouver Island rinks also won the "B" and "C" events to sweep honors.

White Ensign 'Spiel

Competition in the annual White Ensign bonspiel will be held at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

The two-day curling affair gets under way with an 8 a.m. draw Saturday and winds up Sunday.

Shawnigan Lake In 'A' Playoffs

CHEMAINUS — Shawnigan Lake Boys' School has earned the Vancouver Island berth in the B.C. Senior High School boys' "A" Basketball tournament in Kamloops.

Shawnigan defeated Qualicum 78-56 to reach the provincial championships for schools with less than 300 students in Grades 11 and 12.

Cowichan Pair Invited by Lions

DUNCAN — B.C. Lions of the Canadian Football League have invited Steve Ludvigson and Rocky Robson of the Cowichan Timbermen juvenile football team to attend their Canadian development training camp this summer.

Ludvigson is a defensive end, and Robson is a centre.

Hotelmen Again Check In As Class of Senior Loop

Hotel Douglas swept up the league and playoff crown for the second straight year in the Victoria Senior "B" Basketball League Tuesday night at Highrock Junior High School.

The Hotelmen trimmed Independents 84-70 in the final game of the two-game total-point final to win the series by 14 points. The teams fought to a 84-84 stalemate in the first game Monday.

Independents, who finished a close second in league standings, never led in the final game and fell behind by 12 points at one point in the first half, before narrowing the gap to five, 39-34, at the half.

Bill Carlson dropped in 20 points and four of his clubmates hit double figures to pace the Hotelmen, Carlson scored 12 of his points in the second half and Mike Taaffe potted 13 of his 16 in the final half.

Chris Hall and Don Burrows scored 22 points apiece for Independents.

HOTEL DOUGLAS (84) — Mike Taaffe 16, Corky Jossul 9, Bob DeCosta, Dave Wirtanen 13, Bruce Vallor, John Lauvaas 16, Bill Carlson 20, Tom Hatcher 10, John McKeachie.

INDEPENDENTS (70) — Mark Pratt 4, Mike Morrill 3, Don Horwood 4, Mike Chalmoby, Ed Kowalyk, Chris Hall 22, Glen Moffatt 10, Ollie Mollanen 5, Don Burrows 22.

Welfare Solo By Gaglardi Condemned

The B.C. Association of Social Workers today branded as illegal and a "retrograde step" Monday's motion by the provincial government to place B.C.'s welfare system under the "absolute discretion" of Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi.

A six-member delegation including its executive director, Dr. Glen Hamilton, descended on the legislature this morning to put their objections to opposition MLAs and "hopefully" to present a brief to Gaglardi.

Group spokesman Jack MacDonald, president of the association and assistant professor at UBC's school of social work, said one proposed amendment to the B.C. act — that of allowing Gaglardi to set welfare rates — would be illegal under provisions of the federal Canada Assistance Act.

WELFARE 'CZAR'

He pointed out that the assistance act stipulates that social assistance "be in an amount that takes into account his (the welfare recipient's) basic requirements."

He added that by allowing Gaglardi to become "sort of a welfare Czar" in the setting of welfare rates the Bennett government contravenes the federal law which provides 50 per cent of welfare money to the province.

"Both the letter and the spirit of the (federal) act could justify the withholding of federal money to B.C."

MacDonald also contended that the government is reducing the power of welfare review boards — "taking away their power" — so that they can do nothing more than make recommendations to government.

"This makes a mockery of the concept of the appeal board," he said.

"There is good reason why review boards should have the power to make decisions as a safeguard against the arbitrary decisions of civil servants who already hold great discretionary powers over powerless people who are the victims of our society."

MacDonald also charged that the Bennett government was following more and more the tendency to delegate power to cabinet ministers exclusively and this was a "total abdication of legislative responsibility."

He contended that to give Gaglardi absolute discretion on welfare matters was a retrograde step "which goes in the face of the national trend" which is to vest more decision-making power in the social worker in the field.

The association's brief makes 11 recommendations covering a wide range of welfare problems.

Among them is a recommendation that social assistance rates be reviewed by a special commission and that they be sharply increased. The brief does not spell out what the amount of the increase should be.

It also points out that "contrary to the views of many citizens, 84 per cent of adults on welfare assistance are not capable of earning a living; 13 per cent are unemployed and 3 per cent are defined as working poor."

Another recommendation is that the minimum wage be raised to $2 per hour.

TERRORIST BOMB destroyed this building in Londonderry, Northern Ireland, where a policeman directs traffic around the debris. The building had housed a furniture store, ownd by a Protestant, on the ground floor. Buildings on both sides were also severely damaged.

Israel Hits Guerrillas

Syrians Respond With Bombers

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel launched air and artillery attacks on Palestinian Arab guerilla camps inside Syria today. Syria said it struck back with air strikes on the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights.

The Syrian claim said the planes struck Israeli paramilitary settlements in the Heights, seized by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war.

The Syrians said the aircraft caused heavy damage.

Israeli military spokesmen acknowledged that Syrian planes swept over the Heights on a bombing mission but said they inflicted no casualties and no damage.

Israeli planes tried to intercept the Syrian MIG-17 and anti-aircraft guns opened fire but there was no contact or hits from the ground, the Tel Aviv command said.

In Beirut, 10,000 pro-guerrilla demonstrators marched through the streets today shouting anti-American slogans and taunting President Suleiman Franjieh for not taking action against the Israeli incursions. They were escorted by 50 riot police and there was no violence.

But fighting broke out between guerrilla sympathizers and rightists at the American University of Beirut and a university spokesman said 11 students were injured in the 30-minute clash. He said: "A good number of windows, chairs and tables were smashed."

CLOSE AIRPORTS

Damascus radio said Syria's airspace and all of its airports were closed in late afternoon.

It was the fifth day in less than a week that the Israelis struck across their border for assaults on guerrilla outposts in Arab territory.

Lebanese guerrillas claimed Israeli planes also bombed two border villages today near the Arkoub region of southern Lebanon, scene of a four-day Israeli operation against Palestinian commandos that ended Monday.

Israel denied making attacks on Lebanon today.

A guerrilla spokesman claimed Israel lost three jet aircraft and 11 military vehicles in the four days of fighting. Israel reported no such losses.

The spokesman said 130 Israelis were killed or wounded and set guerrilla casualties at 47 killed and 64 wounded.

The Israelis report about 50 guerrillas were killed.

The Syrian army placed the Israeli assault 60 miles south of the capital Damascus, and said three guerrillas and two Syrians were killed.

The air and artillery assault was a reprisal attack against guerrillas based in Syria who had fired at Israeli positions in the occupied Golan Heights 13 times in the last four days, the Israelis said.

The Israeli military command said all planes returned safely, despite Arab claims of intensive anti-aircraft fire. Seven Arab guerrilla centres came under fire, a military spokesman said.

Israel accused the Syrian government of supporting and encouraging the guerrillas.

"The aim of today's Israeli defence force action is to bring home to the Syrians and to the terrorists the fact that we do not intend to tolerate attacks . . . carried out by Syria or from her territory," a statement warned.

The attack into Syria—the first since Jan. 24—came after four days of Israeli operations against Arab guerrillas in southeast Lebanon. Israel claimed about 50 terrorists were killed in the Lebanese operation, which ended Monday.

Today's raids appeared to have the same aim as the attacks into Lebanon—to break up guerrilla concentrations and to force the Arab governments to clamp down on guerrilla operations.

Israel argued that the guerrillas were harassing Israeli positions and settlements with bazookas, mortars and gunfire "with the full knowledge and approval of the Syrian authorities. . . . Terrorist activities from Syrian territory are strictly supervised by Damascus authorities."

The Syrian army was accused of handing over camps to the guerrillas, and training, arming and feeding them. Syrian President Hafez Assad was quoted as telling an Arab newspaper last year—when guerrillas hit Israel 39 times in two months—that "we are strengthening them and spurring them on."

An Israeli communique said the planes bombed guerrilla bases near the Syrian border villages of Sahem el-Golan, El Shaari and Tel Aram, north of Zera'a. Meanwhile, Israeli guns shelled guerrillas tent camps near Jamala, Abdin, Ma'ariya and Musratiya.

NO DOCTOR, SO NO SEX

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Farmers and their wives in the southern town of Quirihue are boycotting sexual relations to protest the lack of a doctor in the local hospital, the pro-government tabloid Clarin reported today.

Clarin said in a front-page story that local officials in the town of 10,000 had refused pleas from farmers to hire a physician for the hospital, which has been without a doctor for three months.

"We have stopped having sexual relations in order to demonstrate our problem to the whole world," Clarin quoted a farmer as saying. The newspaper said farmers planned to seize the hospital unless a doctor was appointed soon.

Latin Nation Idled

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—A nationwide strike clamped a stranglehold on Argentina's industry and idled most of the nation for the second day in a row today.

Practically all of the nation's factories, shipping, land transportation and most private commerce were halted.

Called by the country's biggest labor union, the stoppage was said by union sources to be from 97 per cent effective in heavily-industrialized Cordoba to 44 per cent in subtropical Misiones in the north.

In Buenos Aires, the sources said the strike was 80 per cent effective.

Except for scattered minor incidents, no violent clashes between workers and police were reported.

The strike began at midnight Tuesday and was scheduled to end at midnight tonight.

Line Issue Largest Yet

TORONTO (CP) — Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. announced Wednesday a new issue of shares totalling $125 million, believed to be the largest equity issue in Canadian history.

The company said it plans to sell 2.5 million $2.65 cumulative redeemable, convertible second preferred shares, series A, each with a par value of $50.

IRA Assassin Squads Kill Two Militiamen

Times News Services

BELFAST (CP) — Terrorist assassination squads shot dead two part-time militiamen today as guerrilla bullets and bombs cut another swathe of terror across the face of Northern Ireland.

The slayings hoisted the death toll to 253 in 31 months and the continued violence left two other men—an army sergeant and a police officer—fighting for their lives after being hit in the head by terrorist bullets.

Amid the shootings, which security forces blamed on the Irish Republican Army, the British government was reported ready to order its troops here to cease intensive interrogation of terrorist suspects. The methods used have brought accusations of brutality.

The British government also was thought to be on the verge of unveiling its long-awaited political initiative aimed at bringing peace to Ulster.

British troops said they captured a top IRA bomb expert crouched in a tiny attic after a tip sent them to a home in Belfast's Andersonstown quarter, an IRA bomb-making centre.

Latest victim of terrorist assassins was Pte. T. J. Fletcher, who was shot down by four gunmen as he climbed into his car outside his home in Garrison, County Fermanagh, only a short distance from the Irish border.

Fletcher died almost immediately as six bullets ripped into his body.

Fletcher was a member of the Ulster Defence Regiment, the part-time militia.

The killing came only a few hours after terrorists murdered 55-year-old Harry Dixon, a sergeant in the militia.

Two hooded gunmen hammered on the door of his home at Lurgan, County Armagh, just before midnight Tuesday night. They burst inside and shot Dixon in his hallway.

The sergeant's 11-year-old daughter was hit in the leg. Police said she looked on as her father died from a head wound.

He is the third militiaman to be killed this year, and the eighth since the current wave of violence started in 1969.

The attacks—and a chain of explosions which wrecked shops and homes—were blamed on the IRA. Forty-six persons have been killed in the last two months.

ATTACKS LYNCH

In Belfast, Prime Minister Brian Faulkner made a bitter attack on his opposite number in the Irish Republic, Jack Lynch.

Faulkner accused the republic's prime minister of "monumental inaction" in dealing with the outlawed IRA.

Faulkner said that as soon as the IRA carried out a particularly horrible attack, Lynch took "a few timid stens" by arresting IRA men in Dublin.

"When the publicity coast is clear, he quietly releases those arrested, or prefers minor charges, and it is 'terrorism as you were' in the republic," Faulkner said.

Trudeau Apologizes For Rough Language

TORONTO (UPI) — Prime Minister Trudeau apologized to a mother of five sons today for using blasphemous language in the House of Commons Monday.

The woman, caller to an open-line radio show Trudeau participated in here, asked the prime minister to examine his use of the expression "god-damned" as a parent whose child had been baptised.

On Monday Trudeau used the phrase "that is your god damned question" in an exchange with Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield.

"Is this a good example to the children of the country?" asked the woman, who said her sons ranged in age from seven to 21.

"It's a bad example and I'm really sorry that I used the word," said Trudeau. "And I'm really sorry that so many repeated it on the front pages in headlines."

Trudeau, however, was not entirely apologetic about the matter.

He said there was "a lot of hypocrisy around," citing the use of the expression on the front pages of newspapers and Stanfield's objection that the word in question be deleted from Hansard.

"I agree that one shouldn't use profanity," Trudeau told the caller. "I don't think my grandmother would have liked it at all. But she would have thought a lot of people were hypocrites . . . (people) who pretend to be shocked and use the word themselves."

Worley Ignores Car Park Ban

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

City hall officials are furious over repeated refusals by Deputy Travel Industry Minister Ron Worley to have his staff obey city parking regulations.

Commissionaires were instructed to begin ticketing "Beautiful B.C." travel industry cars parking illegally around the Dogwood Building at Fort and Wharf.

Mayor Peter Pollen said today he is writing a letter today to Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan asking that Worley begin obeying the parking rules.

Officials are reluctant to be specific, but traffic engineer Dave Campbell told aldermen Tuesday that repeated attempts to get a change in attitude met with abrupt refusal from Worley, who used tough language.

Police officials refused to acknowledge they were ignored by Worley.

Campbell said provincial government cars have no special privileges for parking their cars in the city.

34 INCIDENTS

A survey during the week Feb. 7 to 11 showed that there were 34 illegally parked cars around the Dogwood Building by travel industry cars and fish and wildlife cars.

Of these, 23 parked illegally for an hour or less; six were parked illegally for between one and two hours, and five were parked illegally for more than four hours.

Campbell said the secretaries of the departments were informed today the ticketing would begin today.

Commissionaires have not been ticketing the cars for about one year because the tickets were simply ignored.

Answers in Due Time—Bennett

By ROBERT OLVER
Times Staff

Premier Bennett, who in recent days has been called a variety of nasty names — "arrogant old man" and "dictator" among them, may simply be misunderstood.

At least that's the impression he gave Tuesday afternoon during a brief interview in the corridor outside the legislative chamber.

"I'm a reasonable man," said Bennett, his face exuding benevolent sweet reason, "but any political leader has to keep 'em guessing."

And if the current opposition is kept guessing a little more than they like, added Bennett, they have only themselves to blame.

"Twenty years ago," said Bennett, "the Liberal-Conservative government was getting some questions from the opposition, and they didn't like them. They asked for and got a ruling from the Speaker wiping out the question period. So that's why they haven't got one now."

PLENTY OF TIME

But, under questioning about his reasons for forcing a 16-hour and 33-minute record-breaking sitting on spending estimates for the attorney-general's department, Bennett indicated that he does try to rise above the loss of the question period.

"They are always complaining about not having enough time to ask questions," said Bennett. "Well, that's not true. We gave them plenty of time then and we are always willing to do it again.

"All I wanted them to approve was the salary for the attorney-general. It wasn't as if I was asking them to approve all the estimates."

And besides, added Bennett, "I always answer, sooner or later, all questions asked in the house. Always."

Then, Mr. Premier, he was asked, will you be telling the house how much is still left of the $273 million paid to B.C. and Ottawa by the United States under the Columbia River Treaty?

"Yes, I will," said Bennett.

When, Mr. Premier?

"In due course," he said. "All questions will be answered in due course."

"You do like to keep them guessing, don't you, Mr. Premier?" said a reporter.

Bennett did not reply. But he smiled and smiled and smiled as he walked away.

DID THEY CHICKEN OUT?

The B.C. Poultry Producers Association may have a little egg on its face today.

The reason: A delegation from the association failed to show today for scheduled presentation of a brief to the standing committee on agriculture under Chairman Donald A. Marshall (SC — South Peace River).

And if they had shown up, they might have had some difficulty getting a hearing from the commitee anyway.

Twenty minutes after the official starting time of 10 a.m., only four of the eight members were on hand. They were H. R. McDiarmid (SC — Alberni), W. L. Hartley (NDP — Yale-Lillooet), L. A. Williams (L — West Vancouver-Howe Sound) and D. E. Smith (SC — North Peace River).

This despite two searches of members' offices by Marshall in an attempt to round up absentees.

At 10:20, when it became evident the poultry delegation would not appear, Hartley moved adjournment.

"There's no point in meeting," he said.

"We don't have to adjourn," said Marshall, "we haven't even started."

The members, what there were of them, dispersed.

NEWS BRIEFS

Seagrams Sued

CHICAGO (AP) — A $30-million lawsuit charging price fixing has been filed by a Chicago liquor store owner against Joseph E. Seagrams and Sons, a distilling company, its 10 sales divisions and six local distributors.

Aid Sought

MOSCOW (AP) — Prime Minister Sheik Mujibur Rahman of Bangladesh flew to the Soviet Union today to seek aid for his fledgling nation from its benefactors in the Kremlin.

Easy Going

PROVIDENCE, R.R. (AP) — A forthcoming federal study indicates that persons who drive under the influence of marijuana are more cautious and less aggressive than drivers under the influence of alcohol, the director of the Injury Control Research Laboratory says. The study showed marijuana users had no more accidents while under the influence of the drug than they had while not under its influence.

Medics Face State Probe

CHICAGO (UPI) — Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has ordered a review of the credentials of all doctors working for the state of Illinois after an investigation opened into the qualifications of a state hospital employee working as a physician in the geriatrics section of a mental hospital in suburban Elgin.

Ogilvie's action followed the suspension Tuesday of Dr. Ricardo Munoz-Velez, 48. Munoz was removed four months ago from all medical duties at Elgin state hospital.

Dr. Daniel Manelli, superintendent at Elgin, said about 200 deaths occurred during a period from 1969 to 1971 in the geriatric section where Munoz was assigned, but that Munoz had primary responsibility for medical care in only 26 of the cases. The Kane country prosecutor's office, in charge of the Elgin area, has announced it is investigating the 200 deaths.

Nfld. Pushes School Plans

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)— Newfoundland business and industry are becoming more efficient and modernized and more Newfoundlanders are preparing to meet the demand for skilled and trained personnel.

Approximately 163,000 students, close to one-third of the province's population, now attend classes from kindergarten to Grade 11 in more than 800 schools across the island.

In addition to primary, elementary and secondary schools, there are 14 district vocational schools, three private schools, one school for the deaf and one for retarded children.

In 1948, the year before Newfoundland joined Canada, the spending by the Newfoundland government on education was slightly more than $3½ million. Since Confederation about $600 million, or more than $27 million a year for the 22-year period, has been spent on upgrading and improvements.

Until the early 1940s education was voluntary on the island. A child's chances of attending school depended often on the whims of parents and their attitudes towards learning. But economic conditions were probably the most important factor governing school attendance.

BECAME COMPULSORY

All schools depended on the collection of fees and pupils were sometimes denied admission because of non-payment. Youngsters were also kept home from school to work on fishing boats and help with household chores and the curing of the cod catch.

In 1942, the commission government, which preceded Confederation, made education compulsory throughout the island. Collection of fees was dropped, making schools free for all.

Former education minister Dr. F. W. Rowe said last summer that student aid alone during the 1970 academic year amounted to almost $11 million.

He said the figure will be much higher for the present fiscal year ending March 31, 1972, since the number of scholarships has been doubled, 300 new bursaries valued at $400 each have been made available to university students and mothers' allowances have been increased by 25 per cent.
